STEEL MEN MEET NRA CHIEFS ON CODE

Today

A Frenchman Tells Us.
Look at Poor China.
Jewish Theater for Berlin.
Enjoyment Not Necessary.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE CUBAN question is important. The Hitler question is very important, dozens of questions are important, but THE important question is the probable working out of our NRA problems.

The French are dubious about the success of our experiment in control of everything by government. They call it "State Socialism."

A serious French writer, Frederick Jenny, financial editor of the important Paris paper Le Temps speaks with a frankness that deserves unusually full quotation:

"The enthusiasm with which public opinion, in despair after four years of depression, welcomed President Roosevelt's initiative will not in the least suffice to modify the logical course of events, it will neither permit the avoidance of social conflicts for any length of time nor prevent a decline in industrial and commercial enterprises which will lack the essential stimulus or personal interest and a perspective of normal profits.

"It is quite apparent that lessons of experience, however clear they may have seemed to attentive, impartial observers, have not yet become sufficiently plain for America to perceive the road which will lead her to true prosperity. The final failure which certain far-sighted minds in the United States already foresee will be, therefore, one lesson more.

"One can only hope that this one will be decisive and that responsible authorities will resolutely change their policies, as they have already done more than once in recent months as soon as they realized they were on the wrong road. Thus the damage which some fear may be very great will at least be limited as much as possible."

BACK OF this statement you may detect French irritation at our having left the gold standard, cheapening dollars abroad, making purchases in the United States with foreign currency easier. But the French, since 1776, have been through many upheavals, one revolution, two empires, Napoleon 1st and 3rd, "the commune," some worthless kings, a firm republic, and some big wars.

Thoughtful men will not disregard the views of a man as well informed as the financial editor of the Paris Temps.

WE ARE already realizing the probable soundness of the French editor's statement that the best of plans will not "permit the avoidance of social conflicts for any length of time." Trouble in the coal regions which may again break out at any moment disastrously, the violent milk riots in New York State, farmers fighting farmers, and other indications, are unpleasant.

Most serious for the country would be realization of the prophecy of "a decline in industrial and commercial enterprises which will lack the essential stimulus or personal interest and a perspective of normal profits."

The mainspring of intense effort is human selfishness. It will take more than one administration, more than 10,000 years, to change that.

BRITISH LABOR unions look upon our experiment more cheerfully. The Trade Union Congress, on September 4, will demand that the British government follow lines laid down by President Roosevelt, specifically the reduction of working hours, and withdrawal from the labor market of children under 16 and adults over 65.

THROUGH THE President's secretary, Col. Howe, Gen. Johnson announces a "modified NRA eagle" for those that patriotically would like, but honestly are unable to live up to all the NRA rules.

Those unable to be 100 per cent NRA will have an eagle with a chevron on its breast, a registered number, "showing the extent and reasons for the exception" in each case.

This does not mean that NRA will be taken any less seriously. "Chisellers," as Gen. Johnson calls them, deliberately shirking duty laid down by the President, may still expect Gen. Johnson's metaphorical "sock in the nose."

IF YOU worry about your own country, which is not necessary, turn to poor old China. The Yellow river, having left its regular bed eighty-one years ago, is trying to break its way back to that old, comfortable bed again.

It has swept away dikes, and inundated more than 2,000 villages, in its effort to flow as it used to flow. Man's "dominion over the earth" is still imperfect.

This country, with all its money and all its engineering skill, has not learned to control the Mississippi.

MR. HITLER'S government permits "an all-Jewish theater for Berlin." Everybody connected with it must be a Jew and it may offer no tickets at public sale.

There will be no difficulty in assembling a good cast, and the diminishing number of visitors to Berlin will try to get tickets to that theater.

If two of the greatest actresses that ever lived, Rachel and Bernhardt, were alive, they would both be eligible for the cast, under Nazi rules.

JULIUS MYERS, highly respected merchant in Springfield, Ill., president last year of the National Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association, wrote to

RACKET EVIL LAID TO AID OF POLITICS

Senate Probers Hear Attack on Corrupt Local Governments

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Before the nation can get rid of racketeering the alliance between gangs and municipal politics must be broken, United States Attorney George Z. Medalie, of New York, told the hearing of the senatorial sub-committee on racketeering today. He declared:

"So long as a group of parasites are in power, so long will every large city draw on the criminal element.

"Men in politics have business connections and get profit from city contracts."

Asked by United States Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman, as to what was the solution, Medalie suggested that permanent local parties be eliminated with their clubhouses frequented by gangsters. He suggested city managership as a substitute.

OPPOSINGS WHIPPINGS

Medalie criticized the suggestions to suppress crime through public whippings and martial law as "barbarity." He said:

"There is no need of us losing our heads over the crime situation. Speedy and certain punishment will accomplish the purpose."

Commenting on the suggestions of an American Scotland Yard, Medalie said a federal detective force of 50,000 men would be needed. "This would be too unwieldly," he added.

United States Attorney Howard W. Ameli, of the Eastern New York Federal District, was called next.

He expressed opposition to a constitutional amendment for concurrent jurisdiction of the Federal Government over racketeering crimes.

POLITICS AND CRIME

Presiding Justice Frederic Kernochan, of the New York Court of Special Sessions, testified that the power of gangsters would be removed if the protection of the

HAVANA TORN BY RENEWED VIOLENCE

Remaining Aides of Machado Hunted In Streets

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

HAVANA, Aug. 15.—Renewed violence against remnants of the deposed Machado regime broke out today as the administration of President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes moved to re-establish constitutional liberty throughout the republic.

Gunmen racing through the streets in an automobile mowed down Lester Lara, secretary to Col. Antonio Jimenez, slain founder of the hated "Porra," as he stood on a corner here.

Jimenez himself was killed Saturday as a mob of delirious Cubans stamped through the city, pillaging and murdering to celebrate the overthrow of Gerardo Machado and his dreaded secret police in an outburst of hate that took at least 50 lives and caused millions of dollars damage.

A few minutes before Lara was murdered, the bloodshed of the past week found an echo when a policeman named Jordan suddenly went insane in the tenth precinct police station, killing Lieut. Pedro Hernandez and wounding a fellow patrolman.

CRAZED MAN SUBDUED

Jordan finally was subdued after throwing the neighborhood into an uproar.

Widespread reports that water in various cities had been poisoned by supporters of Machado in reprisal for his overthrow were disproved by government sanitary experts.

The rumors were traced to Mantanzas, where several members of a mob looting the drugstore of a Machado follower drank his supply of wood alcohol and died.

Only one American warship remained in Havana harbor today following departure of the destroyer Claxton, recalled by orders from Washington when it became apparent the main violence was ended and order virtually restored.

Meanwhile, with the aid of United States Ambassador Sumner Welles, President De Cespedes began framing a political code to permit quick election of a new

HOUR, WAGE PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

Soft Coal Operators Called to Capital For Tomorrow

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Steel leaders and administration officials conferred for two hours today in the office of Secretary Perkins, who told newspapermen later thatan intensive review of the facts covering hours and wages was occupying the conferees and that conclusion probably would not be reached until tomorrow.

The meeting was the first conference since the close of public hearings on the code recommended b ythe steel industry, Kenneth M. Simpson, deputy administrator, represented the Recovery Administration, along with Donald Richberg, administrator counsel.

Just prior to the conference, Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery chieftain, conferred with Miss Perkins, Simpson and William A. Irvin, head of the United States Steel Corporation.

PARLEY CONTINUES

Secretary Perkins said the conference probably would continue over tomorrow. She said:

"We are discussing principally hours and wages. We are trying to review and come to an understanding of the facts. Opinions are having no place in the conference.

"This is a question of determining just what are the facts and statisticians of the steel men are presenting data, much of which will require 24 hours of study by our experts."

Asked whether the discussion touched on price-fixing, Miss Perkins said:

"There is nothing on price-fixing today. When that question is reached other experts will handle it. The reeview of such sections of a code belongs to the Attorney General."

The full pressure of the administration is being thrown behind an effort to bring four of the nation's key industries—coal, steel, oil and automobiles—under NRA codes.

COAL MEN CALLED

Jumping ahead of his set schedule, Johnson called the controversy-beset bituminous coal operators to meet here tomorrow instead of August 22 and informed sources within the administration said they would be told that a concerted effort must be made to draft a code accepetable to all or the administration itself would write one.

Robert W. Lea, the deputy administrator charked with handling the automobile industry's code, conferred today with spokesmen for this group. Reports emanating from the room were that the attitude of Henry Ford toward the agreement already submitted was among the problems considered.

The oil industry is to have its hearing Thursday on the code which Johnson has been drafting out of the disputed proposals of various segments of the petroleum

CAPONE RUMOR STIRS CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Premature reports that Al Capone was en route from Atlanta Penitentiary under heavy guard to face trial for racket conspiracy caused a furore in Chicago today.

Authorities gave credence to the reports for a time, but later were reported to have received official information from Atlanta that Capone still was in his cell.

Police squads had been mobilized, and a detachment reportedly was started for the state penitentiary at Joliet in the belief Capone would be held there pending trial in state courts on indictments charging that he and 23 others conspired to prey on business in restraint of trade.

Meanwhile representatives of the State's Attorney's office prepared to ask Chief Justice John J. Prystalski, of Criminal Court, for a writ of habeas corpus for Capone's return. They said a petition for the writ would be filed later today or tomorrow.

From Washington came official word that a request for Capone's return to fae trial had been received, but that it would not be acted upon until the return of Attorney General Cummings to his offices later this week.

Farley to Push Repeal in South

Blaw-Knox to Fill Contract on Coast

A representative of the Blaw-Knox Company today said the contract for 24,000 tons of material for transmission towers for the Boulder Dam would be filled at plants of the company on the Pacific Coast. The contract, let 10 days ago, involves about $2,500,000.

CAR COMPANY FIGHT IN COURT

Hearing was begun today before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson on the petition of Ernest A. Frey, a bondholder, who asks the removal of Frank N. Hoffstot as a receiver for the Pressed Steel Car Company, of which Hoffstot is president.

Frey charged mismanagement by Hoffstot. Also that the receiver had interests conflicting with the creditors'.

On the stand Hoffstot admitted that the directors in 1931 had bought, at higher than market prices, the company's bonds from the First National Bank of Koppel, which he said the company controlled.

Sewickley Speakeasies Lead Chief to Quit

Elite Sewickley was without a police chief today, all on account of a hubbub over speakeasies, it seems.

Harold Rhoades gave his resignation as chief to James C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, who is chairman of the police committee of Sewickley Council, Saturday night. Council was to meet tonight to act on it.

Meanwhile John Hiteshew, borough manager, was in charge of the day force and Night Sergt. Harry Dolde of the night shift.

Hiteshew, asked about Rhoades' resignation, said:

"There has been some criticism that there has been too much laxity in prohibiting speakeasies. We have no information as to who is running the speakeasies, but there has been a lot of talk."

Rhoades refused to discuss his admitted resignation, but indicated there would be ample conversation at the meeting tonight.

Serving with Chaplin on the police committee are R. D. Ritchey and Thomas Taylor.

Rhoades, a former member of the state police at Farrell, had been chief at Sewickley for three and a half years.

Costello Case With Jury, McMahon Story Issue

Court Directs Charge At Policeman's Testimony

International News Service.

COURTHOUSE, SALEM, Mass., Aug. 15.—(INS.)—"Gentlemen, take the case."

With these words, at 11:55 a. m. today, Judge Frederick W. Fosdick placed in the hands of a jury the case of Mrs. Jessie Burnett Costello, accused of the murder of her husband.

The jury of 12 married men received the case after a charge of one hour and 24 minutes by Judge Fosdick with the doors of the courtroom locked.

After a recess the exhibits were gone over. The jury retired at 12:31 p. m., and had lunch before starting deliberations.

JESSIE SMILES

Jessie, who had shown some nervousness facing a crowd of 5,000 outside the courthouse, flashed her magnetic smile inside the courtroom as she began the day which may mean life or death to her.

MINERS CHARGE TRUCE BOLT

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Elmer Andrews, head of the New York State Labor Department, today was requested by the coal committee of the National Labor Board to make an immediate investigation of the labor situation in the Pennsylvania coal fields.

He will leave immediately. Andrews will sift complaints that the H. C. Frick Coke Company has not followed the coal peace agreement.

Complaints that the Pittsburgh Coal Company is violating its truce agreement under the National Recovery Act, were to be submitted to the recovery board in Washington today in behalf of 1,100 striking miners at Montour No. 10, at Library.

The men are hopeful that the bituminous mediation board will send an adjudicator to the scene.

The Montour mine was the only trouble spot in the entire Western Pennsylvania coal field today. All mines in Washington, Fayette and Greene counties were reported operating virtually 100 per cent.

According to the men at Montour, the present strike resulted when the company discharged William Bell, union leader, and laid off Francis Helmick, brakeman, the former under pretext he had been drinking, the latter because of disability.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 15.—Information gathered by the Pinchot administration concerning conditions in the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania, will be placed before the NRA arbitration board in Washington today.

ZIEFEL IN OHIO HOSPITAL

Stricken seriously ill late Saturday, William H. Ziefel, former chief clerk to the County Commissioners, was rushed to the Bethesda Hospital at Zanesville, O., from Buckeye Lake, O., according to word received here today.

He had been spending the summer at the Ohio resort for his health.

Ziefel, chief clerk to the County Commissioners under the regime of the late Joseph G. Armstrong, was adjudged guilty of conspiracy to divert county gasoline to his own use last May. Edward Allen, former superintendent of the County Bureau of Motor Vehicles was also adjudged guilty. Both were refused a new trial and are expected to be called for sentence in September.

Overholt Increases Whisky Production

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 15. (AP.)—Whisky production at the Broad Ford distillery of A. Overholt & Co. is being increased in expectation of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. The force of workers is being enlarged 40 per cent.

Three buildings are being erected and new equipment ordered. The plant's daily capacity is 10,000 gallons.

Bride Outwits Burglar Stealing Wedding Gift

Any burglar who tries to steal a bride's wedding gifts deserves to be outwitted.

And outwitted he was, the burglar who forced his way into the apartment of Mrs. Flora Weaver, 24, at 215 Elysian street, Point Breeze.

A bride of a few months, Mrs. Weaver, wife of F. C. Weaver, saw the burglar walking out of their kitchen down the fire escape with her new waffle iron, a wedding gift, in his hand.

She ran to the back door and screamed to the neighbors. Then she ran to the front door and screamed again. The burglar dropped the waffle iron in an alleyway and fled, outstepping the neighbors who gave chase.

And Mrs. Weaver recovered her waffle iron.

local political district leader was taken away from him. He said:

"Many of them contribute money to the district leader's political fund."

Kernochan urged, as did Ameli, that the requirement for unanimous jury verdict be abolished.

Earlier, the terror exhibited by witnesses testifying in racketeering cases was described by Augustine J. Smith, secretary of the New York County Grand Jurors' Association.

Smith told of recent indictments returned against racketeers in the fur industry in which scores of witnesses "with perspiration pouring down their foreheads," pleaded against testifying in fear of the safety of their families and themselves.

SMUGGLING CHARGE

Smith also charged a smuggling ring for aliens existed.

He declared that aged Chinese in this country anxious to return to their native land were substituted for younger Chinese who entered the United States from incoming vessels.

Before the probing sub-committee already were suggestions ranging from federalization of control and punishment for major crimes to establishment of an American replica of "Devil's Island," the famed French penal colony, and the declaration of martial law against criminals, with "drumhead" courts to mete out summary justice.

All yesterday law-enforcing, penal, legal and police experts paraded before Senator Copeland, giving their views on growth of crime and best methods of suppressing it.

One statement which drew considerable attention from Copeland was the declaration of Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing Prison, that there was a definite connection, at least in local aspects, between rackets and politics.

Senator Copeland said today, before the hearing was reconvened:

"Warden Lawes is closer to the criminal element, as warden at Sing Sing, than perhaps any other man in New York."

NATION'S JOB

Out of the first day's hearing, he added, one thought seems to be definitely emerging—that national organization seems to be the only successful way to combat crime. He said:

"The trend of the hearing can lead to but one conclusion. That is that crime is national in organization and in effect and that the only way to combat it is by nationalization of crime data and a national body."

Just what method might be used to work out such a program, he said, was uncertain. Universal fingerprinting, establishment of a national detective force with scientific equipment and laboratory facilities, or a special criminal bureau to work with state and municipal authorities were some of the methods suggested and will be outlined in the report the subcommittee will present to the incoming Congress.

Thief Gets $49,000 Gems From Window

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—A daring thief today smashed the window of a jewelry store in downtown Cleveland and fled on foot with gems valued at more than $49,000.

The loot included one diamond estimated to be worth $29,000. It was an 8½-carat square-cut gem. A diamond ring, also snatched by the thief, was valued at $20,000.

arguments of counsel were not to be considered as testimony.

Verdicts of murder in the first or second degree are possible in this case, the judge said, but manslaughter and assault, possible under the indictment, are not to be considered, because of the nature of the testimony. He said:

TESTIMONY IMPORTANT

"His testimony has been stoutly attacked and defended. It is of great importance and you will submit it to a careful and thorough test. Much of his testimony deals with sex relations. In judging the truth it would be well to remember that sexual influence exerts tremendous power over thoughts and actions."

Judge Fosdick instructed the jury to probe deeply into McMahon's testimony and try to learn the truth. They were asked to seek a motive that would make McMahon give such testimony. The judge added:

"You are at liberty to condemn him as strongly as you want to do."

He warned the jurors that they must be guided by the truth as found in the testimony, regardless of their opinions of the witness.

The judge said some of the experts who testified might not be as able as they thought. The jury would consider this testimony for what they thought it worth, he said.

Previous to closing his charge, Judge Fosdick told the jury not to consider Mrs. Costello's final plea as evidence. He said:

"She was not on the stand as a witness. It was not sworn testimony. You may recall the things she called to your mind and consider them."

"Mr. Foreman and Gentlemen: The District Attorney has spoken. He didn't know my husband. He didn't know me. He said I didn't love my husband. That is not true. I loved him to the end. Please let me go back to my children. Please let me go back to my home. I am innocent."

NERVE BROKEN

Her voice shook with emotion. It was the second time the iron nerve of the woman fighting against possible death in the electric chair had deserted her. The other time was when she testified as her own star witness—when she spoke of the death of her baby, William J., Jr., namesake of "My Bill."

But before she arose the jury had been given another picture by District Attorney Gregg. Speaking almost in a whisper, he said:

"William J. Costello is not here. William J. Costello is dead. I want you in your hearts to recall Bill Costello as he lays there in that cemetery. Remember him as the father of these three children. Remember she took him from this world when he had a right to live. That she snatched him from his children. That she snatched him from this world. Picture him standing before you. See if he isn't saying she murdered me. Don't give her any more chances to murder any one else.'"

If convicted and sentenced to death, Mrs. Costello would be the first woman to go to the electric chair in Massachusetts.

CALL COUGHLIN IN BANK PROBE

DETROIT, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, was served with a subpoena instructing him to appear today as a witness in a grand jury investigation of Detroit's banking situation.

Other witnesses scheduled to testify today are Senator James Couzens, Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the board of the closed First National Bank, Detroit, and possibly Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Father Coughlin engaged in a heated controversy last spring with defenders of Detroit bank executives over the causes for the closing of Detroit's two national banks, the First National and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

U. S. KIDNAPING NET CLOSES IN ON ELEVEN

Gunman's Arrest Links Station Massacre to Urschel Abduction

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The federal government's challenge to the crime world's master minds held a new meaning today with jail bars framing the faces of Harvey Bailey, one of the nation's most desperate gunmen, and 10 other persons arrested in three states.

"They'll never take me alive!"

That's what Bailey once boasted. But when he was aroused from sleep to look up into a machine gun, he changed his mind, and remarked:

FACES MANY CHARGES

The machine-gun slaying of four officers and their prisoner at Kansas City, June 17, and the ransom kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel at Oklahoma City, July 22, are only a few of the crimes charged up to Bailey by authorities. Ransom for Urschel has been reported as high as $200,000.

Urschel not only was present when Bailey was arrested near Paradise, Tex., but he was heavily armed and was in the front ranks of the raiding squad, it was learned here today.

Urschel had met the officers at a Fort Worth rendezvous and, armed with a sawed-off shotgun, was "in the front line" as the heavily armed officers surprised Bailey as he was asleep, it was stated.

FACE LIFE SENTENCE

Charges have been filed, at Oklahoma City, against 11 persons in connection with the kidnaping of the oil millionaire. They were filed under a federal law which provides for a life sentence.

Federal officials withheld the names of those charged, but it was understood they included Bailey, Alfred L. Bates, under arrest in Denver and identified by the Department of Justice as George Bates, a suspect in the Urschel case, and George Kelly, still at large.

In St. Paul, Werner Hanni, chief of the Federal Burau of Investigation, said that Sam J. Kronick, Charles Wolk, William Nelson and Sam Kozberg, under arrest there, will be charged with conspiracy in the Urschel case.

FOUR HELD

Four of five persons arrested with Bailey were held. They were Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Shannon, a son, Armond, and his wife, Mrs. Oleta Shannon.

The fifth person, Earl Brown, was released.

At Washington, William Stanley, assistant to the Attorney General, putting before the nation the facts of the government's decisive, smashing cleanup of the Urschel kidnaping and the Kansas City massacre, pointed out the Urschel case was the first in which the victim's family had notified the federal government.

Bailey was taken at a lonely farm cabin near Paradise, in North Texas, Saturday, but news of his arrest was withheld until yesterday in the hope other members of his gang might return to the rendezvous. Federal operatives, aided by local officers, surprised him. They said they found marked money that had been paid to effect the safe return of the oil operator.

U. S. TO ASSIST CUBA'S TRADE RECOVERY

Roosevelt Would Link Island, Mexico in Sugar Pact

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Ambassador Sumner Welles has assured the new President of Cuba, Dr. Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, that as soon as he completes the formation of his government and gets it functioning, the United States will be prepared to commence trade discussions designed to aid the economic rehabilitation of the island republic.

Welles has informed President De Cespedes the American government will gladly extend a helping hand to Cuba if it embarks on a recovery program, it was learned today.

PROGRAM PROPOSED

As soon as the new government is established, Welles' first step in lending assistance will be to present President Roosevelt's four-point program for a "new deal" in Cuba. This will be presented merely as a suggestion on the part of "friends of Cuba" rather than a proposal from the American government. However, it represents a plan drafted by the President himself prior to his departure from Hyde Park last week. Although the four points in the program have been suggested before as possible methods of bringing about the economic rehabilitation of the island republic, it was Mr. Roosevelt himself who drafted them into a plan.

ROOSEVELT'S 4 POINTS

As drafted by the President, the four points in the program were:

1—Estabblishment of the employes of Cuban sugar and tobacco plantations on small parcels of land on which they could produce their own subsistence when unemployed.

2—Reorganization of the internal and external debts of the Cuban government.

3—Inclusion of Cuba with Mexico and the United States and its possessions in a regional sugar-control agreement, and

4—A new reciprocal tariff agreement between the United States and Cuba designed to improve trade relations.

MACHADO PLANS STAY IN NASSAU

International News Service.

NASSAU, Bahamas, Aug. 15.—Fearful of his life and guarding against any possible revenge attack, Gerardo Machado, fugitive ex-President of Cuba, settled down here today for what may prove a lengthy stay.

He passed the day quietly while rumors spread he was looking for a house here. This gave rise to belief he may elect to remain at Nassau some time, although he hopes to go back to his homeland and anxiously awaits news whether he may return as a free man or as a political offender facing immediate court-martial.

Advices that he brought suitcases crammed with money with him in his mad flight from Havana while mobs pillaged the presidential palace there were officially denied.

It was stated he deposited in a bank here "only as much money as a businessman might deposit in the course of a day's business."

SLAIN BEAUTY'S JEALOUSY TOLD

International News Service.

PASADENA, Cal., Aug. 15.—The morning beautiful Helen Bendowski, 29, owner of an exclusive beauty salon, was found shot to death in the penthouse apartment of her fiance, Harold Wolcott, 33, she suspected Wolcott of having another girl in his apartment and had spied on him, Anthony Manolipolous told police today.

Manolipolous, a candy store owner, said he had assisted Miss Bendowski get to the roof of a building.

Wolcott meanwhile was held in jail and Police Chief Charles Kelley announced he would ask the District Attorney to lodge a murder charge.

Wolcott said he had seen Miss Bendowski shoot herself to death after a quarrel with him early Sunday morning.

Scientists made a "paraffin test" and reported that Miss Bendowski had not fired a gun within the 24 hours preceding her mysterious death.

Ship at Sea Drops Name of Machado

HAVANA, Aug. 15.—(Universal.)—The steamer General Machado, of the Cuban Navigation Company, arrived here today under a new name—Cuba.

On the high seas when word of the downfall of the Machado regime was radioed to the steamer, the ship's officers decided on the change.

his wife before committing suicide:

"I don't want to be a wet blanket, as I cannot enjoy life any more."

He added for the comfort of his family:

"You have all been wonderful to me."

If all of those that "do not enjoy life any more" should suddenly leave it, many would be missing.

THE THING worth while in life is to enjoy it, reasonably, while you can, and try to make it useful to those that depend upon you and to others, after life ceases to be amusing.

It is not enjoyment that makes life worth while. Caesar, struck down in the height of his power, was more to be envied than Lucullus, who was probably as great a soldier, but retired to eat, drink and enjoy.

And Abraham Lincoln, murdered, is more to be envied than any modern thinking up "some new swell party" for Palm Beach or Newport.

NEW VIOLENCE FLARES IN HAVANA

Remnants of Deposed Machado Regime Run Down

SPEED REFORMS

De Cespedes promised to expedite these reforms when he took office, and again when he persuaded the union leaders to end the general strike. He then told International News Service he planned to execute his pledge as soon as possible.

Public interest was divided between these reforms and the campaign to arrest and legally punish the so-called police murderers charged with slaying and torturing 300 youthful political prisoners during the three-year reign of Police Chief Antonio Ainciarte, who was known to be hiding in Havana yesterday. He will be charged with murder if caught.

Two other so-called police "butchers" were under arrest today. They are Sergt. Ortega and Sergt. Lara. Col. Oscar Del Castillo, Havana's newest police chief, declared they would be given a fair trial. He said:

TORTURE TOOL

He showed this correspondent the torture instrument used by Ainciarte and his agents—a sword from a sword fish.

He said this sword was used to stab prisoners because it would cause a poisonous wound, although it did not draw much blood. It also was used to murder some prisoners, Del Castillo said.

The Havana police force is being reorganized because there have been 1,500 deserters from the membership of 3,000. All members accused of brutality and torture are being dismissed.

Col. Del Castillo has seen 33 years of service on the force, and was formerly a chief inspector. He has pledged what he called a "real clean up to end police graft and corruption and cruelty."

The general strike died out completely at 4 a. m. today when the bakers returned to work. They had delayed in accepting the terms, ending the strike because they refused to start work at midday.

STORES REOPENED

All stores were opened as usual and the streets were thronged with people. Praise on all sides was expressed for President Roosevelt, Ambassador Welles and the American government for their part in ending Machado's regime.

Some merchants displayed the American flag in recognition of the American attitude.

The demand for the students for dissolution of Congress and trial of its members who obeyed Machado is not being taken seriously by authorities and probably will be ignored.

At present, the Cuban law seems to prevent either President or the Supreme Court from dissolving Congress. Reforms to be made will probably remedy this situation.

Actually, there is little need to dissolve the Congress, since scores of members have disappeared, mobs having stormed and wrecked their homes. The problem is to elect a new Congress prior to the new general election in November, 1934.

Welles is reported working this out with De Cespedes.

Despite the shooting this morning, the city is much quieter. The destroyer Taylor is expected to leave soon and half the troops sent into the city have returned to their regular posts. Police have resumed normal duty, and regular traffic is again operating, for the first time in 10 days.

3 Race Horse Dopers Sentenced to Pen

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—First conviction in the government's drive to stop the "doping of race horses" were obtained today.

Three men arrested in the raid at Arlington Park race track two weeks ago were sentenced by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindsay to Leavenworth Penitentiary on a charge of sale and possession of narcotics. Chauncey Berger, former exercise boy at Arlington Park, was sentenced to three years, and John Pride, Negro, and William Cooney two years each.

U.S. Aids St. Louis Fight On 'Sleeping Sickness'

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—A united effort was under way today in St. Louis and suburban districts to combat the outbreak of "sleeping sickness" which already has taken six lives.

Dr. J. P. Leake, United States public health epidemiologist, dispatched here from Washington, joined local physicians in their fight against the strange malady, medically known as encephalitis.

Albert Kitsinger, 53, of St. Johns, and David McCulley, 5, of Kirkwood, died of the disease yesterday, while four others have succumbed since the last of July.

Seven new cases of "sleeping sickness" in St. Louis County have brought the number of patients hospitalized to 37, and 10 others were reported in city hospitals.

Central committees to co-ordinate efforts of the various municipalities of Greater St. Louis have been formed.

One committee was named to co-ordinate field activities to control the disease and another to centralize laboratory procedures. Still another group, with the assistance of Dr Leake, is preparing a uniform questionnaire to be used in obtaining case histories of newly reported cases.

Machado Family Escapes Mob in Flight to U.S.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The family of Gerardo Machado, deposed President of Cuba, headed northward aboard a New York train today but the refugees said they did not know where they would go eventually.

Mrs. Machado, wife of the President, sat silent, looking up only when a newspaperman told the family her husband was safe in Nassau. It was the first definite word they had received.

In the party besides Mrs. Machado were Dr. and Mrs. Baldo-Mero Grau, Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Obregon and Mr. and Mrs. Reafael Sanchez, sons-in-law and daughters of the Machados, the Obregan children, Maria Elvira, 5, Nenira, 12, and Josephine, 4, the Sanchez children, Luli, 4, and a baby, and a few family servants.

Heavily armed officers kept guard as the party transferred to a special Pullman.

The family narrowly escaped a mob in a terrifying flight to the gunboat which bore them to Key West, Dr. Grau related. He said:

"We were in a farm house at Batabano where we thought we would be safe.

"At about 8 o'clock Sunday night I received a telephone message—sharp, short and terrifying:

" 'This is a friend,' the voice said, 'Get out of Cuba quick.'

"Most of our suitcases were unpacked, but we grabbed them, threw in clothing and took only four trunks with us. Just as the last of us were pulling off in small boats to the yacht, I heard the noise of the approaching crowd."

JESUIT PRIEST TELLS OF WIDE DESOLATION

Plans Made for Church To Spend Vast Sum On Relief

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 15.—As stoic as he is pious, seldom does Pope Pius XI give way to his emotions before friends or strangers in his great audience hall at the Vatican.

But, International News Service learned today, the Pontiff shed bitter tears not long ago when one of his Jesuits stood before him and recounted the plight of the starving millions in Soviet Russia.

SECRET MISSION

The incident occurred shortly after the Jesuit returned to the Vatican from a secret visit to Russia to carry words of encouragement from the Holy See to Catholics and Christians of all creeds in the land where religion has been officially branded as "the opium of the people" and treated accordingly.

The Jesuit told of the general food shortage in Russia and described how thousands of poor people wander aimlessly across the land in search of enough black bread and dried fish to keep body and soul together. He said:

"We have calculated that between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000 deaths from starvation will occur in Soviet Russian this winter."

PONTIFF IN TEARS

As these words were spoken, the Jesuit was shocked to see tears streaming down the face of the Pope.

At length the Pontiff recovered from his emotions and dried his eyes, but before the audience came to a close he discussed with the Jesuit plans for sending hundreds of Catholics into Russia by the fall of this year to organize relief.

MURDER HINTED IN HITCH-HIKING GIRL'S DEATH

Body Found in River, Fiance and Cafe Man Quizzed

KITTANNING, Pa., Aug. 15.—Not wholly discounting the theory that Ada May Rearic, 21, of Margaret, had been murdered before her body was thrown into the Allegheny River, Deputy Sheriff Harry Walker today ordered an autopsy.

Lack of marks on the body, found floating in the river near here a few hours after she had been seen on the streets of Kittanning, turned authorities to a search for trace of poison under the theory of murder.

Among those questioned by police were Harold Gregg, 22, of West Kittanning, to whom she was reported engaged, and William Barthel, restaurant man. Police said they learned that Miss Rearic had accompanied Gregg, his brother William and another young woman to an evangelistic meeting at Worthington. After the services they drove to the Gregg home and the two men left on a business mission.

The body was discovered by Harry Holly, according to Police Chief Sam Dinsmore. The police chief said the girl had been seen in Kittanning at 1:30 a. m. today by a night patrolman, and an investigation revealed she had thumbed a ride into town from two men.

Barthel said he and H. Myers had picked the girl up on the Butler-Freeport road and brought her to town about midnight.

A preliminary examination revealed there was no water in the girl's lungs, police said.

MERCY MURDER STIRS PUBLIC

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—A storm of controversy raged here today over the murder of a month-old baby.

Frank W. Fabian, Jr., 21, handsome young athlete and physical training instructor, confessed he murdered his illegitimate daughter as an "act of mercy," because her face was disfigured. He stabbed her to death with a large carving fork.

In a frenzy of remose he attempted to kill himself in the county jail. Later, he announced he would plead guilty to a charge of murder.

Medical men, ministers and others were divided in their view over the crime. Some contended Fabian had done right to rid the world of a monstrosity who would have lived a life of misery, while others maintained the youth was guilty of cold-blooded murder.

Fabian said the mother of his daughter was Miss Ellen Rautio, 24, a pretty Swedish girl he sent to her former home in Belt, Mont., after the baby was born. He said:

"I was horrified when I saw the baby and decided I would not permit the child to go through life disfigured."

Pretzel Twisters All Tangled Up Seeking Jobs

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The pretzel twisters got all tangled up.

The American Cone and Pretzel Company, employing 200 men, advertised for 25 more experienced twisters for the night shift. Eight hundred men are estimated to have answered.

"Goodness! I never dreamed there were so many."

So exclaimed George Mull, night manager. He called police who untangled the pretzel twisters sufficiently for traffic to weave through the holes in their ranks.

EX-WIFE JAILED IN TORCH DEATH

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—A penny box of matches, a porcelain wash basin, and a quart of gasoline supposedly used to burn Earl Hanson to death brought his divorced wife, May, 38, to a jail cell today, although she declared her innocence of any crime.

Authorities said someone apparently had thrown the gasoline from the basin on Hanson as he sat in his automobile, and ignited the fuel with a single match from the box.

Hanson's body and his automobile burst into flames a few moments after he had returned his daughter, June, 12, to her mother's home near here. Mrs. Hanson said she believed someone holding a grudge against her was the killer. Viewing the body, she exclaimed:

"Oh, what a terrible way to die! How could anyone do it? I'd ten times rather it was me."

Mrs. Hanson said she purchased the matches last Thursday, that she bought the gasoline Sunday for use in starting an automobile, and that the basin was one she used to water chickens. She said they had disappeared from her home.

MARY TO KEEP 'PICKFAIR'

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Pickfair, the home where Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks attained the name of Hollywood's most idyllic couple, is not for sale—not yet, at least.

That was the only inkling of a possible reconcilliation between herself and her dashing husband that Miss Pickford would give as she chatted in her suite at the Sherry Netherlands.

Youthful in appearance and cheery as a child on a holiday, the golden-haired Mary prattled of bicycling and the old biograph days, of authorship and art, of music and motion pictures.

But she would not chat about Douglas Fairbanks or divorce, of reconciliation or a permanent separation, nor of selling Pickfair and retiring. Instead, she observed:

"I do not believe Mr. Fairbanks will become an English citizen, despite reports. Pickfair is not for sale—at present. I will remain in America for a few months, certainly. As for the suggestion of a Paris divorce or reconciliation, I will not discuss them."

HOLD AUDITIONS FOR OPERA

Auditions for primary roles in the Pittsburgh Metropolitan Grand Opera Company will be held in the auditorium of Duquesne University tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Nino Ruisi, baritone of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Dr. James Reuterkus, dean of music, Duquesne University, will be in charge. The new local opera company, headed by Antonio Certo, general manager, hopes to revive grand opera in Pittsburgh at Syria Mosque, beginning in October. Present plans call for three operas a month during a six-month season, to be presented at popular prices.

A large group of Pittsburgh professional and business men are backing the new company, according to Certo

WOMAN SLAIN, TIED TO TREE

DOVER, N. J., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Miss Anna Ulm, 45-year-old summer resident of Mount Arlington, and secretary to a New York chiropractor, was beaten to death Sunday and her body lashed to a tree trunk, police said today.

When the spinster's body was found in lonely Hickory Nut Hollow Sunday night, police announced the woman had committed suicide. This story, Lieut. Edward Gerhart said today, was a move to assist the police investigation of the murder.

No clues were found to the identity of the slayer, nor has a motive been established.

Miss Ulm, whose home was in New York, was secretary to Dr. Otto Rautenbach, her sister's husband. She had been spending the summer with Mrs. Rautenbach in a cottage on Lake Hopatcong.

Sunday morning she told her sister she was going into the woods to pick wild flowers. When she failed to return by mid-afternoon, the police were notified and a searching party found the body at 10 p. m.

KATHRYN FREE, PLANS CAREER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Kathryn Carver was prepared to resume her career in motion pictures today after divorcing Adolphe Menjou, the actor.

The court heard Miss Carver, granted her a decree, and approved a $150,000 property settlement.

Miss Carver in brief declared:

"Mr. Menjou said—and kept saying—that marriage did not go with his position in motion pictures. He said he didn't want to be married. That as far as he was concerned, marriage as an institution was a failure and he was better off fancy-free. So nervous did his conduct make me that twice I had to go to the hospital."

Wilkinsburg Girls To Be Sent Home

Three Wilkinsburg girls, who police say headed for fame on a Broadway stage, were to be returned to their homes today after being halted by State Police at Greensburg. Garnette Kinsinger, 16, of 1423 Hunter street, Helen Schmittle, 18, of 905 Belmont street, and Elizabeth Gilbert, 17, of Frankstown road, were detained Sunday night by police after Mrs. Kinsinger had broadcast an alarm.

State Order Shuts Mexican Churches

MEXICO, D. F., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Churches in the state of Queretaro were closed yesterday following promulgation of a new religious law permitting one priest for each 5,000 inhabitants. The churches closed inasmuch as the priests had not had time to register. The state has a population of approximately 1,000,000.

Brooklyn Bullfighter Aims at Comeback

MADRID, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Sidney Franklin, Brooklyn bullfighter, now plans to enter a hospital about September 1 to receive treatment with a view to complete cure from a wound received in the ring in 1930. Thereafter he plans to engage in bullfighting again.

He has finished the translation of the novel, "Currito de la Cruz," of which the scene is laid in the bullring. The book was written by Alejandro Perez Lujin, who died several years ago.

NINE ON YACHT SAVED AT SEA

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Nine wealthy New Yorkers, including two women, were rescued today by coastguardsmen from the Race Point station after the 59-foot sloop Katherine, cruising with the New York Yacht Club fleet, grounded on a sand bar, 100 yards off shore, a short distance from the Race Rip tidal section, graveyard of many stout craft. Aboard the sloop were A. L. Smithers, the owner, his wife, a woman guest, and six men.

Waves were breaking over the sloop when the rescue was effected after one of the men aboard rowed ashore in a dingy to summon aid. A power boat was summoned from the Woods Hole coast guard station to attempt pulling the Katherine off the sand bar. The Katherine was bound from Vineyard Haven.

FAMOUS CAFE CLOSES HERE

Politicians of the old and new generation are scurrying to new haunts for lunch and dinner. The Union restaurant, Diamond street eating place for judges and jury, lawyers, politicians and newspapermen for more than a score of years, has closed.

Surrounded by new eating places with the advent of beer, the place where many a mayor and councilman was chosen and beaten—in argument as well as fact—gave way several days ago. It has been in its present location more than a decade. Formerly it occupied a basement stand in the Frick Building.

It was strictly a meeting and eating place for men, although a special room for the juries set aside from the main dining hall, admitted women on the juries.

Weather Conditions.

High pressure, centered over West Virginia, overlies the eastern half of the country, with attendant fair weather and temperatures slightly below the seasonal normal. A trough of low pressure, central over North Dakota, extends southwestward over the Southern Rocky Mountains to Arizona. It has been accompanied by higher temperatures in the Dakotas and Manitoba, but by only light, scattered rains, as yet. There have been showers, mostly light, along the Middle Atlantic coast, and in the southern states since yesterday morning. High temperatures have been confined to the southern states, the western plains, the Rocky Mountains and portions of the plateau region.

ADOLPHE MENJOU

7-Foot Boy 'Picked On,' Flees to Forest Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—James H. Scott, a 19-year-old boy who is 7 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 275 pounds, grew tired of his big brothers and sisters picking on him, so he left home and joined the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Capt. W. E. Corkill, commanding the conservation camp at Marion, N. C., in a report to Robert Fechner, director of conservation work, claimed Scott was the largest forest worker in any camp in the country.

The director's attention was called to him when an application came for a pair of 17½ triple "E" shoes, trousers 44 by 44 and an 8½ sized hat.

Corkill reported in response to Fechner's questions that Scott required two cots for sleeping, one from the waist up and one from the waist down.

His reach from finger tip to finger tip is 7 feet 9¾ inches and his hands, measuring around the palm 11½ inches, are too large for ready made gloves.

His nick name is Big Boy and he tells those who inquire why he joined the Conservation Corps:

"Because my big brothers and sisters imposed upon me."

Nudists Want to Swim In Philadelphia Pools

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Mayor Moore had another worry today—nudism.

In addition to considering such vital public business as budget estimates and a deficiency bill, the chief executive of one of America's most conservative big cities was faced with an unprecedented problem:

Shall sons and daughters of Father Penn disport themselves nude in a mid-city swimming pool? Or shall police be summoned to quell such an ultra-modern custom?

The question arose as the leader of a nudist cult, which he said numbers more than 200, asked police to sanction a gathering of the cult at the swimming pool twice weekly.

Police promptly passed the question to the Mayor, who refused to be quoted for immediate publication—but he had plenty to say "off the records."

STEEL LEADERS CONFER WITH NRA HEADS

group—some urging price fixing and others opposing it.

This determination to press through the codes for the major industries employing millions of men followed conferences between Johnson and President Roosevelt yesterday.

Although the President in creating the recovery administration several months ago indicated a belief that the basic industries would be under codes very quickly, disagreements within the industries and objections particularly to the collective bargaining labor provisions of the industrial act have left them lagging.

With Labor Day set as a tentative date for bringing the bulk of the nation's employes under some form of wage and hour regulation, it was generally accepted in administration circles that the Chief Executive was standing firmly behind moves to force prompt action by the larger groups.

All the while, the Blue Eagle's agents fastened inquiring eyes on Pennsylvania's troubled coal regions, with K. M. Simpson, Gen. Johnson's deputy, forecasting "something quite interesting on coal before the week-end."

PINCHOT HURLS CHARGE

Entangling a decision on coal were personally delivered complaints from Gov. Pinchot that the strike settlement reached after conferences between the warring factions and Johnson was being violated.

Johnson put the problem in the hands of his bituminous coal mediation board. Sending a field investigator into Fayette County was expected to result.

In the meantime, President Roosevelt summoned his Recovery Council into session today for an agreement upon a new plan coordinating more closely the federal drive toward better times.

Under discussion were not only the business man and the wage earner, but the farmer and those who are being maintained through charitable sources.

U. S. Speeds Probe Of NRA Violations

BALTIMORE, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—With hundreds of complaints against displayers of the Blue Eagle piling up in the NRA headquarters here, the grievance committee today was investigating each case in preparation to ordering the insignia from the windows if the charge has been proven.

Working hours as high as 92 hours a week, pay as low as $2.38 a week, discharge of employes and means of avoiding the provisions of the blanket code were included in the complaints. Some of them were:

Mail order house—Working billing department 8¾ hours daily with one hour charged to employe's time, half hour for lunch and 15 minutes for "pep" talk threatening dismissal if more work is not done.

Oyster house—Laying off shuckers paid $6 a week until NRA investigator calls to find only proprietor and brother working there and then re-hiring shuckers.

WORK UNTIL MIDNIGHT

Ink firm — Working employes from 7:30 a. m. to midnight with no extra pay.

Hardware company — Discharging girl working there six years when she told employer he should join the NRA.

Restaurant — After raising salaries to $15, deducting $5 for employes' meals.

Tie manufacturer — Sending work home to be done by 15-year-old girls, paying them 29 to 50 cents a day.

Meat market—Making employes swear they are members of the firm to escape minimum wage of $15.

92 HOURS PER WEEK

Cleaning establishment—Working employes 92 hours a week at $4 a week.

Filing station — Working employes 60 hours a week and making them solicit business in the evening.

Garment manufacturer — Employing girls from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m. at $2.38 a week.

Department store—Laying off all trucks and seven truck drivers.

Chemical company — Making employes work nine hours for eight hours' pay.

Mail order house—Having time cards punched by others than employes to show 40 hours when employes work 48 hours a week.

The identity of the complainants or accused firms was not revealed by the committee.

Girl Killed, 7 Hurt In Motor Collision

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Viola Vakka, 23, of Erie, died early today from a skull fracture suffered in an automobile accident which injured seven others.

Miss Vakka was riding in a truck operated by Earl Mook, 21, which collided with a car from Cambridge Springs, driven by George Canfield, 19.

NRA LEGALITY ATTACKED IN COURT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The constitutionality of the National Recovery Act was fought over in iDstrict of Columbia Supreme Court today with the government defending it and an attorney for Texas oil refiners asserting it could not "be sustained on any ground."

The attack on the legislation under which the administration is carrying on its vast program for industrial restoration was made by F. W. Fischer, arguing for an injunction against recent federal orders prohibiting interstate shipment of oil produced in violation of state conservation regulations.

ORDERS DEFENDED

Issuance of these orders by Secretary Ickes was defended by Charles Fahy, acting solicitor of the Interion Department, who filed a brief holding the act constitutional and contending the federal government had the power to control interstate movements of commodities for the general welfare.

Fischer said:

"I do not think the National Recovery Act can be sustained on any ground."

It was his answer to Justice Joseph Cox, who asked whether he thought the act was based on federal powers over interstate commerce or power given to the federal government to meet emergency conditions. He added:

"The act complained of is unconstitutional and void for the reason that it is an attempt to delegate power to the President of the United States which cannot be delegated, but must be exercised by Congress alone."

Fischer then cited court decisions.

WEIGHTY QUESTION

He contended the federal government's power over interstate Commerce related solely to its regulation and did not permit prohibition of interstate commerce. He told Justice Cox that the court now was called upon "to determine one of the most weighty questions that has arisen since the adoption of the Constitution."

This is especially true, Fischer said, in view of "the apparent public opinion that the constitutional guarantees should be brushed aside and abandoned on account of the unemployment and depression that exists throughout the country in the hope that by conferring legislative powers upon the President he can bring about a relief of our distress."

This was the first court challenge of the constitutionality of the recovery act as well as the initial test of the power of the federal government to help the states in controlling the production and distribution of oil.

6 Firemen Carried To Safety at Blaze

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Six firemen, overcome while fighting a blaze in a printing plant near the Delaware River Bridge to Camden, N. J., were carried to safety by comrades last night. The fire destroyed presses and other equipment of Philip H. Meyer & Co., and required rerouting of bridge traffic.

CIVIC LEADERS URGE SUPPORT FOR NRA

While hundreds of additional employers swell the total of local pledges supporting President Roosevelt and the NRA program, business and civic leaders today were urging co-operation of business and consumers.

Two addresses were scheduled by Chamber of Commerce speakers in that organization's leadership for Pittsburgh's part in the national drive. Attorney George W. Negley was to speak before the Pittsburgh Council of Catholic Women at its headquarters, 5216 Penn avenue, this afternoon.

ENGINEERS MEETING

The local group of the National Association of Practical Engineers will hear Mark Egan, of the chamber's staff, at a meeting tonight in the Frick Ice Machine Company building, 1117 Penn avenue.

Further discussion of the code of the restaurant industry will be taken up by the Western Pennsylvania Restaurant Association. It meets tonight in the Hotel William Penn.

Postmaster James B. Anderson announced that 12,963 employers have filed certificates of compliance. Yesterday's certificates totaled 777.

Mayor John S. Herron last night pleaded for co-operation of employers and consumers in a radio talk over WCAE.

HERRON'S PLEA

Citing the success of President Roosevelt's efforts to increase employment and thereby create buying power, the Mayor said:

"The success of this great enterprise can only come by the co-operation of all our people. It is an obligation resting on the conscience of the American people."

Definite improvement in business was cited by Howard Heinz, president of the H. J. Heinz Company and vice chairman of the food industries board executive committee. He told the concern's sales managers meeting here this week from all parts of the country that the canners' code was pleasing to him. Heinz revealed that additional employment has been created under the factory's 35-hour week.

General Electric On Code, Boosts Pay

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 15. (AP.)—Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric Company, announced yesterday wage increases totaling $8,000,000 and addition of 2,000 employes to the company's payroll.

Mr. Swope, after a meeting of General Electric executives, said the code for the national electrical manufacturing industry would go into effect today, but that pay rises and hour reductions would be effective as of August 7 in his company.

"Washed" in Beauty! Farradan American Orientals

WOULD BE $125 IF WE HAD TO BUY THEM NOW!

"Washed" in a scientifically compounded bath that gives them the lustrous, shimmering beauty of the originals from which they are copied. The kind of a rug you can imagine an old, skilled craftsman dreaming first in his mind, from the initial crossing of warp with woof to the final bath that gives it its glossy softness. Yes, you'd know the very minute you saw these rugs that they were made to sell for far more than 79.95. You'd know it from the thickness. You'd know it when you tried to separate the close, firm pile and saw with what faithfulness priceless Persian rugs have been copied, even in their precious irregularities. But $125 was too much money for the average budget this last year, though the rugs were well worth it. Two months ago the maker asked the Gimbel Group to take the entire lot at a reduced price. Fortunately for you, we did, though our share in Pittsburgh was only 65 rugs. B. & L. HEADS REJECT HOME LOAN BONDS

Building and loan officials in the Pittsburgh district are not accepting the bonds of the Federal Home Owners' Loan Corporation in spite of an opinion that they may do so, given by Horace Russell, general counsel for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

Russell last night told members of the Pittsburgh Home Loan Bank, including many building and loan officials, they may accept the bonds of the corporation whenever it seems that the alternative is to foreclose on property.

A. O. Horner, president of the Allegheny County League of Building and Loan Association, today again declared it is illegal for the association to accept the bonds.

BACK DECISION

Building and loan men here appear to share his opinion, and say that a decision from the state attorney general at Harrisburg will be required to clear up the question.

Russell declared the Home Owners' Loan Corporation bonds represent better security in many cases than the mortgages, and that the building and loan associations may take the bonds in any instance where they are forced to a choice between that and foreclosing. He said:

"This is an inherent power of the investor to protect itself by foreclosing on the house and lot or take the best it can get for its security."

LOANS MOUNTING

Russell revealed that the 12 Federal Home Loan Banks now held loans equivalent to more than 25 per cent of the total bills discounted by the 12 Federal Reserve banks.

Ralph H. Richards, executive vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Pittsburgh, announced that $6,100,000 has been loaned by the bank here.

Other speakers included T. D. Webb, of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Ernest T. Trigg, of Philadelphia, and William E. Best, of Pittsburgh.

U. S. MAY SEND BOYS TO SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The administration is seriously considering a plan to send college boys back to school through federal relief funds.

Robert M. Hutchins, president of Chicago University, is sponsoring the campaign in the interest of taking youths out of the contest for jobs by married men.

The proposition was put up to President Roosevelt today in a conference with Hutchins, Harry L. Hopkins, director of the federal relief, and Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator.

The President is weighing the question of use of government money. Johnson, who is trying to make new jobs, and Hutchins, who is trying to relieve those without jobs, are inclined to approve it, it is understood in official quarters.

Mr. Hutchins is confident that if the youths of America who have not finished school and are still unable to pay for the completion of their courses are removed from the drive for new jobs, it will make more room for those who really need them.

U. S. TO PROBE PENNA. STRIKES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The National Labor Board today took decisive action to end labor trouble in Pennsylvania.

Acting Chairman Leo Wolman sent a telegram to Pottsville shirt factory owners demanding to know why they had not kept their promise to send representatives back here this week to discuss plans for ending the strike of 4,000 workers.

After a meeting here last week the representatives of the factory owners said they would have to confer with the owners and report here early this week.

The coal committee of the labor board prepared to send investigators into Pennsylvania to sift complaints that operators are not abiding by the terms on which the coal strike was settled.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, participated in a conference today at which the Pennsylvania situation was discussed.

Having already received written complaints by Pennsylvania miners the labor board was informed that a miners delegation may come to Washington.

International K. C. Convention Opens

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—With more than 300 delegates on hand, the fifty-first international convention of the Knights of Columbus opened here today.

A resolution was ready for presentation to the general assembly today, promising complete support of the NRA codes by employers who are members of the order.

400 Workers Strike At Woolen Plant

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Four hundred employes of the Berkeley Woolen Company struck today, demanding recognition of their union and reinstatement of a small group of employes discharged two weeks ago.

The strikers said they had orders to picket peacefully.

Johnson Warned To Take Rest Or Get 'Fired'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, received orders yesterday from President Roosevelt to quit working so hard and take a rest. He was warned that he would be fired if he didn't.

Johnson was asked by newspapermen as he left the White House.

"Are you going to do it?"

He replied:

"No. I'm getting along fine.

Then he hurried back to his office.

GROCERY CHIEF WARNS STORES

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—In a communication to members of the chain food and grocery distribution industry, F. H. Massmann, president of the National Chain Store Association, yesterday asserted that the 48-hour maximum employe work week basis under the food and grocery code "must not be confused with the store operating hours."

He quoted President Roosevelt and National Recovery Act administrators as emphasizing that it is the administration's desire that store hours in vogue prior to June 16, 1933, be continued as nearly as possible and that if any change is made the minimum should not be below 63 hours per week in the food and grocery industry.

The communication urged members of the association to give effective co-operation to the recovery plan by refusing to fall in line with any local store hour plan that goes below the stipulated basis, declaring "it is the intention that food and grocery distributors employ more help to take care of our business for the normal operating week."

REALTORS HERE WORK ON CODE

A special meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards has been called in Chicago next Saturday to consider a code for real estate under the National Recovery Act.

The members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board who will attend are L. T. Stevenson, South Hills broker, and J. W. Cree, Jr., manager of the Denny estate.

The call for the meeting follows conferences recently held with the National Recovery Administration in Washington.

With something like 1,000 codes already before the Recovery Administration, it is expected to be some weeks before a national real estate code can receive final official action.

Meantime, the National Association has been designated by the administration to pass temporarily on petitions for exemptions from the blanket code by real estate firms that suffer too great hardships under it.

'BEAUTY' CODE BANS $1 WAVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The dollar wave is outlawed in a code adopted by beauty shop operators last night. The minimum cost of a permanent wave, if the code is accepted by NRA officials at Washington, will be approximately $7.50 in the larger cities. Elimination of cut-rate prices is designed to prevent unfair competition.

Under the code, a finger wave would cost at least 65 cents and a manicure 60 cents.

The code, drafted by a committee of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association, was adopted at a meeting of approximately 4,000 owners and operators of beauty shops. Throughout the country, the trade engages an estimated 80,000 persons.

Farmers End Milk Strike in New York

ALBANY, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—New York state's milk strike, called August 1 by farmers in an effort to force the state Milk Control Board to guarantee them 45 per cent of the retail price of milk, officially was at an end today.

Members of the board were told it was called off when several hundred dairymen from the central part of the state staged a peaceful demonstration on the capitol steps against present milk prices. Dissatisfied farmers will meet Thursday in Utica.

Labor Violation Blamed on Army

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Sidney Moyer, on trial for violating state labor laws, testified an officer of the Army Quartermaster Department ordered him to disregard the labor laws to rush a government job to completion. He asserted:

"The government was on my neck every day to complete an order for 10,000 trousers for the civilian conservation corps."

Hope to Complete Film Code Next Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Sidney R. Kent, co-ordinator of production and distribution codes for the motion picture industry, said yesterday a complete code for the film business would be ready by Tuesday.

He said separate regulations for production distribution and exhibition of films will be submitted to the Washington authorities as soon as drafted, and will then be welded into one complete code.

NRA SPURS WAR ON PROFITEERS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Formation of a new research council to aid in the promised war of the National Recovery Administration on profiteers was under consideration by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson today.

This was disclosed by Johnson after Prof. William F. Ogburn, of the University of Chicago, had created a stir by criticizing the plans of the Recovery Administration to guard the consumer.

Prof. Ogburn, who refused to remain on the Consumers' Advisory Board headed by Mrs. Mary Rumsey, said the policy of the NRA was "admirable," but criticized the plans for making it effective.

Gen. Johnson said:

"The only question is whether we set up our own research board or whether we continue with the machinery we have."

The row over the treatment of consumers was expected to reach a head when Mrs. Rumsey returns to the capital.

SEEK U. S. CASH FOR WHARF JOB

In a resolution adopted by Council, Mayor John S. Herron and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang are directed to apply to federal authorities for the financing of waterfront improvement and the new postoffice building ramp.

The resolution, presented by Councilman W. Y. English, says the proposed allocation of federal funds for highway improvements in Pennsylvania, submitted by the State Highway Department to the Federal Advisory Board, made inadequate provision for work to be thus financed in Pittsburgh.

Public Works Office to Open in Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Maj. Albert E. Gastrock, newly appointed executive secretary of the State Advisory Board of the Federal Public Works Administration, says offices of the state board will be opened in Harrisburg within a few days.

The board will have supervision over all Pennsylvania public works projects which are to be financed with federal funds.

SAYS RED FOES BLOCK TRADE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15. — A "wave of anti-recognition propaganda" has seriously delayed efforts of the agricultural adjustment administration to bring about a big export movement of cotton and wheat to Russia, Former Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, declared today. He said:

"When the Reconstruction Finance Corporation recently made a loan to finance a relatively small, though important, movement of cotton to Russia, the propagandists immediately got busy. They argued that American trade with Russia could be developed without our government recognizing the Russian government.

"This propaganda had a highly unfavorable effect on Soviet officials.

"They want recognition—they want to deal with the United States through the front door and not through the back door.

"A situation that gave great promise of increased export trade to the United States has frozen up as a result of these developments."

THOUGHTS and THINGS

THE business of living, when boiled down and all the froth skimmed off, is just a matter of thinking.

Each of us is continually thinking ideas of our own and swapping them for the ideas of others. If there is a famine of outside ideas we shrivel up ourselves. Children with "nobody to play with" are unhappy and unmanageable.

From thinking with our heads to doing with our hands is but a little step . . . and then our thoughts become things.

It is because men of America are so unfettered in their thinking and doing that this country is such a fine place to live in. It is also because these thoughts are freely radiated and spread broadcast, in the distribution of manufactured things and in the distribution of the facts about them (advertising), that this country is such a fine place to live in.

The originator of an idea is not much better off than before he originated it till he gets some one else to absorb it and enjoy it and benefit by it.

The man or woman surrounded by better thoughts and things, but who pays not the slightest attention to them, is not much better off than the one with "nobody to play with."

The advertisements in the papers are thoughts—telling you about the things that other men and women have created for your happiness. Read the ads. They are the voices from hundreds of thousands of looms, shops, foundries, studios, laboratories, where millions of minds are turning pleasant thoughts into worth-while things for your comfort.

TROOPS GUARD MAN FROM MOB

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—National Guardsmen were mobilized today to protect a wounded Negro who escaped a lynching party which killed two others indicted with him in the slaying of a white girl.

The Negro, Elmore Clark, was found late yesterday in a shed at the home of a Negro in Vance. Sheriff R. L. Shamblin, who had been leading a search since the lynching Saturday, said Clark was frightened and suffering from three wounds in his thighs. He told officers members of the mob were masked.

Clark, with Dan Pippen, Jr., 18, and A. T. Harden, was indicted in the slaying of Miss Vaudine Maddox, 21, in Tuscaloosa County.

Threatened violence against the Negroes in jail here led Sheriff Shamblin to attempt to remove them to Birmingham for safe keeping. Early Sunday two carloads of masked men hemmed in the car in which the Negroes were handcuffed together and forced the officers to surrender them.

Several hours later the bodies of Pippen and Harden, riddled with bullets, were found about a mile from Woodstock in the woods.

WEST'S DECLINE SEEN BY BAKER

BANFF, Alta., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson administration and leader of the United States group attending the Institute of Pacific Relations, holds that the institutions of the western world have failed. At the inaugural dinner last night Baker said:

"We are standing at the parting of the ways; we are puzzled and bewildered."

"Our world like yours has been stricken, our institutions have failed."

The western world, he said, might be bettered if it could acquire some of the philosophy of the east.

"We may hope for a better day for our descendants than we have fashioned for ourselves."

Fliers Mistake Boat For Target, Kill 2

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Machine guns added a new hazard to holiday makers on the Kent coast today when Jean Chesterton, 23, and his sister were shot and killed by a Royal Air Force squadron which mistook their rowboat for a target.

The youth and his sister rowed into the line of fire while the squadron was engaged in machine gun practice at the mouth of the Thames.

Britain Planning 100 New War Planes

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—If the forthcoming sesion of the disarmament conference fails to reach an agreement regarding limitation of air forces throughout the world, Britain is planning to build 100 new high-speed fighting planes and a new squadron of flying boats for the Navy, the London Daily Herald said today.

Don't Discard

Your Too-Short

Shoes

Horne's can make them longer—and narrow shoes wider. It sounds like magic, but our skilled workmen relast them and put an entirely new sole on your shoes.

We convert shabby suede into smooth leather. And dye (not paint) your leather shoes, so the color will stay on.

WAR HERO HONORED :-: New Castle Fighter In 'Lives at Stake' :-: ON THE AIR

How to Enjoy Leisure Under NRA Told

A Western Pennsylvania hero is honored on an NBC-WCAE program tonight at 10, when "Lives at Stake" reveals the heroism of Capt. Edgar G. Hamilton, New Castle man, former student and onetime editor of the Carnegie Tech Tartan, and now the only American officer in the romantic French Foreign Legion.

Capt. Hamilton, during an engagement with African tribesmen in the Atlas Mountains, was seriously wounded rescuing a fellow soldier of fortune under heavy enemy fire.

President Roosevelt's plans for developing the vast water power resources of the Tennessee Valley, including the great Muscle Shoals Dam, are revealed to the radio audience over WCAE at 10:30. Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the President's Tennessee Valley Authority, will explain how the development will benefit seven southern states in particular, and the United States in general.

With the National Recovery Act shortening the working hours of millions, the question arises, "What to do with the longer periods of leisure?"

The National Recreation Association goes on the air tonight at 7:15 over a nation-wide NBC-KDKA network to supply the answer.

The association sees two aces in the "New Deal"—first, economic recovery, and second, personal recovery of strength and spirit in the spare time provided. Dr. John H. Finley and Col. H. Edmund Bullis, authorities on the mental and healthful aspects of recreation, are the principal speakers.

Grand opera, light opera, comic opera—they're all on the air tonight. The chorus of the Metropolitan Opera, singing with the Philharmonic Orchestra, offers selections from "Carmen" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" over KDKA at 9. "The Beggar Student" is presented by the National Light Opera Company over the same station at 8. And Channon Collinge concludes his presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" over WJAS at 10:45.

Frank and Julia Crumit unearth two mildewed ditties on their plantation program tonight: "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie" and "Way Down in My Heart." They are heard over WCAE at 8.

* * *

The Farmerettes have their inning at the Fair and on the air, today. And why not? Wasn't Ceres the goddess of agriculture? In observance of Farm Women's Day at a Century of Progress, Mrs. Charles W. Sewell and Mrs. Grace E. Frysinger, women leaders in the agricultural field, speak to the farm women of the nation. A women's chorus of 80 voices furnishes the music. The program is carried by KDKA at 4 this afternoon.

Three embryo radio artists are heard in a WWSW recital at 7:30. Mary Louise Rice, Robert Moore and Anna Marie McConnell, musical students, present a program of the classics.

After forty—what? An NBC-KDKA network broadcasts a debate at 4:45 on the question, "Does Life Begin at Forty?" Walter Pitkin, author, will contend that 40 is "o-o-only the beginning!" William Harlan Hale, magazine editor, will uphold the negative.

New Fire Chief Program Goes Up in Smoke

By AIRCASTER

Figuratively, and not unappropriately, the Tuesday night fire chief program, wherein Taylor Holmes, in the role of Ed Wynn's quaint relative, Wamp Carlton, et all, have been featured, has gone up in smoke.

Joe Cook

Instead of the usual line-up tonight, a variety show, retaining the Vorhess orchestra, Graham McNamee and the commercial announcements, will be thrown together, and the guest of the occasion, who must tread carefully over the embers of the ruined firehouse, will be Joe Cook, who may possibly imitate four Hawaiians.

"What," the casual customer may ask, "happened to Taylor Holmes?"

It is all very simple. Taylor up and complained to the headmen of the program that he was ruining his reputation by using the poor and scant comedy material written for him. He didn't think he was doing himself or the show, not to mention the public, any favor, by wafting innanities penned by gentlemen who were virtual amateurs in comedy writing.

The huddle of executives was without excitement and was very pleasant, and when it ended, everybody seemed in agreement that a new show was necessary, even if ony a few hours remained to slap one together. And that's how it stands.

Holmes has two new sponsors on his trail, and with Ed Wynn delayed by film emergencies in Hollywood, one becomes curious to know whether the fire chief show will remain on the air until the perfect fool is ready to return.

Lennie Hayton, who likes his little joke, went out Saturday, bought a regular copy of "Learn to Croon," mailed it to Bing Crosby, and enclosed a note which read: "This means you!"

Frank Parker returns from Chicago October 1, and will resume warbling with the show featuring Jessica Dragonette . . . Tommy McLaughlin returns to the waves at WABC, September 29, as "The Romantic Bachelor." . . . Harry Horlick and the Gypsies have signed for another 52 weeks.

Paul Robeson, famous Negro actor and singer, finds radio singing a strenuous job. It has got him "Just about all in," he says.

"But how can that be?" asked Bill Lundell, announcer, who recently interviewed Robeson over the air. "You—an all-American football star—with your tremendous build—your apparent giant strength?"

"But that was about nine years ago, and since that time I've become a prima donna. My singing," countered the husky, dusky singer, "has made me very, very delicate."

Gebhardt Reunion To Be Held Sunday

The fifth annual Gebhardt reunion will take place in Hoffer Park, Middletown, Sunday. The Italian band of Hershey will play special sacred music. There will be games for children, and a general program in the afternoon.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Babe Ruth, our newest globe-trotter, has the easy familiarity with his radio audience that was displayed by Jack Dempsey. He faced the offerings of Harry Keck as he does those on the diamond and banged out home-run answers to all the questions asked.

More remarkable, perhaps, is to see the reaction of his presence on Young America. The youngsters worship him, adulations gleams in their eyes, yet with no attendant awe.

It was "Hello, Babe," and "H'Ya, Babe," then an eloquent, speech-defying smile.

Mrs. Walter Dameron, 3412 Perrysville avenue, shoots along a suggestion that might help business. She writes: 'I am a bride of one month and realize every home needs a good newspaper, so I want the Sun-Telegraph delivered to my house."

George Judge, earnest correspondent from the C. C. C. camp at Natural Bridge, Va., postcards that the local boys are well and happy.

Heard also from William Oxenreiter, Martin avenue, doing the Fair as a grocery store contest winner. He wants the people who saved votes for him to know that he's having a good time and wishes you were etc., etc.

Are there any cellar driers listening today? Mrs. Wilson, New Kensington, complains her cellar is made a nuisance by dampness that she can't get rid of nor discover its cause. C'mon we need ideas for Mrs. Johnston.

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Paul Gannon sings the ever-popular "Sylvia" during his "Songs at Eventide" broadcast at 6:45.

Two early evening features worthy of attention are the piano capers of Herbert Fritsche and the song renditions of Jimmie DePalma.

Hay Fever Gone
says Virginia Minister

From Rev. J. W. Bell, Winchester, Va., comes this word of gratitude for relief from his Hay Fever:

"I passed through the 1929 Hay Fever season without any suffering or discomfort. I attribute this entirely to Dr. Fugate's Prescription. I suffered severely from both Hay Fever and Asthma in 1928."

Again in 1931, Rev. Bell wrote, "As to Hay Fever and Asthma, last year again (1930) they were unknown to me."

This is the prescription which has brought relief to thousands of Hay Fever and Asthma sufferers.

Famous actress loses 10 lbs. without diet

Lynn Francis famed for her acting in "Passing Present" and other plays is most enthusiastic about Vannay, the new scientific and absolutely safe way to reduce without dieting. Miss Francis writes:

"I want to acknowledge my gratitude for the help I have received from Vannay Reducing Tablets. I only needed to lose ten pounds, which I did in the first nine weeks. Where Vannay helped me most was in losing several inches off my thighs, and an inch and a half off my hips.

"I have tried Thyroid, exercise and heavy massages unsuccessfully, as well as strenuous dieting, so I can recommend Vannay Tablets wholeheartedly. They are the only means of reducing that I have found successful as well as harmless. In fact, since I have been taking Vannay, I have felt infinitely more alive."

After reading these words, how absurd it is to take dangerous drugs or a daily dose of laxative salts that rushes food through the body half digested and leads to chronic constipation!

You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three hearty meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it. Start the treatment at once and all your fondest dreams of health and slim loveliness should come true.

There's a room in the Sewickley O'Neils' home, "Wisteria," reminiscent of the stately age when formal calls were in fashion.

When the Edward O'Neils built the home 33 years ago, they planned a room just inside the door and to the left of the broad hallway, where callers were to be received.

It was furnished with little else than straight-backed chairs and long curtains trailing to the floor.

The chairs are now gone, and the curtains have been replaced once, but the same imported French wallpaper, now beautifully mellowed by age, still adorns the walls.

• The sharp rise in the cost of furs, woolens and labor will certainly affect the replacement price of these coats in the Fall. Our conservative estimate is that the advance will be as much as 40%, for today we cannot replace the furs at anywhere near what we paid in March when skins were at the lowest point since 1913.

NEW FALL HATS APPEAR NOW AS HARBINGERS OF AUTUMN

SOME VERY lovely fashions are being seen wherever smart women gather, but the temperature tantalizes those who've gingerly selected new dresses, suits and ensembles to launch on the first cool autumn day that never comes. At a roof garden restaurant recently there were seen many of the new hats women content themselves with wearing until the mercury relinquishes its relentless hold on the summer.

FEATHERS ARE sprouting over a large percentage of hats. In one small corner of this club, two hats had outlines emphasized by quills—one almost at right angles to the hat which sat perfectly straight on a young girl's forehead. Another mannish felt, velvety in texture, dyed in a luscious dusky color, had an intricately manipulated crown, through which a raspberry red feather was poised as if just shot from an arrow! This day it was worn with a cool, dark sheer suit, but later in the fall, it will be a magnificent complement to a hardy tweed.

BLACK SATIN dinner hats, slightly dressy, usually with a curled bunch of coq feathers perching near the brim, are worn in the evening with satin ensembles. Although everyone discusses satin, some women only employ it as a trimming in preference to entire outfits. However, the suit on the right of the sketch is a treasure, for it is divinely simple, yet sufficiently formal for numerous occasions.

THOSE COCKY, mad, impudent crochet hats are still with us. Young girls who hate to look sedate wear them, and feel charmingly absurd, which is as it should be. A giddy new number has a wide cuff, a peak and a fringed section on top. You can see it on the left-hand girl in the sketch.

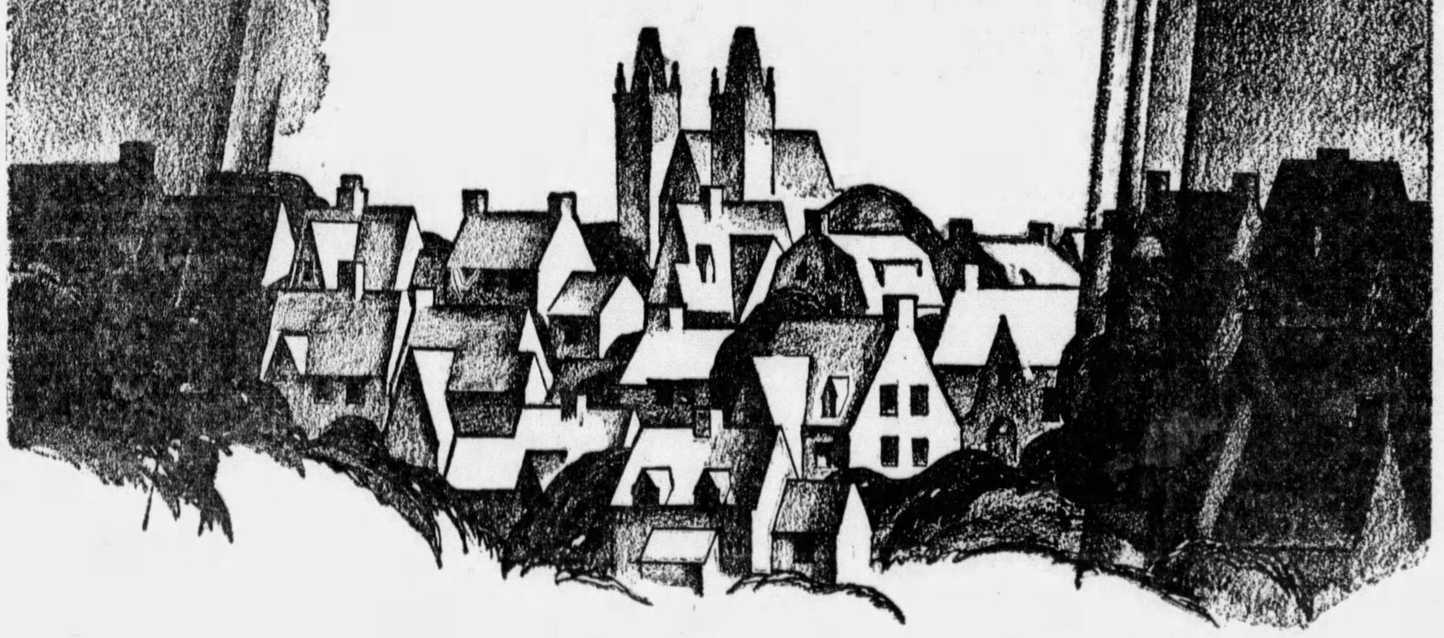
WILL BE A

GAS HEATING

YEAR



Costs, under current gas rates, are much lower, and thousands are taking advantage of this big saving to heat with Natural Gas—the clean, convenient, modern fuel.

NEVER before has there been so enthusiastic an interest in gas heat. And the reason is simply this: Homeowners who have always wanted automatic gas heat now find that under current gas rates, the cost of heating with gas is reduced to a point where there is no longer any reason for denying themselves the comfort, convenience and freedom from furnace-tending drudgery that gas heat always brings. This lower cost, coupled with the fact that other fuels are advancing in price, is causing thousands to turn to automatic gas heat this year.

You will, too, when you know how little it costs. So don't guess any longer about the cost of gas heat. Get the facts. Simply send in the coupon below. A competent heating engineer will then survey your heating requirements, inspect your present heating plant, and give you an accurate estimate of the cost of automatic gas heat for your home. All without charge to you, of course.

Send in the coupon NOW—then decide that you too, like so many others, will turn to Gas this year.

FREE OFFER

Your Gas Company will give you, free of charge, an accurate estimate of the cost of Automatic Gas Heat for your home. Send in the coupon today.

Your Gas Company will be glad to supply you or your heating contractor—without cost—with reliable engineering data on your present or contemplated gas heating installation.

That a Chicago school teacher, who hadn't received her wages for nearly a year, won $250 by writing a poem in a contest. The poem praised Chicago—but hunger obviously inspired the theme.

That a flipcracker observes that the rain may fall on the just as well as the unjust but the latter usually can afford a taxi!

That pearls have been found growing in cocoanuts.

That Eddie Cantor, in a mag article, says one need not be funny to be a comedian. (Well, Edward, don't let it happen again.)

That Robert L. Ripley, one of the most famous men in the world, believe it or not, has his own press agent!

That "There, but for the Grace of God, go I" was first uttered by John Bradford in 1555 when he saw a prisoner go to the gallows.

That there is no record of a suicide with newly trimmed toe nails. (Such an item! I'll bet he made that one up.)

That the Pathfinder says the honeymoon is over when he learns that a perfect complexion doesn't make the coffee taste good.

That the Historical (U. of Chicago) Dictionary's newest two words are "blah" and "whoopee." (This confuses us, considering that Dr. Vizetelly argued that whoopee was 300 years old.)

That Berlin has a children's hotel where parents may leave their kids over night—and know they are in good care.

That 8,000 people engaged in placer gold mining in California last year dug up $450,000 in gold. In 1931 they got 163 thou.

That pomegranate juice is the newest aid to reducing.

That typewriters containing a side compartment for the stenog's powder and lip rouge, etc., are among the newer novelties.

That the ciggie companies correct this pillar on a recent crack that nicotine was white and not brown. It's colorless. (O, all right.)

That a wrist watch will lose one-tenth of a second every time you go into the subway. (Things to worry about, huh?)

That in Shakespeare's time, an actor's rations, besides his supper, included 16 big glasses of lager. Every night!

That in Poland it is a criminal offense for an employer to close down his shop and throw men out of work.

That one of the better clowns observes that the rich are getting poorer and the poor are getting used to it. (As if you didn't know.)

Crook

Helen Vinson is a society crook in "Midnight Club," film based on an Oppenheim novel, coming Friday to Penn screen.

Coming Bills On Screen

Victor Jory and Loretta Young supply the love romance in "The Devil's in Love," opening in the Fulton Thursday. It is a story of the Riff country. David Manners and Vivienne Osborne also are in the cast.

Clive Brook, Helen Vinson and George Raft have the principal roles in "Midnight Club," opening Friday in the Penn. Raft playing an American detective called to London by Scotland Yard to clear up a jewel theft.

"Captured," melodrama and romance, with Leslie Howard and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the featured roles, opens Friday in the Stanley. In it two fellow-soldiers are in love with the same girl, who is the wife of one of them.

Willard Mack and Minna Gombell have the leading roles in "What Price Innocence," opening Friday in the Warner. The action revolves around a girl played by Jean Parker.

"Headline Shooters," a romantic drama with Frances Dee as a girl reporter and William Gargan as a news-reel cameraman, is part of a double bill opening in the Davis and Sheridan Square Friday. Ralph Bellamy also has a principal role.

Tag Hunters Out Early

American autograph hunters are a shy, retiring group compared to the rabid species in the Orient and Europe, said Robert Woolsey looking back on the world tour he recently completed with his co-star, Bert Wheeler.

"The kids, hundreds of 'em," said Bob, "would be pounding on our doors as early as 8 o'clock—not so good when we've been seeing the world . . . 3 in the morning."

Because autograph-collecting sometimes has a commercial angle, movie players aren't so sure now that an autograph request means an admirer or friend.

But Bert and Bob didn't quibble—they signed, signed and signed some more. Which goes to show that a poor movie actor never gets a vacation, but must always think of his public!

Irene Dunne To Portray Recluse

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 15.—Remember the New York recluse who was found to have more than $1,000,000 hidden in her room at the time of her death? This news item has inspired a screen original which RKO has purchased for Irene Dunne's next starring picture.

Alvin Smith calls his story "The Hermit of Times Square." His heroine is an opera singer and much of the action takes place in New York around 1900.

Miss Dunne

As this was the same period of "Frivolous Sal," another vehicle planned for the singing star, RKO will try to combine the two stories. Irene is due for a vacation after she completes her current film, "Ann Vickers." Work will begin on the new picture upon her return to the studio. It will be Howard Green's first assignment as associate producer.

It was a dramatic moment when Jack Gilbert went out on the "Queen Christina" set and spoke to Greta Garbo for the first time in three years. La Garbo was lying smothered with covers in a huge replica of a royal bed. Gilbert came up and shook hands. The Swedish star told him it was nice to have him in the picture. With a wide grin and with a sweeping gesture, Jack exclaimed: "Why, it's colossal!"

La Garbo's throaty laugh rang out. She remembered that favorite remark of Jack's from the old days.

Her picture finished, Benita Hume is scheduled to leave today for New York, London, and marriage with Jack Dunfee. Later on, she plans to return to Hollywood and continue her motion picture career . . . Next Thursday will see Will Rogers' daughter out of a movie job. "My Weakness," her first picture, will be finished. Incidentally, this film will give American audiences their first glimpse of Lilian Harvey in a Hollywood-made picture. Because of its similarity in story to "Adorable," the English actress' first film, "My Lips Betray," will be held for later release.

Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus Amazes With Wonders

By ED PRENDERGAST

The Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus played its first of four performances on the Point Breeze lot yesterday afternoon.

Clyde Beatty and his tigers and lions; "Poodles" Hanneford, first of the equestrian clowns; "The Great Bombayo," master of the bounding rope; Cheerful Gardner and his 29 elephants, all shapes, all sizes; clowns, jugglers, trapeze performers—they were all there.

The 5,000 men and women and mostly children who saw the performance enjoyed it, if the almost continuous applause can be the criterion. But their enjoyment wasn't perfect. To make it so, each one there would have had to sit beside Bob Hickey, the press agent. And even for Hickey—that's an impossibility.

For Hickey could only sit beside two people, and that's what he did.

Hickey knows the inside, as it developed when "Poodles" began to ride and tumble off the ring horses to the utter amazement of the children of all ages. But without Hickey, how could anyone appreciate "Poodles," for Hickey knew that the night before, "Poodles" had mixed watermelon and beer, and felt miserable. Just knowing that made "Poodles" seem to be wearing a halo—even during his tumbles.

And about Beatty, the most famous of all animal trainers. How would you know Beatty had 31 lions and tigers in the cage and was hypnotising that tiger? But he was, and when the tiger rolled over—everyone was hypnotized.

And then that Cheerful Gardner, who, smiling, put his three good-looking aides and 29 elephants through their stunts, then rode in the elephant's mouth. How would you know that he wasn't cheerful at all—that he'd had a heck of an argument with his wife and was mad clear through? You wouldn't have known it without Hickey. Then you'd have missed the giraffe-necked woman—that slender Burmese girl hidden away in the corner of the stands, smoking a cigaret and all eyes for "The Famous Billetti troupe," who perform on the high wire. Hickey noticed the Burmese girl: pointed her out and she waved to him, and you could tell she was wishing her neck wasn't bound up in all those brass coils; that she could learn to balance herself, or be a trapeze artist like "Diaz," almost 60, a former bull fighter in Spain, who was that little fellow with the marvelous physique. Hickey mentioned that too. He just knew everything, that guy. The circus continues today—with afternoon and night performances.

Keep your eyes open for Hickey.

Another Nail IN THE OLD COFFIN

Another plug in the old hot water boiler is like a patch on a tire that's run 20,000 miles. The relief is temporary; one of these fine days (or nights) the plugs will weaken and you'll be able to stage a boat-race in your cellar. The wise thing is to buy your RUUD Automatic Water Heater now. A few dollars down installs it; perfect, rust-free service starts at once; you get hot water when and where you want it, as much or as little as you want, and you'll pay only for hot water actually used; fuel cost will be lower because you control the gas bill . . . and note this (IMPORTANT): low RUUD prices are continued but prompt action is advised to those who wish to buy at bargain figures.

Why not drop in at our store for five or ten minutes? A RUUD demonstration is really interesting.

Episodes in a Hospital.

I'M FEELING a little better today, and that pain in the leg is gradually disappearing. I get nothing now but an occasional twinge, and it begins to look as though I'll be hobbling around on crutches before another month has passed. I wish those twinges would go away—but they've given me an idea for a hospital article that I must do after I leave here. The title will be, of course: "Giving Birth to Twinge."

Meanwhile, instead of doing a lengthy story for today, it might be better to get a few more hospital episodes off my mind. Here are a few, selected as they come to mind . . .

The barber in this hospital is a thin gentleman with sad eyes and a steady hand. Two days after the accident, when my beard was already starting to curl around my ankles, he came in to shave me.

He stropped his razor and regarded me dubiously.

"What'sa matter you?" he inquired.

I sighed.

"A broken knee," I told him.

For some strange reason, that seemed humorous to him.

"Ho, ho," he laughed. "That'sa nothing at all. A broken knee, he'sa justa pleasure compare' wit' some other t'ings you see arounda here. You ain't got nothing serious."

I looked at him with happy eyes.

"I'm glad to hear you say that, buddy," I told him. "So you really think it's nothing serious, eh?"

He waved a hand.

"Positively not," he returned. "Why, I hava one customer who justa leave here yesterday. He have exacta same thing like you. And believa me, mister, he was fine when he walka out."

I smiled happily.

"That's great," I observed. "How long was he in the hospital?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"Nota much," he replied. "Only sixa months!" . . .

The boys were sitting around my room and the conversation turned to the ponies. One of the chaps introduced the subject of bookmakers, and told a story that may be of interest here.

The bookie in question is probably the most successful operator in America today. He is fair and square in all his dealings, and is admired by all those with whom he comes in contact. His customers swear by him, and it's small wonder that his operations sometimes run into fantastic figures.

Strangely enough, he has never made a bet in all his life. He started in the business some 20-odd years ago when he was a bus boy in a Coney Island restaurant. At that time he took bets that ran as high as a quarter from other bus boys and waiters. And he gradually branched out until he became the biggest figure in the American bookmaking field.

There was a winter in those years gone by that he almost gave up the game to remain in the restaurant business. It was in the latter part of the fall season that his Coney Island place closed down—and the boy went to the waiter that he had served so faithfully all summer.

"Brownie," said the boy, "I haven't anything to do this winter and I don't want to hang around the horses unless I have to. You've got another job as a waiter all set for yourself. Won't you take me along as your bus boy?"

The waiter shook his head.

"Nothing doing, son," he told him. "You're a good little worker, and I like you. But I'm going on a class job and I can't use you. I never carry dead wood around with me in the winter."

So the "dead wood" became the best known bookie in America—and Brownie, the waiter who wouldn't carry him along as his bus boy, is still a waiter. He is a waiter in Moore's Restaurant, where the bookmaker often eats. And every time that Brownie serves him, the waiter gets a $10 tip for his trouble.

I like stories like that. It's a trifle sad in some respects, but it does prove that the scales sometimes balance . . .

A few rooms from me is a gentleman whom I have never seen. I trust he will be out of here before I recover completely. Because if he isn't and we ever meet, one of us is liable to hit the bed again.

This bird has something wrong with one of his arms, and he's obviously a pretty cranky gent. He plays his radio as loudly as possible at all times and, if anyone objects, he turns it on a little louder.

I didn't mind that because I can always have my door closed. But when I played my radio the other afternoon this bird had the nerve to send his nurse over and ask me to stop because he wanted to sleep!

I stopped, but I was plenty sore. I waited—and the very next time he turned on his radio I complained so loudly and so excitedly that they made him shut it off.

That tickled me, as only the small things can do in a hospital. Little did I know that he planned to get even with me. Last night, I found out.

Directly after dinner, he left his room and began to parade up and down the corridor. His bedroom slippers must have been too large for they flopped up and down. And more, he was whistling loudly.

With my left leg in its insufferable cast, there was nothing I could do about it. I was compelled to lie back and suffer in silence. For the man's whistling grew louder and louder.

And what do you think he was whistling? It was: "Would You Like to Take a Walk?" . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The next production of the Summer Playhouse will be a premiere performance of "Three to Make Ready," by Helen H. Mason, Pittsburgh playwright. It will be given in Arnold School the week of August 21. Miss Mason, now in Massachusetts working on another play, will attend. "Three to Make Ready" is to be produced on Broadway in the fall. Several New York producers are expected to see the play here.

* * *

Two plays by Eugene O'Neill are to be presented next season by the Theater Guild, one, "Ah, Wilderness," to have Earle Larimore in the leading role as the Guild's bow to the season. The other, a modern miracle play, "Days Without End," will see the light later.

* * *

Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," has written another play. She calls it "Women Live Too Long."

Trouble

Margaret Lindsay, with two men dangling, has her troubles in "Captured," booked for the Stanley screen Friday.

ACTRESS SLAIN, FRIEND HELD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The body of Mrs Ella M. Schrodt, 58-year-old former actress, was found early today in a bedroom of her home in Mt. Rainier, Md., near here, with a deep gash over the right temple. Shortly afterward John C. Mulligan, 45, who lives at the same address, was arrested and held without bond.

Mrs. Haden G. Hiromerous, a neighbor, told police Mulligan called her about 3 o'clock this morning. She found Mrs. Schrodt's body in bed. A doctor said the woman had been dead several hours.

Mulligan was arrested on a murder charge.

Ancient Viola Owned By Alma Gluck Stolen

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Theft of a valuable viola, owned by Alma Gluck, opera singer and wife of Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist, was reported to police today.

The instrument, a Storione between 150 and 200 years old, was stolen from the automobile of Louis Kiezman, violinist. Mrs. Zimbalist is at her summer home on Fishers Island, off New London, Conn.

Two Seized in Hill Raid Waive Hearings

Joseph Marway and Joseph Anton waived hearings last night before Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan, of Sewickley, on charges of violating the Snyder Act.

They were arrested by Justice Morgan's constable in a raid on the Madrid Cafe, 1305 Wylie avenue, in which officers testified to finding a quantity of liquor.

Boy Kills Mother In Play with Gun

MODESTO, Cal., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—William Silveira, 8, accidentally shot and killed his mother, Margaret C. Silveira, 38, near Newman, acording to Coroner George Sovern.

The Coroner explained the boy picked up a shotgun, thought to be unloaded, and jokingly said to his mother:

POPEYE TO GIVE PARTY HERE

Pugnacious Popeye of the Sun-Telegraph comic pages is going to be here next week to stage a big outdoor party for the kiddies of Pittsburgh and vicinity. Friday, August 25, is his birthday and he has arranged to entertain hundreds of boys and girls at beautiful Kennywood Park on that day. So, if you want to go to Popeye's big birthday party, start clipping the coupon from the Sun-Telegraph today so that you'll have a strip of eight free tickets for the rides and attractions. It's on page 18.

Popeye is going to be on hand in person and the old king of the comic strips will shake hands with each and every youngster. He's also going to put on a lot of special things in the way of entertainment. There isn't going to be any crowding or pushing. There is to be only a certain number of strips of tickets issued—just enough to make it comfortable for everybody. When this supply of tickets is exhausted there will be no more. So, begin clipping coupons early and be among the first to get your tickets.

The Pittsburgh Street Railways Company has made a special round trip rate of 15 cents for all children to Kennywood from any part of Pittsburgh on Popeye's birthday and a list of stations where you can buy these tickets and exchange your coupons will be announced in ample time.

Peer's Death Duty Totals $71,000,000

LONDON, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—The British Treasury stood today to receive the largest death duties in history following probate of the will of Sir John Ellerman, British shipping magnate who left an estate totaling 30,000,000 pounds (approximately $142,000,000.)

The government's share in death duties will be 15,000,000 pounds (approximately $71,000,000.)

Blast in Brewery Starts $100,000 Fire

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Three employes were suffering from severe burns today following a spectacular $100,000 fire in the cooperage plant of the United States Brewing Company. Explosion of a kettle of pitch started the blaze. Twenty automobiles were destroyed.

STATE OFFICIAL FACES ARREST

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Tom B. Boyd, serving his third term as State Treasurer of Kansas, faced arrest and impeachment proceedings today in connection with the state's million dollar bond forgery scandal.

After directing Lester Goodell, Shawnee County attorney, to prepare a warrant for the Treasurer's arrest, Gov. Alf M. Landon wrote a letter to Boyd requesting his immediate resignation. Later, the Governor announced impeachment proceedings would be pressed unless Boyd resigned.

The specific charge against Boyd, prepared by the county attorney, alleged the State Treasurer did "unlawfully, feloniously and wilfully convert to his own use and to the use of one Ronald Finney, the sum of $150,000 of the moneys of the state of Kansas."

Finney, Emporia and Topeka bond broker and market speculator, is under arrest on a charge of uttering $20,000 in forged bonds to the National Bank of Topewa. Leland Caldwell, an employe of Finney, is under arrest on similar charges.

SINKING VESSEL UNDER TOW

International News Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—The Coast Guard destroyer Wainwright today contacted the schooner Shirley M. Calttenburg, damaged and leaking badly after a collision in dense fog with the Norwegian steambship Horda, on the Georges fishing banks, 150 miles east of Highland Light.

The destroyer took the schooner in tow and started for Boston. She was to be relieved by the patrol boat Frederick Lee.

Little information was given in the radio request sent out by the Horda after the collision, which sent both Coast Guard vessels to the rescue. It told of the crash and said the schooner was leaking badly, but that the crew refused to leave. The Horda stood by until the arrival of the Coast Guard vessel.

Republican Leader Dies in Williamsport

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Maj. Edward P. Mackey, workmen's compensation referee and former Republican state committeeman, died last night from a stroke suffered at a baseball game. Physicians said he had high blood pressure.

Mackey's World War services had won for him the Distinguished Service Cross of the United States and the Croix de Guerre of France with palms.

MAN FLEES FIRE ON U. S. BOAT

Earl Gregory, 34, was forced to swin for his life today when the United States Engineers' speed boat Duquesne caught fire in the Ohio River near Glen Willard.

Gregory, an employe on the boat, reported to the Engineers' office here, that he heard a muffled explosion from the engine and then the entire boat became enveloped in flames. He was the only one on the craft at the time. He lives at Dixmont.

The boat, 28 feet long and valued at $3,000, sank after burning for more than an hour.

E. L. CORD BUYS CAB COMPANY

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—As another step in his ambitious program of expansion in virtually all transportation industries, E. L. Cord has bought control of the Checker Cab Corporation, one of the oldest and largest taxicab manufacturing companies.

This deal follows acquisition of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, one of the largest units in the shipbuilding industry, on August 3. At the end of last year Cord got control of Aviation Corporation, after a bitter proxy fight.

Cord has been elected chairman of the board and also is on the executive committee.

Irish Leader Plans Visit to Get U. S. Aid

DUBLIN, Aug. 15.—(Universal)—Sean O'Kelly, vice president of the Irish Free State, is leaving shortly for Washington on a special mission, it is learned.

Opposition circles believe O'Kelly will attempt to enlist American sympathy for the Free State's attitude in refusing to pay land annuities due Britain. They also expect that he will discuss Ireland's economic difficulties with influential Americans.

Guest at Wedding Killed in Collision

ELMIRA, O., Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Mrs. Nancy Halpin, 21, was killed early today in an automobile accident that brought tragedy to a wedding party.

Mrs. Halpin, matron of honor at a marriage ceremony, was en route to Cleveland with Clyde Worthington, 25, to attend the wedding party when Worthington's car ran into the rear of another car in the wedding group. Both cars were ditched.

Man Objects to Wife Wanting All of Children's Love

Do the Kids belong to Mamma—or has Dad an interest in them, too?

What is Dad in your home, anyway? Is he just a Policeman, or a Meal Ticket? Someone to Make Johnny mind, or to buy Mamie the new fur coat she yearns for?

And if things are like that—whose fault is it?

Bill Brown wants to know.

Dear Elsie Robinson:

I wonder if you can help a man who seems to have lost touch with his youngsters, and feels pretty tough over it.

I don't quite know how things got this way, and I don't like it; but it seems to me I am just the fellow who pays the bills, or who sets his foot down when the young ones get too obstreperous for my wife to handle them.

We have three of them. The oldest is a boy, who is now 10. The middle one is a girl, 8, and the youngest a boy, 6. I was awfully proud of that first son of mine when he came, but my wife seemed to think he belonged exclusively to her. At least, that was the way she acted.

WIFE OBJECTS

She wouldn't even let me hold him. She said I was awkward and "didn't know anything about babies." She sort of laughed at me about that, and I let her get away with it. I was awfully proud of him, but gosh! when I came home from work and wanted to play with him, "He's asleep," she'd tell me, "and you mustn't disturb him." Then, when he got bigger, I "excited him" if I wanted to play with him, and "He doesn't get to sleep as he should," she explained.

That got my goat, but I sort of took it for granted that she knew best about it. I wanted him to get plenty of sleep, so he'd grow into a big, fine boy. I suppose it really was my very love for him that made me pass up those romps I'd like to have at 6 o'clock, when I came home from the office. I didn't want to do anything that would interfere with his best interests.

When the others came along, it was the same story. They were her babies, it seems now—and I just bought what they and she needed.

And I'm afraid now that they look on me as a sort of ogre. They act as if I were actually a stranger around the home. They run to her with everything. It never seems to occur to them to come to me for anything—and I don't like it. But I don't know, now, how to go about making friends with them. They're all self-conscious—"on their good behavior"—with me. I never get to see them free and unself-conscious and easy, like she does.

I want to be a good father and a real father. I feel bitterly, sometimes, that my wife has cheated me. It seems to me that she just took it for granted that the children were hers.

You hear a great deal nowadays about fathers not taking an interest in their children, or taking their part in raising them. But I wonder how often fathers who honestly wanted to have been pushed aside by mothers like my wife.

FATHER DISSATISFIED

It seems to me that a man has a right to help take care of a baby, and has a right to make himself a part of its life, just as a mother has. I guess I should have asserted myself. I'm sure that it isn't good for the children to look on me as a sort of combination bill-payer and policeman.

I hope you will publish this letter, so that other couples with children can see where they're headed, and run things a little more wisely. I don't quite know how things reached this pass with me, but I know that they don't suit me.

BILL BROWN.

All right, Bill. I've published it. And what's my answer? I'll pass. Let the ringside seats have First Say. So now it's up to you, Stranger.

Fay King Gives Advice on Husbands Meeting "Other Women"

WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL ME?
I THOUGHT YOU'D RAISE A ROW!
WELL, ASK HER TO LUNCH, AND HEAR WHAT SHE HAS TO SAY!
DOT CALLED UP TO DAY AND WANTS TO SEE ME ABOUT SOMETHING!
IT'S WHAT GOSSIPS THINK, THAT WORRIES WIVES
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

Wives are not so narrow-minded as some husbands imagine.

Few wives would object to their husbands paying proper and impersonal attentions to other women, if the wives were informed and gave their permission.

But, fearing their wives would not understand, husbands do not mention the fact that they are entertaining old friends at luncheon. Then, naturally, when the wives hear of it from some other sources they are furious. Not because their husbands paid courteous attention to other women, but because, in the husbands' not having mentioned it, malicious gossips have inferred the husbands have deceived their wives.

But the wives who can say "Oh yes, I know about that, and wanted him to entertain her" are not furious in the least.

Edith Leaves as Philip Veritzen Is Announced

For a long second after my direction to have Philip Veritzen sent up to our hotel suite, Edith Fairfax's eyes and mine were locked as might be those of men in a duel. Then I triumphed, not because my will was stronger than hers in this moment that I knew was one of wild excitement for her, but because her traditions and training forbade her continuing to stage before Philip Veritzen the scene to which she had been subjecting me.

Through lips which I knew were colorless beneath her lipstick, and with a grayish pallor showing through her makeup, she turned back to the telephone.

"Madge says she is ready to see him now, Lil," she said, and I paid her a mental tribute for social gallantry.

But as she replaced the telephone and turned to me, her face frightened me with its still fury.

"You win," she said, "and—I wish you joy of your victory. You've refused to hear anything about a woman who's surely going to make you head for Reno, or a trial for homicide. You've also made it impossible to tell you about something else even more important to me.

"I don't know whether you're responsible for it or not, though I strongly suspect your fine Italian hand; but I'm warning you now that if Dicky Graham sells out his share of that magazine and leaves me with some partner that I don't know anything about—I'll—I'll not be responsible for what I do."

VERITZEN ARRIVES

Her voice trailed off into a lame ending of her threat as a firm knock sounded on the door. With a quick motion she put back a stray lock of hair, straightened her body, composed her features and presented a smiling front as she opened the door.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Veritzen," she said airily. "I'm playing hostess for Mrs. Graham, because she has orders not to put her injured foot to the ground."

Philip Veritzen took the hand she stretched out to him and raised it gallantly to his lips.

"She could not find a more charming substitute," he said with impressement.

She swept him a low curtsey, then said, quietly: "Forgive me if I hurry along. I am past due at an engagement now." Then Edith, with an airy wave of the hand and a careless "So long, Madge," flitted out of the door, closing it after her with a backward glance at me, unseen by my guest, that sent renewed little icicles slithering down my spine.

"What is it, Mrs. Graham?"

Philip Veritzen's solicitous voice, his keen eyes fixed upon my face, told me that, while he had not seen Edith's parting glance, neither had he missed my reaction to it.

MADGE SMILES

I pulled myself together and managed a wintry smile.

"Nothing that matters," I evaded. "My ankle reminds me every now and then that I twisted it."

"Oh, I am so sorry!" His breeding and poise permitted him no pressing of the conviction which I was sure was his—the conviction that Edith Fairfax's visit was the cause of my disquietude.

It took every bit of will power I possessed to utter a perfunctory "thank you." And while I could keep my eyes from the door, I could not discipline my ears away from a strained listening for Lillian's knock. Why did she not come up, to redeem her promise that she would be in the office every second of this interview with Philip Veritzen, which I dreaded so intensely?

When, after a second that seemed an hour, her brisk knock finally sounded on the door, I was afraid that my relief showed in my face. Fortunately, however, Mr. Veritzen, with his never-failing courtesy, had sprung to his feet at the knock, and was advancing toward the door.

"Lillian said she would be right up," he said, and the next second she was in the room, bringing to me the sense of being upheld, strengthened by her mere nearness.

"Just a little errand girl," she said gaily as she came over to my side and sat down at the head of the couch. "But, Madge, if you want to talk to my dear old childhood friend a deux, don't hesitate to boot me out."

Mr. Veritzen's keen eyes twinkled as he put up a protesting hand.

"In your own inimitable vocabulary, Lillian, 'can the camouflage'," he said. "You two want something out of me. What is it?"

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hangnails are not hateful; they invite infection. Soak the hands in warm soapsuds, scrub the nails with a brush. Apply olive oil to the cuticle, lift it gently away from the nail with an orange-wood stick. With the needle point, curved scissors, ends pointing toward the nail eave, snip away the little shreds. When washing the hands, make it a habit to press back the softened cuticle with a towel. And beware of harsh soaps.

If there are parentheses lines from nostrils to lip corners, you're in for a long term of facial exercises. Get a child's balloon and blow it full of air. Blow like everything! Learn to whistle. And if you can't learn, then pretend. Whatever strengthens the muscles around the upper lip will tend to wipe away those disfiguring furrows. Massage with a heavy cream, placing thumb at lower end of line, first finger at upper tip; draw them together gently.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Quinsy Sore Throat No Minor Ill

If you have suffered from a quinsy sore throat you will agree with me that it is a painful and uncomfortable ailment.

Dr. Copeland

Many confuse this affliction with ordinary sore throat or pharyngitis. But quinsy sore throat is not merely an inflammation or irritation of the throat. It is an abcess located in or nearby the tonsil tissue. It is usually traced to a chronically diseased tonsil which has become infected. With the infection the abscess forms and enlarges, causing the severe pain and high fever so familiar in this affliction.

Quinsy sore throat may follow a severe attack of tonsilitis, inflammation of the tonsils. As this subsides, the pain reappears and the abscess forms.

It affects one side and may recur on the same side at frequent intervals. As a rule the victim has a half dozen attacks or more. In recurring cases, prevention is possible only by the removal of the diseased tonsils.

Severe pain in the throat makes it impossible to swallow food, and there is even greater difficulty in swallowing liquids. High fever, headache, weakness and general prostration are other symptoms of this disorder. A common sign, after alarming to the afflicted person, is a throbbing, painful sensation in the ear of the affected side. This is pain "referred" from the diseased throat.

In severe cases of quinsy sore throat there may be pain in the knee or ankle. This is commonly called arthritis. It means that the poisons from the abscess are being absorbed and carried to different parts of the body. There is a real menace in this, especially if the heart or kidneys become involved. This danger can be prevented by immediate lancing of the abscess and removal of all the pus.

My advice to persons who frequently suffer from this affliction is immediate removal of enlarged or diseased tonsils. If your tonsils are diseased or you think they may be, do not hesitate to consult with your physician.

Do not be misled by the common and false idea that quinsy sore throat must "run its own course" and will cure itself. Do not wait for the quinsy "breaks." Bear in mind that the poisons generated from the pus present in the abscess are detrimental to your health.

Please remember, too, that diseased tonsils are often the underlying cause of heart disease, kidney disease, arthritis neuritis and neuralgia. In children, diseased tonsils retard normal growth and development.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Bridge, a Spectators' Game

Contract Bridge, long a players' game, was turned into a spectator's game during the Anglo-American match for the Charles M. Schwab Trophy, which was recently held in London. Thousands followed the bidding and play in detail by the use of a gigantic electric score-board, where every bid and play was followed by the audience as clearly as though they were sitting in the room with the players. While the experts battled in soundproof rooms, several thousand people in an adjoining hall watched the board. It is quite possible that the day will come when such a board will automatically be connected by wire with hundreds of similar boards, so that future international matches may be brought home to Bridge lovers everywhere.

The American team, composed of Messrs. Theodore A. Lightner, Michael T. Gottlieb, my husband and myself, retained for America the trophy given by the great steel magnate and Bridge lover as a perpetual emblem of international supremacy at Bridge. No doubt, for months, players in all parts of the world will be analyzing the bids and plays which brought victory to America.

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

	♠ K 4 2 ♡ K 9 ◇ Q 10 8 4 ♣ K 7 5 2
Mr. Culbertson ♠ J 10 7 5 ♡ 10 8 7 3 ◇ 6 5 2 ♣ 10 8	West North East South	Mr. Lightner ♠ 8 6 ♡ A Q J 4 2 ◇ 7 3 ♣ Q J 9 4
	♠ A Q 9 3 ♡ 6 5 ◇ A K J 9 ♣ A 6 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠ (1)	Pass
4 N T (2)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Very bad bid.
(2) Very good. Making the best of a bad situation.

East opened the Queen of clubs, and Colonel Beasley won in the Dummy with the Ace. He played four rounds of diamonds and then the Ace, King and Queen of spades, finding that the suit did not break. Undaunted, the Colonel led the King of clubs as the first step in his attempt to throw the lead to East. Mr. Lightner tried to escape the net by dropping the 9 of clubs, but his case was hopeless and Colonel Beasley made four notrump.

The bidding was obviously slightly too optimistic, but the fault was more than atoned for by the splendid play.

FREE BRIDGE BOOKLET

Readers of this newspaper may have a free copy of "Bridge Rules and Etiquette," by Josephine Culbertson, through special arrangement. Address Mrs. Culbertson in care of this newspaper, INCLOSING A 3-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You have opened the heart King against a four-spade contract. Your holding in this suit is the A K 6 5 4. Dummy goes down with the 10 8 3 2 and plays low; your partner plays the Queen. Assuming you do not want to shift to another suit but prefer to continue that suit, what card do you now lead?

Answer: A low card—preferably the 5. It is an almost universally recognized convention that the play of the Queen on partner's King shows either the holding of the Knave or no more of the suit at all. Holding the Queen and a small one, the "high-low" should never be given except in very rare instances where a continuation of the suit is absolutely essential. Therefore, you cannot lose by leading low. If your partner has no more, he will ruff and your Ace will still win a trick; and if your partner has the Knave, he will be able to win this second trick himself. If you continue with the Ace and your partner drops the Knave, you will set up the Ten in Dummy, upon which Declarer may be able to discard later.

Household Hints

New potatoes will scrape more easily if a little salt is dissolved in the water.

When the colors in a carpet look faded, a cloth wrung out in equal parts of ammonia and water and rubbed over the surface will do wonders towards restoring the colors to their natural hue, besides taking away surface dirt which even the vacuum cleaner cannot remove.

Once in a while comes a real novelty. We have found one in the form of a lovely evening bag. It is in white silk crepe, very much shirred until it looks crinkled. It is gathered onto a ring in clear jewel colors and these can be purchased separately so that the ring matches the frock or the shoes with which the bag is worn.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Letter of Felicitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A short while ago I received a letter from a very dear friend of mine telling me tnat she was going to be married within a few months' time. Wishing to reply to her letter, I am at a loss to know what to say. I wonder if you could help me?

Your column is of much interest to me, and I have received many helpful "pointers."

SUE.

I couldn't tell you, dear Sue, exactly what to say, for this would depend on your own feelings, but in general you would, of course, tell her of your delight in receiving her news, and of your high-hearted wish for her happiness. You would say devoted things about your friendship for her, and about your deep and loving interest in her life and future happiness.

Wedding Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—How soon after the wedding should announcements be sent out?

2—The bride's friends are all young people. Should an announcement be sent to them as well as to their parents? S.

1—As soon as possible. That is, they should be all ready . . . engraved, addressed, stamped and sealed . . . so that they may be dropped in the mail box after the marriage. This means that the friends who live in the city receives the news the morning following the wedding.

2—Marriage announcements should be sent to the list of friends who have not been invited to the wedding. The fact that they cannot come does not make any difference. It is the fact that they have not been invited.

How One Woman Lost 24 Lbs. of Fat in 31 Days

Table Tells How Much Women and Girls Should Weigh

How would you like to lose 24 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

How would you like to lose a load of unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

Get on the scales to-day and see how much you weigh—measure yourself too—then get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts, which will last you for 4 weeks. Take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—to hasten results cut out pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh and measure yourself again.

Now you can laugh at the people who pay hundreds of dollars to lose a few pounds of fat—now you will know the safe, swift and pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

If one inexpensive jar (lasts 4 weeks) doesn't joyfully satisfy, money back from any drugstore. Make sure you get Kruschen—prescribed by many physicians and recognized the world over as the SAFE way to reduce and at the same time gain in health and physical charm.

Mrs. C. L. of Shepardsville, Kentucky, writes: "I have reduced 24 pounds in 31 days with Kruschen and I ate three meals a day."

3 ASK BI-PARTY NOMINATIONS FOR COUNCIL

Three new candidates announced for City Council today, each becoming a candidate in both the Republican and Democratic primaries.

Henry S. Jeha, manufacturer, of the Fifteenth Ward, declared:

"Drastic measures must be taken in order that our local government may become once more a government of the people, and not a government selfishly controlled by greedy factions solely in the interest of their leaders."

He continued:

"I have asked the support of no political group or faction, so that if elected I shall be free to serve all alike, honestly and efficiently."

Hugh J. Bigley, 4604 Bayard street, also is running independently of factions. His platform is for old age pensions, unemployment insurance and the lowest possible tax rates consistent with efficient and economical service. City appointments must be made on the basis of merit and experience, he said. Bigley is a native of Pittsburgh.

Thomas Brown McIntire, electrical engineer, resident of the Eighth Ward, believes that his technical training would make him valuable in city government. He would not subject efficient employes to political reprisal. McIntire has not been allied with organized politics, but on his behalf it is said he has maintained a constructive interest in civic affairs.

EIGHTH WARDER IN COUNCIL RACE

C. C. Hamilton, Eighth Ward, has filed petitions as a Democratic candidate for City Council. He said today he filed on the Democratic ticket because "Republican leadership in Pittsburgh has proven a gross failure which has put the city of Pittsburgh in a bankrupt condition."

Some of the planks in his platform are:

Economy in government, freeing city employes of political control, moratorium on city bonded indebtedness over a period of seven years for the protection of home owners and renters, opposition to wharf boulevard, new property assessments, support of Roosevelt prosperity and economy plan.

HENRY BACKED BY MRS. FELIX

Mrs. Anne E. Felix, who was a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Thirty-second District last year, today indorsed the mayoralty candidacy of John M. Henry. Mrs. Felix is contesting the election of Congressman M. J. Muldowney, and Henry has acted as her attorney.

There has been bitter feeling between Mrs. Felix and the Democratic organization headed by County Chairman David L. Lawrence, and Henry upon different occasions has charged that the Democratic leaders exhibited no interest in the campaign of Mrs. Felix or the subsequent investigation of alleged election frauds in the district.

Two Brothers Die For Holdup Murder

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Two Cincinnati Negroes, Joseph Murphy, 18, and his brother, James, 24, died in the electric chair at the Ohio Penitentiary last night for the murder during a robbery of Harry Friedhoff, a Silverton (O.) bank cashier.

Ousted County Aide On City Payroll

J. W. McFedrick, of 2833 Breckenridge street, Fifth Ward, is the latest idle former job holder to be favored by the city administration in appointment to a place in the unemployment work relief program. He was named a labor overseer by Public Works Director E. G. Lang today.

He was fired as a superintendent in the county road maintenance division in a shakeup by the present county commissioners more than a year ago.

MALONEY RUNS FOR ALDERMAN

Andrew M. Maloney, Republican chairman of the First Ward, is a candidate for Alderman. Maloney was formerly Alderman in the ward, and now is Constable. He is a native First Warder, and attended Duquesne University and Carnegie Tech. He is running on his record, which, he says, has received the approval of the judges of Allegheny County courts and the Bar Association.

Louis Solomon, who announced a month ago as candidate for Alderman in the Eleventh Ward, has withdrawn for personal reasons, he said today.

Communists Name Mayor Candidate

The following five candidates for councilmen were nominated: Ben Careathers, Max Jenkins, Rebecca Asberry, John Meldon, Frank Hill.

On August 26 at 2 p. m. at Walton Hall, 220 Stanwix street, the Communist party is calling an election campaign raitfication conference to indorse the platform and accept the candidates.

WOMAN OPENS HEADQUARTERS

Headquarters for Mrs. Lois D. McBride for Juvenile Court judge have been opened at 319 Fifth avenue, with W. Clyde Grubbs as general chairman and Mrs. Samuel K. Cunningham vice chairman. Attorney Grubbs said a woman should be on the Juvenile Court bench.

Other appointments for the McBride campaign:

Attorney Bertram Kenyon, county chairman of the men's division; Mrs. Harvey S. Fouse, county chairman of the women's division; Attorney Ruth Forsht, special counsel for the Pennsylvania Attorney General; Ruth Zimmerman, secretary of the Women's Political Educational Association, treasurer, and Attorney H. B. Eberharter, secretary.

COLLINS GIVES PLATFORM

The sheriff's office should be non-partisan, J. W. Collins, liaison officer of the United Spanish War Veterans, said today in his platform seeking that office. He declared.

"Some of the most important problems now confronting the American people ultimately will rest in the hands of your elected officials. Government fails when the people lose faith in their elected officials. Men should be elected to office only because of their qualifications, and not because of race, creed or color or because of party affiliation."

Collins said he would be free of factional entanglement, would conduct the office openly and would shirk no responsibility.

JAP AIRS PLOT AGAINST U. S.

TOKIO, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Testimony regarding a plan to assassinate an American ambassador and consul was offered today during the court martial of 10 naval officers charged with assassinating Premier Suyoshi Inukai and other terroristic acts in May, 1932.

The witness, Lieut. Kijo Ito, one of the defendants, said two naval officers seriously considered the plot in order to cause friction with America and thereby promote a nationalist and militarist revolution.

Ito testified he was wounded in the Shanghai campaign last year and was still in the hospital. He could not therefore participate in the Tokio raids culminating in the assassination of the Premier.

Consequently, he added, he and Lieut. Haruo Oba planned further assassinations as their contribution to the terrorists' cause, but were arrested as accomplices in the Tokio outrages before they could act. At that time, he said, the American ambassadorship was vacant. Joseph P. Grew had not yet arrived, and W. Cameron Forbes had left for home.

POLITICAL FEUD ON IN STOWE

The battle got under way at a meeting of the nine township commissioners last night, when hiring and firing were on a wholesale scale.

Ernest Angelo, a leader of the majority, was named chairman of the board, replacing Howard Millard, of the minority. Millard was offered the chairmanship of the building committee. He turned it down.

Jess McLaughlin, township clerk, was dismissed in favor of Alex Beam. Patrolman A. L. Logue and Edward Wicker were replaced by Louis Portello and Frank Paston. John W. Byrnes, warden, was let go and two new wardens were named, Nick Dianelis and Ernest Andrews.

SMITH GETS AID OF CLUBWOMAN

Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, of Crafton, a civic worker and club woman, has been named secretary of the women's division of the Judge Ralph H. Smith campaign committee, Mrs. C. A. Verner, chairman of the division, announced today.

Mrs. Coslowsky will give her full time to campaign work among women voters of the county. The women's division has offices in Judge Smith's campaign headquarters in the Law and Finance Building.

Mrs. Coslowsky was active in founding the Pittsburgh Red Cross chapter, Health Colony Club, Blind Girls' Club, Workshop for the Blind and the Crafton Women's Club, and was former president of the Congress of Clubs.

Wheat Crackels!

QUAKER Wheat RACKELS

THROW away your old ideas about regulation cereals. And enjoy breakfast as you never enjoyed it before! For a new, modern, up-to-the-minute cereal has just been created. Crisp. Brisk. Zestful. Different!

It's called Wheat Crackels. It's different because it's made by a just-discovered process never used in cereal making before.

How it's made

We take the rich energy parts of wheat. Compress these wheat hearts under 5000 pounds pressure to the square inch. Then the wheat is whirled in a seething cyclone of 500° of heat. It puffs. Expands. Explodes into delicious tissue-walled tidbits. Toasted and flavored to the Queen's taste.

The result is a cereal excitingly different from all others. It tastes as wheat has never tasted before. It looks exactly like delicious candy. It has a delicate, fresh crispness.

Get Wheat Crackels today from your grocer. See how wonderful it is to serve a cereal children adore. A cereal everyone likes. Serve Wheat Crackels tomorrow morning.

MAGEE OUT FOR COUNCIL, 'HANDS OFF' ON MAYORALTY

THREE MURDERS HERE BAFFLE SLEUTHS

Woman's Voice Clue In Mystery Mine Slaying

Three murders in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County in as many days, today continued to baffle city and county detectives, although the city sleuths reported nearing a solution in one.

Detectives hoped that a mysterious telephone call from a woman would aid in the solution of the murder of Frank Joy, 44, of 620 Twelfth street, Pitcairn, whose body was found in a mine near Pitcairn yesterday.

County Detective Edward Frank, who planned to trace the call today, said it was made to the home of John Shoop, 624 Twelfth street, Pitcairn, a neighbor of Joy, Sunday night. Shoop told detectives a woman asked him to call Joy to the telephone. When he returned to notify the inquirer that Joy had left his home a few moments previously, a man's voice answered:

"Okay."

A short time later Joy was seen pacing back and forth at the entrance of the mine by Charles Smith, a digger in the mine. Smith found Joy's body early yesterday, 300 feet from the entrance and partially covered with slate. His hand had been crushed by a miner's pick.

City detectives have been unable to find either clue or motive in the mysterious murder of Edward A. Sabel, 47, unemployed carperter, called from his home at 938 West North avenue, Saturday night and shot to death.

Lieut. Frank Ferris promised an early arrest of the killer of Carman Gaglianna, 55, one-time city street cleaner, who was shot in the home of his stepdaughter at 1609 Colwell street. Ferris said the suspect had fled the city, but that his whereabouts were known.

BOY, 3, STRUCK BY AUTO DIES

Running in front of an automobile, according to police, Charles Geslecdich, 3, of 346 Forty-fifth street, suffered fatal injuries last night. The boy was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where he died, by Dr. Harry R. Goldstein, of 205 South Mathilda street, who, police said, was driver of the car that hit him.

Suffering bruises and lacerations, Miss Martha Kenning, of 234 North Graham street, and Mrs. Helen Kopriver, of 112 Dell avenue, Duquesne, were recovering in their homes here today.

They were among 18 passengers on a Chicago-Pittsburgh-bound bus wrecked yesterday at West Point, O., near East Liverpool.

ILL, HIRES ROOM TO REST; DIES

Stricken by a heart attack, John Sloan Anderson, 66, a salesman, of 5869 Northumberland street, was dead today, according to a morgue report.

He died yesterday in a room at 20 East Carson street, which he had rented three hours before to rest from an attack of dizziness.

Anderson, a resident of Pittsburgh 40 years, had recently returned from Chicago, where he visited his wife, Mrs. Jane Braznell Anderson, and their daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Anderson.

CHIEF INJURED IN SPEED CHASE

Chief Charles Livingston, of the Dravosburg police, suffered a fracture of the collarbone yesterday when his motorcycle upset as he pursued a speeding automobile.

Livingston had followed the car from Bettis Field to Fifth and Richland avenues. There he drew his gun to shoot at the tires and lost control of his machine. A physician treated him.

Mother of 2, She'll Run for Burgess

MRS. ETTA CALLENDER HURTT . . . . . FAVORED BY THE DEMOCRATS OF WILKINSBURG

Mrs. Hurtt, wife of William Turner Hurtt, oil operator, pictured in her home today, prepared to throw her hat into the ring and enter the race for burgess of Wilkinsburg. She was indorsed last night at a meeting attended by Burgess William M. Turner, who will retire to take his expected appointment as Pittsburgh's postmaster. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

WOMAN FAVORED AS BURGESS

Mrs. Etta Callender Hurtt, of 726 Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, was indorsed by Wilkinsburg Democrats at a meeting in the Penn Lincoln Hotel last night to succeed Burgess William M. Turner, recently indorsed for postmaster of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Hurtt, wife of William Turner Hurtt, oil operator, is the mother of two children, William, Jr., 14, and Jane, 12.

Pay for Counterfeit Asked By Treasury

Employes of the City Treasurer's office have accepted four counterfeit $5 bills since February 18, and Treasurer H. Raymond Hilliard wants City Council to reimburse his office.

An ordinance authorizing payment of $20 to the department was referred to Council's finance committee.

Welles Could Be Employed to Keep The Milk Sweet

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 15.—Sumner Welles might come up to New York and promote better relations between the milk men and the state police.

We could use an ambassador on each oil well, too. It will not be long before your eggs are escorted in by an armed guard.

Seems that groceries start most of the trouble. Brazil has the coffee and Cuba all the sugar. Now the way to stop the riots is to let 'em keep their guns and take their spoons away.

We are plowing the cotton under and planting trees. That means we will have to take our mosquitoes without mosquito netting. A hardy race, those Americans.

We won't know much about the corn and wheat belts until the farmers get back from the streets of Paris in the Century of Progress.

That's the way the situation is at present. Nobody knows whether the United States has too much food or not enough bicarb of soda.

HOSPITAL WINS ZONE FIGHT

The Industrial Home for Crippled Children has been given the right to build a two-story fireproof building at the rear of its present home, 1427 Shady avenue, Squirrel Hill, in a decision by the Board of Adjustment.

Some residents of the neighborhood had sought to block the construction, declaring there was much noise from piano-playing and other activities at the home.

The new structure is to replace a frame building in existence before the passage of the zoning ordinance, and, although larger, will be needed to provide modern methods of treating the children, according to hospital authorities. The board in deciding the case placed much weight on the elimination of the fire hazard, its opinion stated.

Wilkinsburg Tax Penalties Held Up

Wilkinsburg taxpayers, whose 1933 borough taxes are still outstanding, may settle at face amounts until September 11, the borough council ruled last night. For the accommodation of citizens with funds held in restricted or closed banks, penalties of ½ of 1 per cent will not be levied until that time.

RAIDING SLEUTH OF 4TH WARD ON JOB

Told to Clean Up Vice, Oakland Constable Gets Busy

Constable John S. Ridge, of Oakland, who was recently ordered by Judge W. H. McNaugher to clean up alleged vice conditions in the Fourth Ward, today had begun to carry out the court's instructions.

Two of three women arrested by Ridge and Constables Ross Shaffer and Charles Gordon, of Justice of the Peace Margaret Morgan's office, in a raid at 2035 Fifth avenue, were held for court at hearings last night before Justice Morgan. The third was discharged when she testified she was employed as a maid.

Betty Moore, alleged proprietress, and Betty Hamala were held for court, and Lillian Anderson was discharged on testimony of Ridge, who said he made information against the address on complaints that it was a disorderly house.

Judge McNaugher, in recently granting Ridge's petition to remove Deputy Constable Andrew Conroy on the grounds that Conroy refused to assist Ridge in raids, said:

"I am going to give you until September 1 to clean up your ward. I want a report on what you have done and if I am not satisfied I shall see the District Attorney about having you cited for failure to perform your duties."

BIG TRUCK BAN TO GET TRIAL

Solid-tired trucks are to be banned from several streets during a 60-day trial period, beginning August 23, by order of Harmar D. Denny, Jr., safety chief.

The streets designated by Denny are Main street, between Penn avenue and Butler street; Fisk street, between Penn avenue and Butler street; Forty-second street, between Penn avenue and Butler street; Forty-fourth street, between Penn avenue and Butler street, and Forty-fifth street, between Penn avenue and Butler street.

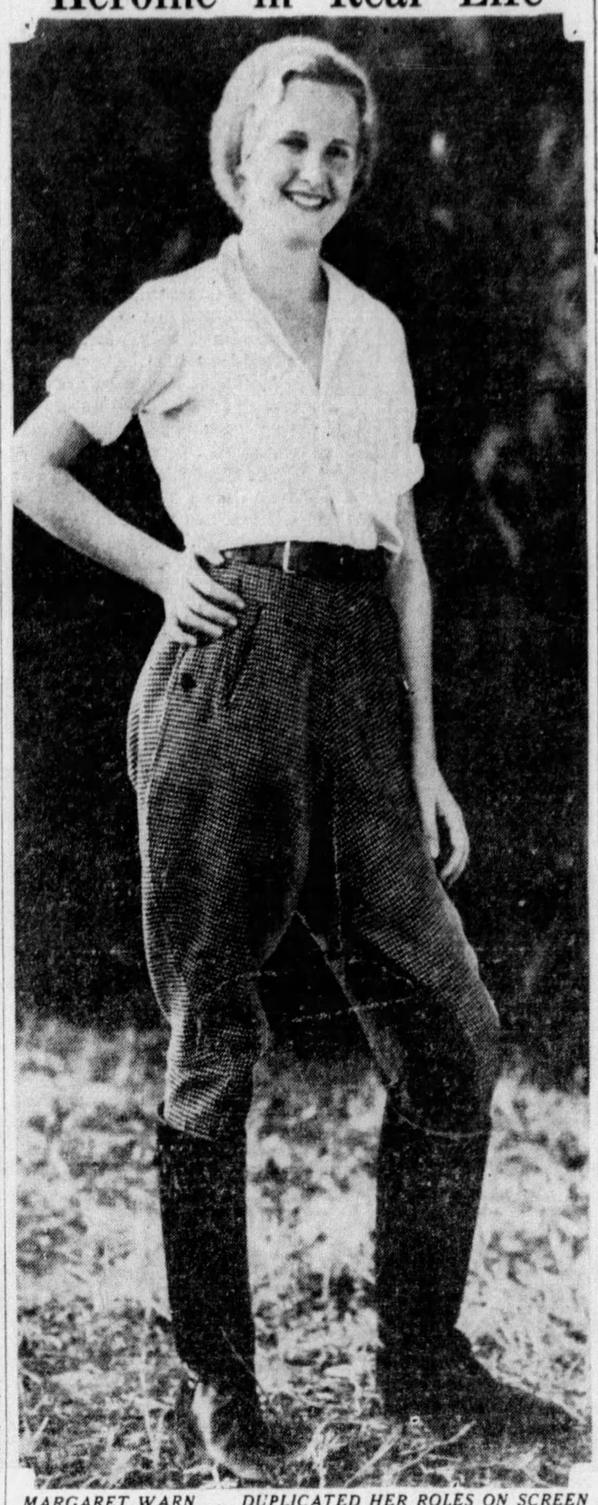
Thrift Garden Jar Campaign Opened

The Pittsburgh Community Council has opened a campaign to obtain jars for thrift gardeners who have surplus produce to preserve for the winter, but are unable to buy containers. Last year there were 36,000 quarts of preserved foods obtained from the thrift gardens. This year the output is expected to be doubled.

Persons who desire to assist should notify the Community Council, 725 Wabash Building; telephone Court 1780.

Heroine in Real Life



MARGARET WARN . . . DUPLICATED HER ROLES ON SCREEN

Cincinnati girl "double" for Helen Twelvetrees in daring motion picture scenes, who dived into the pool at the Grove City Country Club yesterday in a futile effort to save from drowning Alfred C. Wingold, a teacher at Carnegie Tech. Miss Warn assisted in removing Wingold from the water, efforts to revive him failed.

NEW DRY UNIT MAKES 2 RAIDS

Two alleged illicit distilleries were raided yesterday by agents of the recently reorganized prohibition unit of the new Federal Division of Investigation, they reported.

Ogsby Roy was arrested and a 100-gallon still seized in Neville street, officers said. The other raid was in Breesfort street, where a 35-gallon still was seized. The raids were the initial activities of the reorganized unit.

GIRL RISKS LIFE FOR SWIMMER

GROVE CITY, Pa., Aug. 15.—Margaret Warn, who faces danger in the movies as a vocation faced it for the sake of another here yesterday.

Miss Warn, who doubles for Helen Twelvetrees in dangerous film scenes, was playing golf at the Grove City Country Club when she heard cries from the companion of a struggling swimmer in a lake bordering the course.

She plunged in to the swimmer's aid, seized him, but could not bring him to the surface. A club employe came to her assistance and together they hauled out the swimmer, worked over him for two hours in an attempt at artificial respiration, but failed.

The drowned man was Alfred C. Wingold, Carnegie Tech instructor, who had been vacationing in Grove City. Married just a year, he had been at Tech since 1930.

Sale of Horoscopes Gets Man Jail Term

A man charged with selling horoscopes at Father Cox's farming community, Coxtown, on the Kittanning pike, was given a 30-day jail sentence last night. He is William Davis, 45, no home, who was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

At a hearing before Squire James Burgess, of O'Harr township, Davis confessed to selling the horoscopes at 10 cents each. Squire Burgess said he was wearing all the trimmings of a fortune teller when arrested.

Refused Money, Man Attacks 'Newsboy'

John Lutton, 63-year-old "newsboy" at Fifth avenue and Market street, testified in Central Police Court today that John McClanahan, 34, of Watsonia boulevard, knocked him down when Lutton refused him a quarter. McClanahan, fined $10, apologized and said he had been drinking.

HIS CANDIDACY APPROVED BY M'ARDLE

Former Executive May Be Found Linked With Malone

Former Mayor William A. Magee, indorsed for City Council by the Citizens' League on the same ticket with P. J. McArdle for the Republican mayoralty nomination, in announcing his candidacy today said he was "not committed to support or oppose any other candidate or ticket."

Magee filed petitions on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, and intimated he would be an independent candidate, despite his place on the McArdle ticket.

Nomination papers for James F. Malone as a Council candidate also were to be filed today. Malone, like Magee, will be an independent candidate, and probably will take no part in the mayoralty campaign. There is a chance that as the campaign progresses the Magee and Malone candidacies will be linked.

FLOOD OF PETITIONS

Petitions flooded the Bureau of Elections today, the last day on which candidates can become eligible for the primary September 19.

Mayor John S. Herron, McArdle and Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell, Republicans, and William N. McNair and John M. Henry, Democrats, the major mayoralty candidates, all had their petitions on file.

The Mayor's Council slate, consisting of the five sitting Councilmen, and the Mackrell slate, announced Sunday, all had their petitions in. The filing of Magee's petitions completed the Citizens League Council slate of Magee, Howard B. McNutt, former burgess of Knoxville, now the Thirtieth Ward; Robert N. Waddell, insurance man and former Carnegie Tech football coach; Charles Wolff, North Side grocer, and Edward O. Tabor, an attorney.

DEMOCRATIC SLATE

The regular Democratic organization, with McNair as its candidate for Mayor, had on its Council slate Representatives John J. Kane and Thomas F. Gallagher, George E. Evans, Walter R. Demmler and John M. Houston.

The Henry Democrats, opposing the Lawrence-Guffey organization, has selected no Council slate, and may not do so.

The formation of slates did not discourage other candidates, and unless there are many withdrawals by next Tuesday the councilmanic list will be a lengthy one.

M'NAIR ENCOURAGED

The McNair wing of the Democratic party was encouraged by an indorsement given it by James P. Bailey, who withdrew his own candidacy for City Council on the Republican ticket. Bailey is a bitter foe of Senator James J. Coyne, and the McNair group cited his support as refutation of the charge of independent Democrats that their candidate was in any manner allied with the Republican leader.

Bailey, praising McNair and the Democratic party, asserted that Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Councilman P. J. McArdle by remaining in the Republican race against Mayor John S. Herron were insuring his nomination

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Aug. 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Course could talk about "our warships going to Cuba," "our foreign trade picking up," "sixteen nations bought more," "president of France knocked down by a bicycle," that's not as bad as me the night I landed in Yokohoma, Japan, and got run over by a rickshaw.

Will Rogers

But the real bit of news was some ingenious Swiss from Switzerland. He wanted to smuggle some Swiss watches into Spain, so this old "yodler" drove a bunch of geese afoot from Switzerland clear across France to Spain, and he had the watches tied under the geese's wings. Think what a fellow could bring into this country, if he had himself a good bunch of trained whales. Yours, WILL.

MYSTERY DEATH IN COAL MINE PUZZLES SLEUTHS

MINERS AND POLICEMAN VIEWING BODY OF FRANK JOY IN COAL CAR . . . DEATH CAME BENEATH SLATE UNDERGROUND

The scene at the mouth of the Lloyd Grimm mine, on the Pitcairn-Monroeville road, as the body of the Westinghouse Electric employe was brought to the surface. Joy lived in Twelfth street, Pitcairn. Two deep head wounds indicated he had been slain, according to sleuths, trying to trace a mysterious telephone call by a woman. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Ball From Babe Ruth Too Late As Boy Dies

The baseball Babe Ruth autographed for James Jack, 16-year-old Oil City admirer of the Bambino, reached the Franklin Hospital too late to bring cheer to the youth. Jack was dead.

Injured Sunday, when he fell from a freight train upon which he was "bumming" a ride to Pittsburgh to see the King of Swat in an exhibition game here. Jack died a short time after Ruth, learning of the injury, dispatched a baseball to his bedside.

Shock following amputation of his crushed leg caused the boy's death, according to hospital authorities.

Hail of Police Bullets Kills Runaway Steer

For more than two hours police of the East End, Lawrenceville and Oakland chased the infuriated animal.

It was finally cornered on the avenue, where it was killed. Employes of the packing plant said nearly a score of bullets had lodged in the carcass of the animal.

CONTEST HALF OVER FOR CRUISES

Cruise Contest Rules

Here are the easy rules for the Sun-Telegraph "Contest Cruises":

Answer all 20 questions. There will be two questions every day in the daily Sun-Telegraph for 10 days beginning August 10 and closing August 21.

Write a letter of not more than 50 words telling why you need a vacation this summer.

Send answers and letter to the Cruise Contest Editor of the Sun-Telegraph. Four winners will be selected, two for each cruise. Correctness of answers and cleverness of letters will be considered in selecting winners. Judges' decision will be final. No entries will be returned. All entries must be in not later than August 25. Winners will be announced as quickly as possible after that date. In the event of tie, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

The two entrants submitting the most nearly correct sets of answers, accompanied by the most convincing letters, will be awarded 10-day cruises to Florida, all expenses paid. The next two most nearly correct sets of answers accompanied by the most convincing letters will be awarded 7-day cruises to Boston, expenses paid.

Entrants must be over 16 years of age. Employes of the Sun-Telegraph or their families, or employes of radio station WCAE, are not eligible to participate in the "Contest Cruises."

With the two questions in the "Contest Cruises" printed in the Sun-Telegraph today, this interesting contest is half over. There are only 10 more questions and it is expected that the four readers of the Sun-Telegraph who win these glorious ocean trips will be on the sea before the end of another two weeks. Two of these cruises will be to Florida and two to Boston, the winners sailing out of Baltimore on palatial steamships of the Merchants and Miners Line.

Each of these cruises has its historic aspects. Boston and its environs are rich in colonial and revolutionary war history. Florida, particularly St. Augustine, is of rare interest for the traditions of the early Spanish settlers. The Florida cruise will include a motor trip from Miami to Jacksonville—cool and refreshing with ocean breezes and the shade of myriads of spreading palm trees. This trip will require 12 days. The Boston cruise runs for a week, with three days in and around that historic city.

Answer These Questions —Win a Vacation Cruise

9—Is Indian River on the West or East coast of Florida?

10—Is Jacksonville North or South of Miami?

Two questions pertaining to Boston or Florida will appear in the daily Sun-Telegraph each day for 10 days. Save your answers until all questions have been printed. This coupon is for your convenience only. You may write your answers on a piece of plain paper if you wish. Be sure to read the rules. Questions 11 and 12 will appear in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph.

BUTLER TO WAR ON G.O.P. 'GANG'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Declaring war on the Republican organization of Delaware County, where he lives, Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler says:

"I am going to take the stump and do all I can to see that this gang is thrown out.

"Every decent citizen will oppose an outfit like that."

The retired commander of the Marine Corps declared in his opening attack:

"The recent disclosures of Delaware County graft by the Federal grand jury have convinced me there has got to be a new deal in Delaware County politics."

State Senator John J. McClure, the Republican leader, and 95 others were indicted by the grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

Butler is the second general to enter the primary campaign. He will support particularly Maj. John H. Fay, of Yeadon, a retired marine who is seeking the nomination for sheriff in opposition to Maj. Gen. William G. Price, Jr., retired commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard, and three others.

BODY OF SLAIN WOMAN FOUND

HAMPTON FALLS, N. H., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Dust-covered files of missing persons were scanned today for a solution to a year-old mystery—the slaying of an unidentified woman whose nude and dismembered body was found in a roadside thicket.

A wedding ring, a pair of slippers and a dark green leather bag were the clues police had to work on.

The slippers bore the label of a Boston store. The wedding ring was inscribed "L. D. to L. P. B." Those two clues formed the nucleus of an investigation in Boston, where the Bureau of Missing Persons searched months-old files for an entry that might coincide with the ring inscription.

The woman's body was found yesterday by a passer-by in a thicket off Cock Hill road. Dr. Wendell R. Clare, acting medical examiner, believed the body had been dismembered while the victim was still alive and he ordered the body taken to an Exeter undertaking parlor to await the arrival of Dr. Charles Duncan, state pathologist, from Concord.

Scores Awakened By Plant 'Blast'

Molten metal and water met in the Neville Island plant of the Davison Coke and Iron Company early today and there was a loud report.

It aroused scores of residents in the North Side, North Boroughs and McKees Rocks districts. There was no damage and no one was injured.

and the future influence of Coyne in city politics.

J. Garfield Houston, general chairman of the McArdle campaign committee, returned to the city today and conferred with Miss Hannah Patterson, vice chairman, and other members of the Citizens' League committee. After the conference it was announced campaign headquarters would be opened in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow.

PETITIONS FILED

Among those who filed nomination papers today were:

Thomas McDowell, 1607 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, Republican, Poor Director; Charles Wolff, 3720 Brighton road, Republican and Democrat, City Council; W. H. English, a deputy constable, of 921 Wylie avenue, Repuglican, City Council; Hugh F. McKnight, 1125 Davis street, Republican, Council; Joseph A. Hook, Jr., 2167 Webster avenue, Democrat, Coroner; Thomas J. O'Neil, 207 Thirty-sixth street, Democrat, Sheriff; Steve Balogh, McKeesport, Republican, Jury Commissioner; J. W. Collins, 516 Sheridan avenue, Republican, Sheriff; Louis Wechsler, 5545 Beacon street, Independent, Council; Frank I. Gollmar, Republican, Sheriff; Thomas Ashford III, 403 Oakland avenue, Republican, Council; Anna M. Winner, 215 East Eighth street, Homestead, on all tickets, Jury Commissioner; William Wright, 4574 Davison street, Republican, Council; Joseph Stack, 6924 Churchland street, Republican, Council; Edward M. Hough, 2651 Perrysville avenue, Republican, Council.

William H. Kennedy, Jr., 4122 Sydia street, on three tickets, Jury Commissioner; Herbert H. Davis, 828 Progress street, Democratic, Jury Commissioner; James N. Burke, 750 Lillian street, Democratic, Council;; John C. Meighen, Mayor of Duquesne, Democratic and Republican ticket.

Magee's Platform In Council Race

In announcing his candidacy for City Council on both the Republican and Democratic tickets, former Mayor William A. Magee declared that councilmen should not be satellites of the Mayor, holding that the "true seat of responsibility and authority in the city government is in the Council."

He asserted that in the past legislation too often had originated in the Mayor's office, and that "our City Council has never been noted for initiative." Mr. Magee said he was committed to the candidacy of no mayoralty candidate.

His announcement said:

"Many friends have asked me to run for Mayor. I am disinclined towards that office. The Council on the other hand greatly interests me and I think I might be useful to the public there.

"I have always contended that it is error to focus attention almost exclusively upon the activities of the administration and regard the Council as a satellite. The true seat of authority and responsibility in the city government is in the Council.

"The administration in law is responsible to the Council and the Council responsible to the people. In this and most American cities the political organization or machine has driven a wedge between the public officers and the voters so that the officers are largely responsible to the organization and the organization not being compelled to submit itself to the approval of the voters is not responsible to anyone.

"Our city Council has never been noted for initiative in public policies. Most measures have originated in the Mayor's office or in the departments. Some have come from the various civic and business bodies. The Council has been content to assume a judicial attitude listening to and passing upon argument for and against causes orginating elsewhere.

"I would escape factionalism by refraining from all participation in local politics. Particularly I do not hesitate to say I would take no pleasure in being a mere thorn in the flesh.

"Intending a non-factional and non-partisan official activity, if elected, and not being committed to support or oppose any other candidate or ticket, it is appropriate that I appeal to all voters for their suffrage. I shall, therefore, enter both the Republican and Democratic primaries."

Halsey Stuart Head Pleads Not Guilty

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—A plea of not guilty was entered today by Harold L. Stuart, head of Halsey Stuart & Co., investment house, to an indictment charging him, with 18 others, with using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the affairs of Corporation Securities, Inc., defunct Insull investment concern.

LIQUOR STARTS PRISON RIOT

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—A hundred convicts who rioted at the House of Correction on Deer Island, in Boston Harbor, were in their cells today, along with three alleged ringleaders who escaped but later were captured.

Guards hurling tear gas bombs suppressed the riot yesterday. A fourth prisoner who attempted to flee the island was caught before he could reach the narrow belt of water separating it from the mainland.

Those who made their way to the mainland before being captured were James J. O'Hara, alias Badger; John Kowalais and John F. McDonough.

O'Hara, who apparently had made good his getaway after his companions were caught, was found hiding under a house in Winthrop. Kowalais and McDonough were severely beaten in a fight with a policeman and a guard who cornered them.

Officials said O'Hara, Kowalais and McDonough apparently had obtained liquor from some source and after a series of arguments with guards and other prisoners went to the dining room and started the riot.

Political Group Invites Veterans

The United American Veterans Association has scheduled three meetings for Thursday night at which candidates who are veterans are invited to speak. The meetings are at Arsenal High School, Fortieth and Butler; Westinghouse High School, Murtland and Monticello streets, and Park Place School, Braddock and Wavery streets. Twenty other meetings are to be held during the week.

Veterans desiring to speak at these meetings should make application at headquarters in the Century Building.

Mrs. T. D. Rodgers Seeks Reno Divorce

Mrs. Bessie Kneeland Rodgers, 45, formerly of Pittsburgh, has applied for a divorce from her husband, Thomas D. Rodgers, 47, on the grounds of cruelty, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Reno, Nev. They have two children.

They were married in Pittsburgh in 1914, but for the last few years have lived in Philadelphia. Rodgers is a metallurgist and when married was a member of the Pittsburgh Male chorus. Mrs. Rodgers was the daughter of the late Edward Kneeland, local manufacturer.

I drive for pleasure

. . . says one AMOCO-GAS user

"AND I want every mile to be a pleasant mile. No ping, ping, ping of carbon every time I hit a grade. No exasperating gear shifting every time I take a stiff hill or drop into a line of traffic. When I step on the starter I want action--instant action. I want riding ease--driving ease --and a motor that runs like a watch.

"That's why I buy AMOCO-GAS! It gives me these things.

"But do you think I pay extra for these motoring luxuries? I do not! I've got it all figured out. The added mileage of AMOCO-GAS more than wipes out the lower initial price of "regular" gasoline. So these comforts cost me nothing. They're as free as air."

That is true. On a cost-per-mile basis, the cost of AMOCO-GAS--the original special motor fuel--is actually less than that of "regular"--or any other special motor fuel!

So why buy only mileage? Get the many luxuries of AMOCO-GAS with it! And since the premium has been reduced 2¢ a gallon your motoring costs are even lower!

KAUFFMANN, SHACOSKI BECOME RIVALS

(Note—James J. Long is on vacation. During his absence this column will be written by the Sports Editor.)

THERE IS only one Babe Ruth. It is doubtful if baseball ever will see his equal as a personality and attraction. There is something majestic and compelling about the big fellow as he trots out there on the baseball field, as he meets people, as he busts one, as he does almost anything.

This was brought home again forcibly to local fans yesterday when Ruth played his third exhibition game in Pittsburgh in addition to having appeared at Forbes Field in world series combat since he made his initial appearance here in 1920.

Babe Ruth

Yesterday's one-man show may have been the Babe's last in Pittsburgh, unless the Pirates get into the world series. He is getting on in years and is near the end of his glamorous playing career. He says he will be satisfied with two more years as a player. But his memory will live as long as the game endures.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody is gunning for her eighth National singles tennis title at Forest Hills this week, to equal the record of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, her predecessor. Twice Mrs. Moody has remained out of the competition, or she might now be holding an unassailable record.

Gene Sarazen, badgered into playing in the P. G. A. tournament against his will, wins the title for the third time, swaggering through the field in the true champion's manner.

When real greatness arrives on the sports scene it lingers long. Years from now they'll still be talking about the Babe Ruths, Mrs. Moodys, Gene Sarazens, Bobby Joneses, et al.

GIANTS' PITCHING PIRATES' BUGABOO

Our Pirates, invading the East for their final swing through that territory, beginning tomorrow, are in a position where they must hope for the collapse of the New York Giants as well as a winning campaign of their own. Playing on alien fields, as against a long home stay for Bill Terry's crew, the odds are all against the locals. If the Giants' superfine pitching continues, the hope is almost a dead one, but smooth-functioning pitching staffs which have carried on for a long stretch have been known to go to seed all of a sudden. One of the Pirates' consolations is the fact that the Giants have been winning on a minimum amount of hitting and run-scoring. If their pitching cracks, and the Pirates' pitching at the same time hits its stride, great possibilities lie ahead for Manager Gibson's second-place crew, but only in the event of such a happy combination.

NEW PRO STARS IN GREAT MATCH

Lost in the maze of public interest in the battle between two such favorites as Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, one of the toughest matches ever waged in the semi-final round of an important tournament was fought by two comparatively unknown players in the P. G. A. tournament. It was the clash between Jimmy Hines, of New York, and Willie Goggin, of California, which eventually was won, 1 up, by Goggin. All square at 18 holes, neither player ever was able to boast of a lead of more than two holes at any stage over the 36-hole route. It was quite a feat for these two newcomers to reach the semi-finals, and their fighting qualities throughout their penultimate round battle indicates they will be heard from in the future.

YAROSZ SIZES UP CHAMPION BROUILLARD

Ted Yarosz, training in his camp near Aliquippa for his crucial test with Vince Dundee at Forbes Field next Monday night, has rather sold himself on the idea that he is a man of destiny in the fight game and that his destiny is the middleweight championship. To sit in the throneroom formerly occupied by such stars as the original Jack Dempsey, Bob Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy, Tommy Ryan, Stanley Ketchel, Billy Papke, Frank Klaus, George Chip, Mike O'Dowd, Johnny Wilson, Harry Greb, Tiger Flowers and Mickey Walker has become his consuming ambition, and he is leaving no stone unturned to realize it.

Yarosz witnessed the recent Lou Brouillard-Ben Jeby fight in New York, in which Brouillard won a claim to the title, and he believes he can defeat Brouillard. Brouillard is listed as a southpaw, but he is only a half-way left-hander. He started out as an orthodox boxer, but injured a couple of ribs and turned around to protect them as he continued his fighting career. The result is that he is a sort of half-and-half stylist, shifting about with first the right and then the left hand and foot extended. He is a chunky fellow. With the exception of Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, none of the little fellows ever has given Yarosz, a rangy youth, much trouble, and, with his right hand leads, he finds southpaws easy to fight.

PARKS GOLF PLAYOFF DEVELOPS FEUD

At South Park, on Thursday, Carl Kauffmann, three times National Public Links champion, and holder of many other titles, meets Al Shacoski, North Parks champion, for the County interparks golf title. They played the first half of the match at North Park last week, and Shacoski stands 1 up.

It is not generally known, but Shacoski came close to claiming the title by default when the South Park half of the match was postponed from last Thursday because of a heavy rain. The officials at South Park ruled the course in no condition for play, but Shacoski insisted upon finishing the battle as per schedule. He was quoted as saying he would show up at the starting tee and claim the match by default if Kauffmann did not appear. He was talked out of this arbitrary stand, but there is no secret of the fact that bad blood has developed between the rivals and both will cherish a decisive victory.

NO FAVORITE IN HAMBLETONIAN

David G. McDonald, veteran local harness racing man, cannot see an outstanding entrant in the Hambletonian Stake, the Kentucky Derby of the harness sport, to be contested at Coshen, N. Y., tomorrow. It is the first time since the inception of the classic, in 1926, when it was won by the Pittsburgh-owned Guy McKinney, that there has been no real public choice. Spencer McElwyn, the winter book favorite, has not come up to expectations. The stake is worth $60,000.

WAXMAN ASKS FOR NEUTRAL OFFICIALS

Returning to the Yarosz-Dundee fight, Max Waxman, manager of Dundee, is trying to persuade the Boxing Commission to name judges and a referee from neutral points for the match. He says he doesn't want any the better of the arrangements, but wants to be sure Dundee will get the decision if he deserves it. Personally, this writer never could see any sense in importing officials for any bout. If the officials who handle the run-of-mine fights throughout the year are not capable of officiating in any match, then they should not be in the minor affairs, either. And to import

WOMEN'S CHAMP ADVANCES IN CITY PLAY

By TOM BIRKS

Mrs. Margaret Curry, defending women's city golf champion and medalist in the qualifying round, advanced to the second round of the tournament at Schenley Park this morning when she defeated Mrs. Fred Frisz, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Leon Schwartz, Miss Edith Clarke and Mrs. Eva Blair also entered the second round as a result of their victories in the opening round.

Mrs. Schwartz defeated Mrs. C. E. Brinkman, 8 and 7; Miss Clark eliminated Miss S. Chismaric, 4 and 3, and Mrs. Blair vanquished Miss C. Ruch, 2 and 1.

In the second division, Mrs. M. S. MacMillan defeated Mrs. A. Kelly, 5 and 4, and Mrs. W. F. McAnally defeated Mrs. F. B. Smith, 1 up, in a 19-hole match.

In the final match of the second division, Mrs. Myrtle Stearns defeated Mrs. Mae Miller, 5 and 4.

Mrs. E. H. Shaffer defeated Mrs. R. K. McConnell, 6 and 4, in the final match of the St. Clair Country Club championship tournament for women yesterday.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: AN IRON GIRL OF BASEBALL—Even in the good old days of "iron men" in baseball no one attempted to pitch 200 games in one season, but during the season of 1931, Harriet Smith, hurling for the Hollywood girls' team on tour of the country, established that record. In the same season she accomplished the equally unbelievable record of pitching 83 innings in one week. Miss Smith is now a star hurler for the Cambridge All-Stars, of the Twilight League.

FORMER YANK STOPS BAMBINO AND MATES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Waite Hoyt's cleancut pitching performance against his former Yank buddies is likely to win him back a starting job on the Buc slab staff, it was believed today. Hoyt had so much stuff on his fast ball the American League stars were bewildered, and his effectiveness was made complete through his intimate knowledge of the batters.

Hoyt caused displeasure in the stands in the first inning by working on Ruth. There was a runner on the sacks and Waite naturally was trying to win. He had a three and one count on the Bambino when he walked him.

BABE STOPPED

Babe's erstwhile teammate gave him a fine "break" on Ruth's last two trips to the plate. Hoyt fed him some tailor-made pitches with the idea of providing a homer for the 11,000 fans. But the Bambino couldn't make the riffle. Babe broke his bat on one home-run pitch, his puny fly falling in Piet's hands. On his last attempt Hoyt aimed a perfect pitch to hit, but Ruth didn't get the rocket on the power part of his bat, although the resultant fly did carry almost to the right center wall, where Woodie Jensen turned in a one-hand catch.

Babe disclosed that he could not take as much "punishment"

SEEDED STARS BEATEN IN UPSET DUELS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN
Staff Correspondent.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 15. — Competition in the fourteenth annual Western Maryland tennis championships was resumed on the courts of the Women's Civic Club here this morning after completion of brief opening program in men's singles yesterday.

Rain Sunday night soaked the turf aplenty and delayed start of the inaugural bill, with result that only seven jousts were actually reeled off. Women's singles play will be added to the card this afternoon with men's doubles on the morrow's card.

FAVORITES UPSET

The tilting yesterday made up in spirit and upsets what it lacked in length. Two of the trio of seeded stars who went to the post were returned defeated, Bob Lampus, Shannopin ace, and fourth on the select list, falling before Dave Devlin, Westmont crack, 6-8, 6-2, 6-1, and Bill Weber, Clarksburg contender and seventh of the chosen octet, suffering a quick reversal at the hands of Kunkle, likewise a Westmonter, 6-3, 6-2.

Bill O'Loughlin, alone of the favored group, breezed through, the slim P. A. A. walloper trimming Wilbur Kennedy, of California, Pa., 6-1, 6-0.

J. G. Allen was the sole other Pittsburgher to slip from the roster, Bill Schaeffer, of Kingwood, eliminating him, 6-0, 6-4. Bud Leyda, of Shannopin, and Paul Sullivan, of the P. A. A., eased ahead by default of Howard Moore and Jarey Young, respectively.

SEEDED STARS SCORE

BEAVER FALLS, Aug. 15.—Play in the second round of the annual Beaver County tennis tournament continued for today, with all the seeded stars having survived yesterday's first round engagement.

Some excellent tennis marked yesterday's initial round competition. The summary:

Preliminary—Fay defeated Lavine, 6-1, 6-2; De John defeated McFall, 6-1, 6-1; Roth defeated Mowry, 6-0, 6-1; McOlligan defeated Jannuzzi, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

First round—Daugherty defeated Rhinehart, 10-8, 3-6, 6-2; Hill advanced by default; Littell advanced by default; Fay defeated Forsythe, 6-0, 6-0; Mullins advanced by default; Brigham and Hatch advanced by default; Weigler defeated Ginsberg, 6-3, 6-4; De John, Mathieson, Scott, McOlligan and Roth advanced by default.

Second round—Littell defeated Daugherty, 10-8, 3-6, 6-2; Mullins advanced by default; Hatch defeated Brigham, 6-1, 6-1; Wrigler, defeated De John, 3-6, 6-0, 7-5; Reeves advanced by default; Mathieson defeated Scott, 6-4, 6-3; Roth defeated McOlligan, 6-1, 8-6.

BAUR, REDMOND WIN

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 15.—Favorites battled in the second round of the twenty-eighth annual Northwestern Pennsylvania tennis tournament here today, with all seeded stars remaining in the action.

In yesterday's first round tilts, Byron Baur, former Pitt star, and Jack Redmond, of Pittsburgh, were victors. The summary:

Men's Singles.

G. Seewagen, Bayside, L. I., defeated W. Hoyer, Columbus, O., 6-1, 6-1; L. Keith, Cleveland, defeated F. D. Rabic, Erie, 6-0, 6-3; W. Griswold, Erie, defeated R. McCord, Northeast, 6-2, 6-2; H. Whiting, Erie, defeated W. McCabe, Perry, O., 6-3, 6-3; B. Stanton, Oil City, defeated T. Hogan, Erie, 8-6, 3-6, 7-5; E. Yeo, Greenville, defeated R. Fulton, Flushing, N. Y., 6-2, 6-2; A. Cohen, Erie, defeated R. Perkins, Sharon, 6-3, 2-6, 9-7; R. Keck, Oil City, defeated E. Yeo, Greenville, 6-4, 8-10, 6-4; H. C. Wick III, Cleveland, defeated H. Weyand, Erie, 6-2, 6-3; L. Skinner, Erie, defeated R. Stanton, Oil City, 6-1, 6-3; R. Kintz, Erie, defeated J. Johnson, Meadville, 6-3, 6-4; B. Bauer, Erie, defeated Hacenberry, Edinboro, 6-0, 6-0; J. Velzio defeated W. Junior Girls' Singles.

Nancy Blair, Erie, won by default from Antionette Dematteo, Erie. Lillian Gillespie, Erie, defeated P. Hastings, L. Park, 6-0, 6-3; M. St. Lawrence, L. Park, won by default from Ann Serfozo, Erie.

FAVORITES ADVANCE

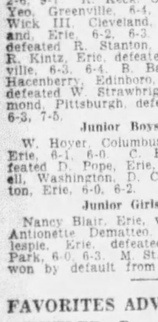
BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 15.—Eight seeded players reached the second round of the third annual Butler County tennis tournament at Evans City. Only two of the 12 matches went more than two sets, the majority being won in easy fashion. The summary:

William Fehrs defeated C. McMillan, 6-2, 6-2; H. Zeigler defeated T. Ottutt, 6-3, 6-1; Ernie Reed defeated M. Heyl, 6-3, 6-1; L. Goodman defeated Paul Wohlgemuth, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2; Tom Walsh defeated Charles Fullerton, 6-3, 7-5; L. Jacobson defeated S. Schonuckler, 6-1, 6-3; M. Horwitz defeated H. Baetje, 6-1, 6-0; F. Rehorst defeated L. Snakely, 6-2, 4-6, 6-1; F. McMillan defeated William Gregg, 6-1, 6-2; B. McMillan defeated E. McClain, 6-3, 6-1; S. Horwitz defeated Les Reider, 8-6, 6-1; V. Fienner defeated B. Rhoads, 6-0, 6-0.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—There may be a depression going on, like some of the city papers claim, but there's been as many special "days" as usual this season. And this is always the order of events:



1. Six hundred friends and neighbors of Clarence Glotz, the Blue Sox's sensational assistant substitute left fielder, come up from East Junkville to the big city ball park.

2. The Mayor Nick Altrock of East Junkville presents Clarence a six-foot hunk of flowers and a platinum wrist watch at home plate.

3. The first time up, Clarence strikes out on three pitched balls.

4. The second time up, Clarence hits into a double play.

5. In the seventh inning, with the score tied, Clarence gets blinded, muffs a high fly and lets in two runs.

6. In the ninth, with the bases loaded, Clarence hunts a pop fly to the pitcher that ends in a triple play.

They say there is nothing certain in baseball, but I begs to differ. You can always count on a player making a bum out of himself when he has a special "day."

FOXX SETS AMERICAN LOOP BATTING MARK

A'S SLUGGER DRIVES HOME NINE RUNS

Associated Press.

There's a new brilliant shining today in the bonnet of pink-cheeked Jimmy Foxx, a new American League record of nine runs batted in in one game added to the walloping achievements of the new king of baseball's sluggers.

As the old dynasty of Babe Ruth fades slowly, halting only for occasional outbursts such as last fall's home run orgy in the World Series and the spectacular display of the all-star game in Chicago, the wonder of Foxx, the easy-going farmer boy from Maryland's somnolent Eastern Sho,' steadily rises.

PROTEGE OF BAKER

He hasn't the flair of Ruth, this 26-year-old barrel-chested horse-hide buster Home Run Baker coaxed from the hind end of a plow and shipped to Connie Mack nine years ago as part payment on the debt of gratitude he felt toward the ancient pilot. He hasn't the instinct for publicity, the booming personality that somehow has clothed even the ordinary deeds of Ruth with a public awe and worship that has grown with the Big Bam through the years.

But never in all the Babe's 20 years of big league play has he loosed more devastation at the plate than Foxx unleashed yesterday as the Athletics slaughtered Walter Johnson's Cleveland Indians, 11 to 5, in the first game of their western invasion.

In the first inning Jimmy tripled with two on. In the second he hit his thirty-fifth home run of the season with the bases loaded. A double in the fourth chased home another run. A single scored two more in the sixth. And to add the perfect Ruthian touch, Jimmy fanned magnificently in his final try in the ninth.

TIGERS BEAT SOX

The nine runs he drove across the plate broke the record of eight set by Roy Hartzell, of the Yankees, in 1911.

Aside from the glamor of Foxx's achievement, the day in the majors was a typical blue Monday, with Detroit beating Boston, 6 to 5, in the only other game played. The National League's lone match between the Phillies and Giants was rained out.

Dodgers Deny Street New Pilot

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Revived reports that Gabby Street, former pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, will succeed Max Carey as manager of the Dodgers in 1934 again were emphatically denied today by officials of the Brooklyn Baseball Club.

Street, it was reported, already has been signed to replace Carey for next season in an attempt to build the team into a pennant-winning club.

GRAPHIC GOLF

RIGHT HAND IMPORTANT IN IRON SHOTS.

In iron play the right hand supplies the punch. No less an authority than Bobby Jones states this. True, the left hand plays its part in taking the club back and in the initial phases of the downswing. Once past the hips, however, when the wrists begin to uncock, the right takes charge and gives the power as the clubhead is sent through the ball. The left must not be allowed to collapse in any event. It should retain its sound grip on the shaft and be straight at impact.

CABOT ENTERS HEARST RACE

By STEVE HEALEY
Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Charles Cabot, New Haven, Conn., last year's winner of the New York to Albany race, is the latest entry in the second annual William Randolph Hearst-Herald and Examiner Gold Cup regatta to be held on the north lagoon of the World Fair Sunday, August 20.

Cabot, a leading eastern professional driver, set a new world record of over 44 miles an hour in the 132-mile grind.

With the entry of Cabot the East will have the greatest number of stars ever to represent that section in a Midwest regatta.

The best of the amateur drivers are entered for the beautiful William Randolph Hearst trophy. The professionals, while not eligible for the gold cup, have entered the many other races for cash prizes that are on the long program.

James Mulroy, executive secretary of the National Outboard Association, today completed plans for this, the largest regatta of the season.

Some idea as to the magnitude of this regatta may be gained from the fact that, with the event five days off, the entry list includes representation from 21 states and from several sections of Canada.

MOHLER MARRIED

GLENDALE, Cal., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Orville Mohler, former football star of the University of Southern California and now playing with the Mission Coast League baseball club, and Miss Bernadine Olson were married here yesterday. The bride is the daughter of C. R. Olson, of Glendale.

NEGRO LEAGUE CARDS GAME IN CHICAGO

Stars from the National Negro Baseball League, representing the East and the West, will compete in an all-star game, September 10, at Comiskey Park, Chicago, it was announced today by Gus Greenlee, president of the league.

The game has been arranged along the lines of the recent National-American League game played at the same park. The selection of the teams will be by popular ballot.

With the Pittsburgh Crawfords running close for championship honors, it is expected that players of the caliber of Satchell Paige, Oscar Charleston and Josh Gibson will make up the team. Much interest is following the game in Chicago, Detroit and Philadelphia, in fact in every city where Negro baseball is played on a large scale. Tickets will go on sale at Comiskey Park next Saturday and a large delegation of local fans will take in the game.

Two games are carded in the City League this evening, Whitaker meeting the Gillespies again at Brentwood and the Ottie Cochran club clashing with Homewood.

In last evening's tilts, Whitaker routed the Gillespies, 20 to 8, and the Books trimmed the Cochrans, 8 to 1, to remain in the running for the second-half title.

In the Gillespie-Whitaker tilt, the league leaders punched out 17 hits, including three by Sirtich. Speirs connected four times to lead the attack of the losers.

HAMBLETONIAN FIELD CUT TO 12 STARTERS

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Twelve 3-year-old trotters, including Mary Reynolds, the favorite, today were named for the renewal of the $50,000 Hambletonian Stake over the mile track at Good Time Park tomorrow.

Mary Reynolds, owned by W. N. Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C., and driven by the veteran reinsman, Ben White, drew post position No. 3 for the first of three-out-of-five mile heats. The Southern owned filly, victor in the Championship Stallion, the Peninsular Farm and National Stakes, is expected to start the choice at 2 to 1 to whip the country's fastest 3-year-old trotters.

OLIVER HORSE NAMED

Spencer McElwyn, winner of the Matron Stake and an outstanding juvenile last year, will break from the pole under the guidance of Marvin Childs. The colt will cary the silks of Henry H. Knight, of Chicago.

The other entries are:

I. O. Blake's Atlantic Volo, of New York City; William H. Cane's Big Ben, of Goshen; Captain Hanover, from the Hanover (Pa.) Farms; J. L. Dodge's Hollyrood Portis, of Lexington; Henry Oliver's Poplar Hill, of Sewickley, Pa.; Thomas Ashworth's Prince Hall, of Cheriton City, Mass.; Allan J. Wilson's Sir Raleigh, of Boston; Harry W. Scott's Mary Sunshine, of Philadelphia; J. I. Lyle's Brown Berry, of Plainfield, N. J., and Meurice, from William Hughes' Stable, of Cleveland.

CARDINALS WIN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—St. Louis Cardinals walloped the Rochester Red Wings, of the International League, in an exhibition game here yesterday, 4 to 1, after the Red Wings had bowed to Albany, 5 to 2, in a regular league game.

FINNEY RECALLED

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Lou Finney, outfielder of the Montreal Royals, in the International League, has been recalled by the Philadelphia Athletics and will report to the team in Cleveland.

Keck's Sport Comment

officials casts a reflection upon the home talent, causing it to lose the respect of the fans.

A bad decision in a bout of the proportions of this one would be the very worst sort of a break for boxing in Pittsburgh, and every precaution likely will be taken to see that the most capable men are appointed to the task of rendering the proper decision at the finish, so that Waxman's fears appear to be rather groundless. Still, it is not a bad idea for him to yell "Wolf" before the fight rather than afterward.

ELDRED STILL THE CHAMPION

Regardless of the fact that he dropped his State Open golf title at Scranton recently, and was one of Gene Sarazen's victims in the P. G. A. tournament in Milwaukee last week, Vincent Eldred, the Highland Country Club professional, still is the king bee among the local professionals when it comes to competitive battling, as he demonstrated yesterday when he fought his way to the West Penn Open title with a fine 139 over his home course.

Tanguay, Rhodes Sign With Rooney

Another lineman and another star back have been added by Art Rooney, president of the newly-organized local professional football team to the club's roster.

Rooney today announced that Don Rhodes, of Ocean City, N. J., a tackle on last year's Wash-Jeff varsity, had been signed. Rhodes tips the beam at around 250 pounds and is powerful and fairly fast.

Having signed a fullback from the West Coast in Angel Brovelli, Rooney added another backfield star from the East in Jim Tanguay, former New York University halfback star. Tanguay's signed contract was received last night.

GRID LOOP FORMED

With applications from a number of other sandlot football teams on file, the first division of a district football conference has been formed, with the Rox Rangers, Scott Morgans, Etna Sycamores, Tarentum Firemen and Oakland Community in line.

Mazuzan Named South Park Coach

Paul Mazuzan, the district's ranking polo player, has been signed to coach the South Park polo team. The announcement of the signing of Mazuzan, star of the Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Club, was announced by William (Buck) Voltz, playing-manager of the South Parkers. Mazuzan will sever his connections with the Polo and Riding Club.

The South Park team will meet the West Shore Polo Club in Harrisburg in a set of week-end contests early in September.

BELGIUM VICTOR

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Winning one of two final singles matches, Belgium yesterday qualified for the 1934 competition in the European zone of the Davis Cup, defeating Sweden three matches to two.

KITZMILLER RETURNS

JACK WESTROPE BOOTS FIVE HORSES HOME

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—In a brilliant exhibition of horsemanship, Jack Westrope, the Riding Fool from Montana, yesterday stole the show at Hawthorne as he booted five of his seven mounts home in front of their fields.

Starting in the opening number with the Keeneland stud's Chagrin, Westrope won the second with J. Lowenstein's Doris Jean, the fourth with E. R. Bradley's Bitty Bit, the fifth with Broad Meadows, also from Bradley's Idle Hour farm, and the sixth with the Blue Ridge farm's Dusky Devil.

Like most of Westrope's mounts, all of his winners were well backed in the mutuels. Doris Jean paid the shortest odds, of $3.46 for $2, while Dusky Devil returned the longest, $8.42 for a $2 straight ticket. Broad Meadows paid $4.48, Bitty Bit, $6.26, and Chagrin, $7.78.

ELDRED WEST PENN CHAMP

HIGHLAND PRO CRACKS COURSE MARK TO WIN

By TOM BIRKS

Staging a great comeback with a record-breaking 66, five under par, to create a new course record, Vincent Eldred, popular Highland Country Club professional and former state open champion, finished with 139 to win the Western Pennsylvania open title over his home course yesterday and beat out Johnny Capebianco, little professional from the Aliquippa Country Club, by the slight margin of one stroke. Vince was 3 under par for the 36 holes.

Perry Del Vecchio, of Greensburg, the defending champion, led the morning round by setting a record of 67, but finished in third place with 67-74—141. Ernie Jacobs, of Castle Shannon, took home fourth money with a 143; Rader Jewett, of Wheeling, was fifth with 145, and Art Snyder, of Alcoma, and Charley Manning, of Shannopin, divided the sixth-place prize money with 146 each.

Knox Young, Jr., of Shannopin, led the large field of amateurs by matching par with 142. The scores:

BUDGE ADVANCES

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Without once swinging a racquet, Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal., seeded No. 1, advanced to the third round of the men's singles in the Wisconsin state open tennis tournament, which opened on the Town Club course yesterday. Budge drew a bye in the first round and won by default from William Kaeser, of Madison, Wis., in the second.

WINS TENNIS TROPHY

ALTOONA, Pa., Aug. 15.—E. C. Bonistall gained permanent possession of the Bendridge trophy when he won the Blair County singles tennis title for the third time here yesterday, defeating Donald C. Perry, fellow-member of the Blair County Tennis Club, 5-7, 6-4, 9-7, 6-0, in the final round.

JOE DAWSON CAPT. ALFRED WILLIAMS

Two aviators who made their start in baseball and got into the big leagues as pitchers talk things over as the Pirates and Yankees battle in their exhibition game at Forbes Field. Joe is a former Pirate hurler, while Capt. Williams, noted flier, now located here, was with the New York Giants. Capt. Williams pitched against the Yankees in practice yesterday. He is a close friend of Art Fletcher, the coach, who piloted the Yankees here for Manager Joe McCarthy. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph pictures.

as he could absorb five years ago. He was referring to the mobbing scenes which are a part of his existence.

As the great player came out of the Schenley Hotel about noon to enter an auto which was to carry him to the Sun-Telegraph office for a radio broadcast, he was stormed by about 50 kids, who refused to leave the neighborhood while their hero was in the hotel. The force of the rush of youngsters staggered the big fellow, who shouted good-naturedly:

"Take it easy, boys, and none of us will be hurt."

KIDS RUSH BABE

There was another grand rush at the Sun-Telegraph office, and when Babe headed for the ball park from the hotel about one hour later he was stormed again. Babe was so tired by this time he dodged through a side entrance before the kids could nail him.

Ruth is heir to the same troubles that afflict most people who travel. Said Babe:

"I didn't get any sleep coming over from Washington last night and I don't suppose I will be able to sleep on the way to St. Louis tonight. It's a bit hard to stay pleasant under conditions of this sort, but as long as the youngsters get a kick out of it, it's O. K. with me. However, I do find I cannot stand up under it like I did five years ago."

Ruth's outward appearance indicates he is better physically than he was in some of his youthful years, but apparently there has been a big drain on his legs in his 20 years of exciting action. Babe was hardly a novice in his play around first base. He turned in two difficult plays, one of them a jumping one-hand catch of a line drive. Nevertheless, he was not so keen for action when Fred Lindstrom tried to hit through him on a hit-and-run effort. As Lindy's play missed fire, Babe made a gesture to Fred and shouted:

"The other way, the other way!"

Gus Suhr stole the homerun show from the Babe in the interesting exhibition tilt, which the Pirates copped, 10-2. Gus drove a long homer into the right field stands with two aboard in the seventh. The Gibson Clan won the battle in the fourth when they scored seven runs off Walter Brown, big righthander who worked seven innings for the Yanks.

BUCS IN SCRANTON

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 15.—En route East on their last big invasion, the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped off in Scranton today for the purpose of playing the Scranton Barons of the New York-Pennsylvania League. The event was arranged as a tribute to Pitcher Bill Swift, Pirate slab star, a Scranton boy.

Immediately after the contest Manager Gibson will lead his baseball hosts toward New York where they will start their Eastern series tomorrow by staging a doubleheader with the Dodgers at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

WOMEN STARS OPEN PLAY AT FOREST HILLS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—An unexpected day of ease, bridge and shopping, coming just when rest was least needed, found the field eager and fresh today for the start of the annual women's national tennis championships.

Rain that left the courts slick and slippery forced officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association to postpone the opening round play yesterday and left the stars of the women's tennis world, Helen Jacobs, defending champion; Helen Wills Moody, seven times titleholder, and the remainder of the ranking players of America and Great Britain to their own devices.

Mrs. Moody, favorite to win the singles title and equal the record set by Mrs. Molla Mallory, spent the day shopping, apparently completely recovered from the back injury that forced her out of the recent Wightman Cup play with Great Britain. Miss Jacobs worried about her first appearance in "shorts." She asked:

"Do you think I'll look all right? Gee, I hope so. I talked to mother by phone out on the coast a while ago and she said it was all right. Don't you think they are nice? Do you see why anybody should object?"

No one could see any valid reason for objecting, not even the officials who have frowned on "shorts" for women at Forest Hills in the past.

Indications that Mrs. Moody was again in perfect physical condition were seen in her entry with Elizabeth Ryan, former Californian, who has been living in England, in the doubles competition, where they are top seeded. It was expected she would forego the doubles play if she feared her back would not stand the strain. Miss Jacobs and Sarah Palfrey, of Boston, are seeded second.

VINES VICTOR AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, striving for his third straight Newport Casino tennis title, today led the brilliant field into the third round with victories over the 58-year-old Russell Dana, of Pawtucket, and Henry Prusoff, of Seattle.

After defeating Dana, 6-0, 7-5, in the first round, he eliminated Prusoff, 6-1, 6-3.

WHEAT PARLEY TO RESUME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace said today this country was prepared to accept "any reasonable plan for European co-operation" involving the reduction of wheat production "which is satisfactory to Canada, Australia, and Argentina."

GENEVA, Aug., 15.—(AP.)—A world wheat agreement is the object of a conference called today by the League of Nations to be held in London August 21.

The four principal wheat exporting countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—will be the outstanding participants. An official communique said:

"The conference, which will be held within the framework of the world economic conference, will be devoted to seeking an international agreement on production of and trade in wheat, on the basis of conversations begun at Geneva May 10 by the four chief exporters, and continued in London."

The following states were invited to attend: Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Hungary, the Irish Free States, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Soviet Russia and Yugoslavia.

Financial Topics

Washington Not Likely To Permit Slump In GGrains

The situation in the grain market is looked upon as likely to command a good deal of attention in administration quarters as higher price level for commodities is regarded as the foundation stone of the administration program for recovery. Extension of the declines in basic grain prices would, it is expected, be looked upon as offering serious threat to the success of such plans. And feeling is that those in authority rather than permit such interference would take recourse to some part of the inflationary equipment in their hands sooner than had been contemplated as an offset.

Many in Wall street believe that first efforts of the administration to stimulate fall business activity will probably be through the medium of credit expansion. It is pointed out that thus far no effort has been made to use even this means of artificial stimulus to anything like important scope. And it is not believed that any of the more potent means to inflation will be adopted until credit expansion ahs been trier more vigorously. Since the Reserve resumedopen market operations in March, it is shown, its additions to holdings of governments have not been by any means substantial, particularly since the early part of July. More liberal purchases designed to boost bank reserves and drive funds in search of employment are being anticipated as a nearby development.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace emphasised that the whole question of continuing or abandoning the wheat "pegging" was still a matter of discussion but said conferences were even in progress both in Washington and in Chicago. The secretary described the present situation in the wheat market as "very extraordinary" and one that has "never happened before." Secretary Wallace said he had heard the present market described as a "hedbers' corner on the short side." He explained there appeared to be very little speculative short interest in the market while so-called legitimate hedging was extensive. At the same time he added. The public as usual is in the market on the long side.

Another railroad re-organization is reported hanging over the market and partly explains the carriers' sluggish performance. The Street view is this is no time to get bearish on the rails, however. It should be kept in mind that the administration must keep on helping the rails, if only the first grade lines. In normal times the rails represent one of the largest customers of the basic industries in this country. They purchase 25 per cent of the bituminous coal, 19 per cent of the fuel oil, 16 per cent of the forest products, and 17 per cent of the total iron and steel output. With purchasing so long deferred these totals may be exceeded when the replacement demand finally starts.

As the administrators of the National Recovery Act continue to wrestle with the problems of the petroleum industry, the belief is growing in well-informed quarters that prices will be fixed and that adequate provision will be made to control production. Leaders in the industry hold that fixed prices without production control, adequately enforced, will open the way for oil bootlegging as bad if not worse than ruled before recent steps taken to eliminate such activities. Without production control, it is feared, moreover, that drastic competition would arise in the field of distribution.

Through writing down the value of its no par value common stock on the books and using the surplus so created to adjust the value of its investment in plants, etc., the American Locomotive Company was able to reduce its charge against earnings for the six months ended June 30 by more than half. A $307,429 deduction for depreciation with $746,612 in the same period last year. The balance sheet value of the stock was written down 90 per cent to $3,839,500, permitting a reduction in the value accorded properties from $61,667,761 to $35,628,826 and the value accorded the company's investment in General Steel Casting to $2,500,000 from $8,001,375.

Virginians Tie In Golf Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Aug. 15.—(AP.)—The sister states of Virginia and West Virginia ran neck and neck for honors in the fifth annual Virginias' Seniors' Golf Association tournament at the old White course.

Finishing the first half of the 36-hole medal score event, Dr. R. C. Bryan, of Richmond, Va., and Charles Ludey, of Parkersburg, W. Va., tied with 81 each. Trailing them by a stroke are Elmore D. Hotchkiss, Jr., of Richmond, making his debut as a senior, and A. H. Grimsley, of Clifton Forge, Va.

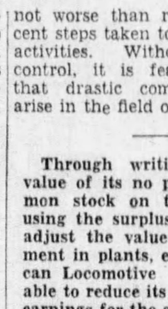
Forbes

No Time for Capital-Union Finish Fight

By B. C. FORBES

NATIONAL Recovery Administrator Johnson is a wonder, a veritable human dynamo, apparently possessing the strength of a Samson and assuredly animated by the zeal of a crusader. He not only radiates enthusiasm, but has extraordinary aptitude for inspiring enthusiasm in others.



Mr. Forbes

But is he wise in issuing so many threats, in daily emphasizing that unless NRA attains its gigantic objective in a few weeks, collapse will occur?

GEN. JOHNSON, President Roosevelt and every other official should be satisfied, gratified with the progress already made in inducing employers to flock under the wings of the blue eagle. Far more emphasis should be officially placed on the extraordinary achievements already won, much less should be said about the possibility and the appalling consequence of failure to attain immediate one-hundred-per-cent success.

It isn't easy to move a nation of one hundred and twenty millions. It takes time to bring about smoothly a beneficial industrial and economic revolution—which is, in the official analysis, what NRA seeks to accomplish.

Gen. Johnson has counselled others to have patience. He, too, should have patience.

UNDER THE surface, a tug-of-war is going on between the industrial "open-shop" adherents and advocates of labor unionization.

Henry Ford is a typical example of many large employers. He hasn't the slightest objection to paying more than the minimum wages prescribed in the President's blanket code or to abiding by any fixed maximum work-week. But he is inherently opposed to dealing with American Federation of Labor leaders or any other labor "outsiders."

THE HITCH in formulating and adopting a "steel code" is, in reality, also due to labor union considerations. The steel industry zealously is "open shop." The present attitude of powerful steel executives is accurately—and diplomatically—expressed by George M. Verity, veteran head of the American Rolling Mill Company, thus:

"There are individuals and groups who, even in these trying times, try to lead men into the belief that there is no such thing as 'common interest' between management and men, and that as a consequence their only hope lies in independent organization, where they can try to help themselves through a policy of demanding their rights rather than through friendly consideration and co-operation with their co-workers.

"The administrators of the National Industrial Recovery Act have themselves stated over and over again that their plans cannot succeed without the wholehearted co-operation of industry, of business of every kind, of capital and of labor. It is therefore evident that anything that tends to create misunderstanding, dissatisfaction with existing conditions, or to stir up conflict and dissension between groups who are and have been working happily together, is a crime against the nation.

UNQUESTIONABLY, President Green of the American Federation of Labor and his associates, are just as sincere in their belief in the benefits of unionizing all workers in America as Henry Ford is in his anti-union beliefs.

It will be deplorable if this issue should be allowed to endanger the whole gigantic movement to get the nation back on its feet.

The average consumer, the average citizen is infinitely less interested in a triumph either for the "open shop" or for unionization than he is in the restoration of prosperity, the restoration of employment, the restoration of living wages, the restoration of ability to pay debts and keep on carrying on.

MUST THE wellbeing of the whole nation be jeopardized by the staging at this critical juncture of a titanic battle for supremacy between union and non-union interests?

The public, if acutely aroused, is likely to thunder "A plague o' both your houses!"

GRAIN STATUS CLOUDS STOCK HORIZON

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—(AP.)—Security markets stepped carefully today as the grain price situation and firming dollar rates tended to cloud the speculative and investment horizons.

Stocks and bonds mulled about in unusually dull trading, with the ticker tape silent at frequent intervals, and most board rooms all but deserted. Grains at Chicago were unchanged at their minimum levels, and only a few scattered trades were made at the restricted quotations. Wheat recovered at Winnipeg after the authorities there "pegged" the selling figures. The dollar again moved up substantially in foreign exchange dealings. Cotton and other commodities were uncertain.

While the Chicago Board of Trade problem apparently was the principal deterrent to a revival of stock market enthusiasm, the recent climbing tendencies of the dollar again became a financial factor. In banking circles it was said the strength of American currency internationally could be attributed to several influences.

The principal one, it was believed, had to do with a moderate change in sentiment relating to inflationary possibilities. There is also said to be a huge short position in the dollar throughout the world. In addition, exchange dealers say, there is a considerable seasonal demand for dollars in commercial transactions around this time of year.

Commission houses here viewed the "pegging" of Winnipeg prices largely as a precautionary measure which, it was thought, might be of brief tenure. Owing to the Chicago restrictions—which are supposed to end today—a number of important traders with long positions in the Illinois city were hedging at Winnipeg. This selling against Chicago holdings, it was understood, was so unsettling to prices that officials of the Canadian exchange decided to impose temporary barriers.

Wall street, while hoping for normal signs of a fall upturn in heavy industry — particularly in steel—feels that this may be delayed somewhat this year. There has already been considerable stocking up of materials this summer in anticipation of a possible price rise in the next few months. Many traders, waiting for further clarification of codes and industrial price trends, are finding the sidelines most comfortable.

The cotton market apparently was inclined to ignore the rather optimistic consumption report of the Census Bureau, which showed the mills had used 20,000 to 25,000 more bales in July than had been expected.

CHICAGO 'PIT' AT STANDSTILL

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—The ceremony of blackboard exhibition of fictional quotations took place promptly today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

About the only variation from recent experience of brokers and spectators was placarding of a notice that no Winnipeg prices would be available today until half an hour after the usual time, while Canadian trade authorities considered what to do in view of abnormal conditions here.

Virually no dealings in any kind of grain were witnessed in Chicago, and prices which were formally posted were the minimum allowed under emergency rules, unchanged from yesterday and Saturday.

News that the Winnipeg grain exchange today had decided to follow the example of Chicago traders, and establish an absolute fixed minimum for grain prices was received nonchalantly here. Inasmuch as the Winnipeg minimum was announced to be identical with yesterday's close, little importance at first was attached to the course adopted by the Canadians.

Very different, however, was the reception given to the initial prices which came a few minutes later from Winnipeg. Delighted cheers went up from the crowd of idle Chicago brokers when the fact became evident that the Winnipeg market instead of standing still was rapidly advancing. More than four cents a bushel jump in Winnipeg quotations was shown. The maximum rise, though, was followed by a three cent reaction, and Chicago enthusiasm soon faded.

INFLATION NEAR TO MEET DROP IN PRICES

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—The business figures for the latest week show continued moderate reaction, and the trend of wholesale prices has been downward.

First came a bearish cotton crop report showing a much larger yield per acre. Despite the millions of dollars you and I are paying to farmers to plow up their growing crops, they are likely to produce more cotton than was originally estimated on the total acreage.

This should mean a low cost of production per pound and with a year's supply in the carry-over should mean low prices. Last week the price declined eight-tenths of a cent per pound, or more than $4 a bale.

Wheat prices also plunged downward, carrying other grains along.

It is quite evident that the only way prices can be raised is by artificial means of inflation. That would mean a reduction in the purchasing power of each dollar you have or get, so that the more dollars you receive the less each would buy.

SALES QUANTITY CUT

For example, the last report of a big chain store house showed increased dollar sales, but a reduced quantity of goods sold. Evidently in this case higher prices meant less merchandise bought by consumers.

Car loadings last week showed an unreasonable decline. Bank clearings were off, and below a years ago. Steel production slackened further. Automobile producers curtailed their output. Lumber production and forwardings of cotton to the mills slumped.

All this shows that economic laws are still working. Despite continuous reports of increased employment and wages, we are now seeing the results of the artificial stimulation of production this summer.

Needless to say, some retailers and jobbers are now rather heavily stocked with consumer's goods.

REAL INFLATION SEEN

But this condition may be only transitional. Probably it will last longer than many people hope, but it is only a question of time before real artificial inflation is resorted to, and the "public works" program gets under way.

The slow-moving public works program, however, will hardly amount to much until next year. Actual inflation is hanging fire, pending government financing and the development of the NRA schemes.

So any more-than-seasonal gains in business in the near future depend upon the industrial control measure, which are uncertain.

HEARST QUOTED

As William Randolph Hearst wisely says:

"If the codes are not applied with the utmost knowledge and judgment and consideration for various conditions, they will do more to retard recovery than to hasten it. In fact, they may stop it dead in its tracks."

I may add that all the whoopee and rallying of the estimable ladies and the armies of statisticians in Washington do not insure that Mr. Hearst's qualifications will be met.

So I think that the present slump in prices and industrial activity is likely to be temporary, and lead to the adoption of inflationary measures and the hastening of "public works," together with the expansion of the public debt, which these measures involve.

Personally, I do not think that NRA has been showing due consideration for the "various and varying conditions" in business. Hastily adopted blanket codes can hardly give such consideration.

Surely Mr. Hearst is right when he states that the government "is initiating measures which are more Socialistic than Democratic."

Business is likely to remain confused and backward until we give it a boost by inflation. Then we can at least know where we are going.

ROGERS TO WED THIRD TIME

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Col. Henry Huddleston Rogers, Standard Oil millionaire, it was learned authoritatively today, is planning to wed again.

Col. Rogers' third venture into matrimony, it was disclosed, will be made with Mrs. Pauline Van Der Voort Dresser, 40, a direct descendant of Peter Van Der Voort, one of New York's first Dutch settlers. Mrs. Dresser was formerly the wife of the late Carl K. Dresser, Tulsa (Okla.) and Bradford (Pa.) oil operator, whom she divorced in 1927.

The wedding is expected to take place in October.

Two Moscow Workers To Die for Thefts

MOSCOW, Aug. 15.—(INS.)—Nicolas Yourkovsky and Alexey Komagorkin, workers in the Moscow Gold Refining Factory, were sentenced to death today on charges of stealing gold bullion and old gold and silver coins.

They were tried with 13 alleged accomplices, all accused of being involved in a series of systematic thefts.

Six were sentenced to prison terms ranging from two to ten years, including Komagorkin's mother, and seven were acquitted.

REMEMBER 'Yellow Horse!'

MOSES YELLOW HORSE IN ACTION: 'PUT YELLOW HORSE IN!'

The one and only and original "Yellow Horse," the Pittsburgh Pirates' Indian pitcher of a few years ago. He so caught the imagination of the fans that even today at neighborhood mushball games they cry "Put Yellow Horse in!" is the accepted signal meaning "thumbs down" on the incumbent in the pitchers' box—or any other position, for that matter.

Have You Any 'Remember When' Pictures?

Gripping Story of Life Behind The Scenes at Hollywood

By ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

CHAPTER XXIX.

There was a little explosion in Leni's breast. A colorful liberation of gladness and satisfaction. She did something that amazed her as much as it did Mulrooney. She walked right over to him and gave him a smacking kiss on his chaste and glowing forehead. In that instant his nostrils inhaled a whiff of delicate perfume that made him clutch the arms of the chair.

"My wife—" Mulrooney began in a daze.

Leni snapped her fingers with a mannerism that was a curious revelation of her European background. Energetic impatience was crackling through her nerves.

"Forget your good wife and the four good children! I'm going to talk to Lucky.

Mulrooney was still breathing deeply from Leni's kiss. "That's okay. But it will have to be in my presence."

This was not what Leni desired, but it was much better than nothing. Her former sense of frustration and repression had miraculously vanished.

A change so subtle that she scarcely recognized it had taken place. Here before—since knowing Lucky Cavanaugh—her affairs and his had been manipulated and controlled by an outside force. Perhaps by destiny itself. They had been pawns, toys. But now—she was beginning to think through things. To attack instead of resist.

Everything continued — more or less—revolving in circles around her, but she was getting stabilized. Intelligence, recently paralyzed by emotion, was beginning to function.

MULROONEY'S SUPERIOR

Instinct told her that she was easily a match for Mulrooney. More—his superior. And it was Mulrooney, with the law clutched in his fist like a club, who had to be overcome. Strange that fate should incarnate itself in a chunky man with a stubby mustache and a detective star pinned to the under-side of his coat lapel.

"Very well, my friend, I concede your presence when I talk to Lucky Cavanaugh," she said with the sing of a taut wire in her voice. "Now you shall concede me something. You will bring Mr. Cavanaugh here—to this house. You have sufficient authority?"

Mulrooney had not foreseen this. It was irregular but not impossible.

"We can have a private room at headquarters for the conference" he said with a shade of obstinacy. "There's no point in bringing him way out here."

Leni's eyes flashed at him and her expression started an accumulation of heat under his collar.

"Please, please! Don't be so second rate, Mr. Mulrooney. You asked my co-operation and at once your brain begins to behave like a—like a janitor's! In the name of heaven, why shouldn't you bring him out here? Are you afraid I'd give you a cup of tea with poison in it?"

Mulrooney, according to his own lights, was a man of honor and pride. It was distinctly unpleasant to be accused by a beautiful woman of being both timid and dumb. Most of his dealings were with criminals and his sporting instinct was somewhat latent. Nevertheless, Leni's words had stung him as though somebody had slapped his face.

"If you marry Cavanaugh he'll lose all the family arguments," he said with a tincture of bitterness. He got to his feet and shook loose the clothes that had begun to stick to his body. "All right—I'll bring Cavanaugh out myself, and there won't be any monkey business either. In about an hour."

Leni, galvanized by a new energy, tossed a smile to cheer him up.

"That's the right spirit!" she said. You're getting over being a screen detective. We'll probably accomplish something."

TELEPHONES GERSTENFIELD

When he was gone, Leni's alert brain reminded her that in courtesy she should phone the studio. There were not a dozen people in Hollywood whose call to Herman Gerstenfield would be put through by the studio operators. But Leni Luneska was one of the few who rated a connection into the great man's ultra-privacy. She gave her name and almost at once was talking to him.

"I am so sorry, but I'll not be with you this afternoon," she said politely, but with certainty.

Gerstenfield threw a word over the wire that encompassed everything. "Cavanaugh?"

"Yes."

His voice became as thin and cold as an icicle.

"I'll stand for anything," he said, "except disloyalty."

Leni instantly matched his frigidity.

"I feel the same way about loyalty myself. Goodbye."

Each broke the connection simultaneously.

Gerstenfield was a strong man but in this instant his strength was not enough.

The chasm between them had deepened and broadened—perhaps too wide for any future bridge.

It was as though they had once touched hands in the dark for a moment of mutual understanding. He had said things to her that seemed incontestably true, yet they were merely sterile and hollow words as measured against the overwhelming reality of her feeling for Lucky Cavanaugh.

Whatever was to happen, she knew there was only one man on this planet who could command her. In his moment of need nothing else mattered. Whether time would prove that he felt the same way about her really mattered not so much. What she received in return—if anything—was a lesser phase of the problem.

Sixty minutes was the allotted time until she saw Lucky. The long gilt hand on the standing clock in the hallway had to make a complete sweep of the circle. It was the longest hour of her life.

A great deal of credit was due to Detective Mulrooney. When he arrived, driving his own car, there were no detectives with automatics in their hands sitting in the back seat to guard Lucky Cavanaugh.

Mulrooney had spared Lucky the indignity of handcuffs. After all, the veteran crime investigator was not a coward and had few of the fears that beset his confreres in the department.

Cavanaugh came out of the car with the springy step of a young man in the highest spirits. He hadn't slept all night, but before he went to the police station he bathed, shaved and changed clothes.

Leni swung the door wide open.

"Darling!" Her voice thrilled beautifully.

"Hello, sweetheart!" returned Cavanaugh buoyantly.

He wore a gray suit, a blue tie and a panama hat. To Leni he was handsomer than any leading man in Hollywood. Yet there was nothing theatrical about him; his swinging carriage and tan face was more like that of the Southern California football boys, despite the tell-tale scowl of maturity between his black brows.

She had his hands strongly clasped. She drew them closer, pressed them against her . . . Her face, like a flower, was lifted, begging for a kiss. Cavanaugh pressed it upon her warm lips, carelessly ignoring the presence, directly behind him, of Detective Mulrooney with his earth-bound heaviness.

The kiss of greeting burned in Cavanaugh and charged him with something that sparkled in his veins like silver bubbles.

When they were in the living room, Cavanaugh swung at once into the work of demolishing the detective.

Mulrooney had no intention of being taken at a disadvantage and he pointedly avoided the hollow softness of the low chair that had discomfited him before. Leni and Cavanaugh sat side by side on a divan while Mulrooney found a stiff chair and sat cautiously upon the edge of it.

"Now folks—let's play ball," he said briskly. "We're all on the same team now, eh?"

Leni nodded quickly.

"Now we begin to accomplish something," she said agreeably.

Cavanaugh's expression, surprisingly was entirely negative. Very deliberately he lit a cigaret with the unhurried air of a man in a stronger position.

"Don't kid yourself, Mulrooney—I'll never be on the same team with the coppers," he said, utterly sure of himself. "We'll do business under a flag of truce."

"If that's the way you feel," threw back Mulrooney, abruptly, "we'll cut this out and go back to headquarters. You'll play square or it's all off."

"I'm being square with you, but you don't seem to like it," responded Cavanaugh in a hard voice. "You and I aren't saps, Mulrooney. Let's face facts. I've got more at stake in this matter than you have. You admit that?"

"You certainly have."

"Then it stands to reason I'm going to do my best," declared Cavanaugh. "I think I can get to the person who killed that woman. The shot was intended for me. Probably it was the same man who killed Kruger. But I can't get the information if I'm working with you. I've got to be on my own and independent."

But the detective was not so easily satisfied.

"If I let you go now that makes a bonehead out of me," he objected. "Suppose you beat it out of the country—to Mexico for instance?"

Synopsis

At the premiere of her latest picture, Leni Luneska, beautiful star, is stunned by the appearance of her criminal husband, Karl Kruger. Lucky Cavanaugh, gambler, who has just seen Leni for the first time, tries to make Kruger leave. Later Cavanaugh goes to see Kruger, waiting in a small office. Kruger rushes away from Cavanaugh and surprises burglars in the next office. One of them shoot him to death. Detective Mulrooney, well acquainted with Cavanaugh, gives him four days to find the killer or be arrested himself. Lucky takes Leni home. Lucky is warned that the killer is after him to prevent him from "squealing." Kruger's murderer lies in wait to kill Lucky. Lucky, arriving home, finds a jealous woman, named Annette, waiting for him. Steve Poletzki, the killer, aims at Lucky through a window and kills Annette by mistake. Next morning, Leni is swamped with congratulatory messages on the premiere. Her success is assured, but more important to her than that is Cavanaugh's love for her. Herman Gerstenfield, noted director, calls. He tries to persuade Leni to sign a new contract. Gerstenfield tells Leni that he is her friend. Leni reads about Cavanaugh's arrest.

NELL BRINKLEY PILLOW TOP PATTERN 519

By LAURA WHEELER

A head drawn by Nell Brinkley, the most popular illustrator of the American girl, is doubly fascinating to the needlewoman if it can be embroidered in dainty colors and used as a pillow top as in this pattern. This girl makes a trio of the Nell Brinkley girls offered for embroidery in this column. Only the simplest stitches are employed and directions and yardages are given for making either a round or square cushion.

Pattern No. 519 comes to you with directions and color suggestions so that the pillow can be made up into the daintiest of boudoir cushions or done on a dark background for use in living room or porch.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We want pictures and drawings, fellows!

Don't you like the Mail Box better when there is a cartoon or photograph in it? Sure, well send them in, you Captains and Lieutenants for your Patrols. And remember, a photograph of your patrol helping others is the best, but we like pictures of any member all right too.

If you can play some musical instrument, or sing well, let us know about that too. It seems to us that it would be a good idea for every patrol to have a little show of its own every now and then so that all the members and their parents and friends have a chance to see how much talent each fellow has.

It's always a good idea for every fellow to be able to entertain his friends in some way. If you aren't any good at playing a musical instrument, maybe you could learn to be a fine story teller, or a good public speaker, or a magician. There are lots of things a fellow can do that are just a little different.

Now here's a letter today from Capt. and Lieut. Betty and Billy Bickert, Jr., of 5 Club drive, Mt. Oliver. They say:

"I enjoyed National Kiddies Day. We have our club just like a lodge, secret signs and everything. We are sending five more membership pledges. I like the book about The Lame Prince. I think anyone that reads it will like it. My brother made a sketch of the plane Snuggins, Perce, Spike, and Bill flew to the National Kiddies Day."

And a mighty fine picture it is too. That photograph you sent of yourselves will be kept on file here at headquarters for a while, and just as soon as we get a chance, we will print it right here in the Mail Box. In your next letter, fellows, tell us some of the things your club is doing.

And now look at this letter to Junior from Helen Swadlo, of 226 Munson avenue, McKees Rocks:

"I am sending the membership blank so as to be a member of the Junior Patrol. I would like you to send me the dates of when there will be picnics and other excitements. I will be waiting for the letter to come as soon as possible. I will like this club very much. Please write back and use your own handwriting."

Gee, Helen, that's pretty hard to do—we mean about Junior writing you in his own handwriting. He is still out of town, but we'll let him know about it when he comes back. He gets many, many letters, and it would be very difficult for him to answer every one in his own handwriting. That's why we have the Mail Box this way for Junior Patrol news. Can you start a Patrol club in your neighborhood? That's the best way to go about having picnics and parties. Start a club of all your friends and then you can plan your good times together.

Here's another letter from Capt. Robert Hogg, of 2011 Metropolitan street, North Side. He sure does write a swell letter this time:

"We have decided upon a name for our chapter. Our chapter will hereafter be called 'The Blue Eagle Chapter.' We took the name from the emblem of the N.R.A. flag. Our chapter mushball team is doing well. The team has had five wins and no reverses. That's a pretty good record we think."

We'll say it is, Robert! And you sure do have a dandy name for your chapter. Everyone is trying to do their best these days to support President Roosevelt and his N.R.A. program to bring back prosperity to this country, and naming your chapter the Blue Eagle Chapter is a wonderful inspiration. Let's hear more about your club soon.

First Award in Our Nation-wide Model Home Contest

Today we announce the winner in our nation-wide contest for a Model Home design which will best betray the architectural ideals of the period from 1890 to 1898. This residence, located near Horsecave, Ky., is remarkable in that it meets the first requirement of home architecture, by reflecting the personality of the occupant. The house was built for Mr. and Mrs. J. Ambergris Wattle. Mr. Wattle was for years honorary president of the Armless Stonecutters League—and did most of his tombstones with the aid of his wife. Mr. Wattle held the chisel between his teeth while she tapped his head with the mallet.

Harvesting the Gentle Lawn

Just a word for the twilight athlete.

He's the boy who works in the office all day in the glare and the grime of the big city. At 5 o'clock he smacks the blotter, swivels the desk and rushes for the fire doors. He jams the subway, gallops along with the Grand Central crowd and makes the 5:15. And, just a word for that late afternoon crowd in the Grand Central. It's the largest and toughest backfield in football.

By impersonating first class postage all the way he gets home around seven. Just a cottage small by a waterfall with a lawn mower in the two-car garage.

Don't let anybody tell you that a man hates to mow the lawn. That's the stuff they put in nut candy. A man with a mower has authority. Nobody gets in front of him. He's dangerous. He is subject to no traffic laws and has the right-of-way over anything that creeps, crawls or neighbors. He is a sort of suburban King Kong.

There is music in the whir of the blades as they clip grass, dandelion, bridge cards, cellophane, wet cigarets, terra cotta ornaments and small animals. The man who is pushing the mower is in an enviable spot. He can turn a barrage of hamburgered odds and ends on anybody he doesn't like. It gives him the Napoleonic complex. Makes him feel like a great engineer, if it isn't too late for that now.

We know men who operate the terrace chiseler from twilight to way past eleven. They become expert with the junior tanks. They can do plenty to a daffodil by the river's brim and can scimitar a fishing worm at 20 paces.

And there's a grand feeling of civic improvements when you reach the edge of your lawn and nimbly skirt the neighboring garden. There seems to be an unwritten amendment that no lawn chauffeur shall touch one blade of the next door grass.

We have never seen one mower nick an inch on alien territory. We don't know why it is so. It may have something to do with real estate values, tenement restrictions or light and air.

That's what we like about the suburbs. Every man's castle is in the moat. There is something real sociable in the way neighbors snort at each other over the tops of newspapers.

O don't let anybody tell you that men don't like to mow the lawn, they do. The reason is rather obscure. But we imagine it is because Oscar wants to show that guy next door the terrific muscles in his elbows.

Magee's Candidacy

The Former Mayor Is Well Qualified to Give the People Good Service in City Council.

Two years after finishing his term as President of the United States John Quincy Adams returned to Washington as a Congressman, and remained there in that capacity for 17 years. Someone once asked him if he did not deem it degrading to sit in Congress after having occupied the White House. He proudly answered that no person could be degraded by serving the people as a member of the House of Representatives—or even, he added, as selectman of his town.

Former Mayor William A. Magee, who has just announced his candidacy for City Council, takes the same sensible view, and it is much to his credit.

Asked by many friends to run for Mayor, Magee has chosen the Council as a field of usefulness more to his liking, and in explanation calls attention to fundamental concepts of municipal government of which the public has lost sight.

There is no reason other than custom, he points out, why Council should play second fiddle to the Mayor. The formulation of policies is properly the province of the Council; the duty of the Mayor and his department heads is to carry out the policies and enforce the ordinances decided upon by the legislative branch of the city government.

Magee suggests a return to fundamentals. Let Council utilize its powers of initiating policies, and not wait for the Mayor, or the departments, or the various civic and business bodies, to say what should be done. The public is in error, Magee contends, in focussing its attention almost exclusively upon the activities of the executive branch of the government and regarding the Council as a satellite. The true seat of power is in the Council, to which the administration, composed of the Mayor and the directors of departments, should be responsible. And the Council should not be content to function as a judicial body listening to and passing upon arguments for and against proposals originating elsewhere.

This discussion by Magee of the principles of municipal government is a refreshing contribution to a campaign that has been rather barren of worth while utterances. It is to be hoped that as the campaign progresses the candidates will devote their speeches more and more to policies and principles, and less and less to personalities and partisan attacks.

Magee is entering both the Republican and Democratic primaries, explaining in justification that he intends if elected to keep free of factional and partisan ties, and so feels he has the right to appeal to all the citizens for their votes.

There are not a few thoughtful people who disapprove of partisanship along the lines of the national parties in municipal elections. Does the Democratic party stand for one set of principles in city government, and the Republican party for another set of principles? If so, wherein do they differ? Those who can find sharp differences will not like Magees' action in entering both primaries, but we suspect they are not very numerous.

The promoters of Mayor John S. Herron's candidacy for a full term in the executive office say in their billboard advertisements that the people trained Herron for the job and should keep him in it. The logic of that appeal might well be applied with equal force to the case of Magee.

He is naturally talented for municipal service, and has had splendid training for it. Would it not be a pity, his friends can reasonably ask, to let those talents lie idle, to refrain from utilizing that experience now once more offered for the use of the public?

Magee was Mayor of Pittsburgh from April 4, 1909, to January 2, 1914, and from January 2, 1922, to January 4, 1926. He also served on the Public Service Commission of Pennsylvania. He has always been a close student of civic problems.

Magee held taxes down during his terms as Mayor. For about five years preceding 1926 the city expenditures were carried on at a uniform level of about $20,000,000 a year. After he went out of office they increased at the rate of about $2,000,000 a year until they had mounted to more than $29,000,000.

Yet while Magee held city expenditures down, the city did not fail to progress during his administration.

One of Pittsburgh's most notable engineering jobs, the removal of the Hump, after many years of discussion was actually accomplished under his direction during his first term as Mayor—for he understands engineering problems as well as municipal financial matters.

Public works promise to occupy much of our attention during the next few years. Magee's advice concerning these projects should be valuable to the people and to the Mayor and to the Council.

With Magee as a candidate, the public can be assured of an intelligent discussion of municipal problems from this source, at any rate. Campaigning as a free lance, with no factional affiliations, this candidacy is unusual.

If elected, Magee would have no political alliances but would be responsible solely to the people of Pittsburgh.

His entry into the arena is bound to put color and interest into a campaign which up to now has not been very inspiring.

New Forestry Students

The Increased Interest in the Public Woodlands Should Be Productive of Great Benefit.

Nearly 20,000 young men are now working in 97 camps of the Civilian Conservation Corps in Pennsylvania. Eighty-eight of the camps are in the state forests and game lands, seven in the Allegheny National Forest, one in the North County Park of Allegheny County, and one in the Gettysburg Battlefield Park.

We note that the Departments of Forests and Waters has established schools of instruction in forestry at the camps. The classes are held at times when the youths are free from duty, and attendance is voluntary; but a large number of the boys have availed themselves of the opportunity.

This should be productive of great benefit in the future. Pennsylvania already has nearly 2,500,000 acres of public forest, and the area is steadily growing. Under careful management of skilled foresters, Gov. Gifford Pinchot declares, the state forests can be made to yield a revenue which will relieve the taxpayers of a very considerable part of their burden.

It is encouraging to see the skilled foresters being developed and the foundation laid for careful management in the instruction now being given to thousands of Pennsylvania youths in the C. C. C. camps.

SUN-TELEGRAPH'S PLATFORM

For Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania

A better, cleaner, more beautiful city.
Improved transit facilities.
Modification of "blue law."
Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.
Voting machines to insure honest elections.
Complete utilization of water resources
Development of air transportation.
Electrification of railroads.
Fair public utility rates.

I SAID GIVE US A MANUFACTURERS' GENERAL SALES TAX!"
OH SURE, I GETCHA.— YOU WANT MORE INCOME AND NUISANCE TAXES!
CONGRESS
TAX PAYER

Reports from Washington—that Treasury experts and Congressional committees are again trying to make the income tax workable—are enough to give taxpayers the jitters.

Everybody else has learned that the income tax is a failure and a racket.

It does not "soak the rich," as its sponsors pretend. The rich evade payment by manipulating their stock market accounts or by investing their money in tax-exempt securities. But the people who earn their incomes cannot escape—they have to pay.

Consequently the income tax is an UNJUST tax.

Secondly, as Federal revenue figures prove, the income tax is a bad tax for the Government itself. Income tax returns have shown disastrous decreases at a time when the Government needs money most sorely.

What the nation needs is a Federal General Sales Tax, collected ONCE at the source and paid ONCE by the manufacturer.

That kind of tax is not to be confused with FAKE State and local "sales taxes"—which are actually TURNOVER taxes, multiplied on transactions and pyramided on the CONSUMER.

Canada has a REAL sales tax, and the Canadians call it "the tax nobody feels."

This country must have the same kind of tax. Let Congress heed when its January session begins.

The Love-Campaign

At seventeen, a pretty girl always seems to fancy that she is a sort of magician, who can pull a couple of solitaries, a bolt of satin and a bridal bouquet out of any man's hat.

Charm, in a man, is manner, poise, responsiveness and understanding. Almost any man can have "IT," who has sufficient intelligence—and no conceit.

The honeymoon is over when life has settled down to a daily routine of breakfast spats—and there's not a kick in a carload of coffee-kisses.

If the average man would spend less time, before marriage, trying to convince a girl that the only thing on earth he wants is her love and kisses, she might spend more time, afterward, trying to give him the valet service, trained-nursing and skilled housekeeping that he demands.

Every man secretly longs for the sort of woman who will inspire him and help him make a success of himself; and yet, spends most of his spare time playing around with the sort of women who amuse him and help him make a fool of himself.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Overture

She heard the pulsing harmony
Of harp and violin;
Sat breathless while the flute's clear notes
Kept weaving out and in.

The measures grew more full and strong
With clarinet and horn,
Till in her mind a moving tale
Of love and hope was born.

The cellos and the oboes sang
Of happenings yet to be;
She sat with joyous heart entranced
By floods of melody.

She was so young, so unaware
Of life's toil and dream;
For of her years no overture
Revealed one hint, one gleam!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Jules Glaenzer is listed in the phone book merely with the initials v. p. following. While he is vice president of a jewelry establishment and a super salesman, he is New York's best known social butterfly, flitting to and hovering about wherever smart crowds gather.

So uncanny is his sudden presence whenever a wealthy celebrity arrives that Douglas Fairbanks once exclaimed: "He must have come out of the woodwork." A dapper fellow of dandyfied dress with a middle hair part, he looks in his early 30's, but is reputed more than 50.

He gives false impression of fussiness, whereas he is in truth a fellow of very sturdy sense. A frequent thrower of celebrity parties he is always involved in an affectation of pugnacity. He is the town's most accomplished shusher, curvetting about with finger to lips in a hectoring manner toward guests.

Because he is always flying from himself into a pose, people, like him much better or dislike him thoroughly. It may be added he doesn't care a hoot for personal reactions. Buzzing from New York to Paris, Palm Beach and back, he manages to be successful. And that's to him the berries.

Sinclair Lewis becomes more and more the recluse. Never a mixer, he used to step out now and then with the boys or drop into a first night with George Jean Nathan. But for months he has been seldom seen. Recently he purchased a home in Bronxville, a suburb noted for schools and cultural urge. He will be a close neighbor of one of his most intimate friends, Frazier Hunt.

To intimates Hunt is "Spoke" and Lewis "Red." They are tall, rangy back country types who might have been yanked from the north end of a south bound plow. When they visit one another, they eat in the kitchen. It is an old rite of theirs.

A dour Niagara mustached Tory of the club windows was visited by a group of reporters running down bail for his scrapegrace nephew. On a night out the young man had wrecked a cafe and wound up in a police cell. The doughty old war horse cleared his throat when they had finished, and garrumphed: "The whipper-snapper has cut his cloth, he can wear his breeches!" And stamped off.

I frequently wonder if readers appreciate excellent reporting of daily news. I have come to believe crisp and brilliant headlines are more important. When I came to the Park Row scene the best reporting was being done on an afternoon sheet. It was staffed with such skilled writers as John Anderson, Dudley Nichols and Lawrence Perry. Yet it was never able to hold more than 50,000 circulation. Wonderfully written stories were stupidly headlined and there was none of those type contrasts that give a paper a sparkle.

During those days Heywood Broun was turning out baseball stories that were epics. Most people think of Broun as an exdramatic critic and present-day columnist. He was skilled at the drama and has few equals as a columnist, but it was in writing baseball the least anticipated topic, he caught the art of writing in the act. And made it sit up, lie down and roll over. There were people in the family hotel where I was living who did not know a strike from a foul tip but read Broun's butterfly wings of fancy daily. It was literature in many-splendor radiance.

In that hotel a tenacious dreamer down the hall had quit a $50 copy desk job on the old Globe to write a novel. Utterly consumed by the task, he grew thin, pale and I often thought hungry. Then he vanished, as city neighbors so often do. No one heard of his book. His was the greatest devotion to letters I've ever known.

* * *

Around this time the cartoonist Clare Briggs was building his famous home, "Blue Anchor," of ship's timbers at New Rochelle. I remember visiting it with Bob Ripley, then a little known sport page artist. "Boy!" he enthused, "if I ever had enough money to build one like that!" He has enough now to build a couple of dozen like that.

And there lies love!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You've often wished—haven't you?—that you had a plain, short code by which you could line up your life and make the most of yourself.

Of course you realize that no possible rules can control all outward circumstances, or prevent all your bad breaks. But if you knew, in a general way, how to handle yourself, you wouldn't feel so confused and discouraged—facing all this rumpus. You can know. Here is a plain, short code that will fit any man. Just three short rules—

STAY SIMPLE.
STAND STEADY.
SEE STRAIGHT.

Three rules—if you can live them, you can make good. But—don't kid yourself!—it will take all you have.

STAY SIMPLE.

That doesn't mean "going native"—living on nuts, sleeping on the ground. It means—Being Yourself. Your own actual self—without false fronts or fancy gestures. For you are your own equipment. And before you can do anything with yourself—or to your world—you must take inventory of that equipment.

You are what you are. What are you? What can you—what can't you do? What can you reasonably expect to achieve? Those will be difficult questions to answer, particularly if you're an American—for you have been taught that you were "born free and equal" and could expect to achieve anything anyone else could achieve. But that's the bunk. You weren't—and you can't.

You have certain definite limitations . . . and definite capacities. What are they?

Most of your failures have come because you didn't know what you were or what you could do. Find out now. And don't try to do anything more until you have found out.

STAND STEADY.

Find out what you are—and then stick to it. That will be tough, for this modern world holds millions of distractions for each one of us. Hourly you're tempted to be something new, do something different. Maybe if you had another kind of personality . . . or job . . . or creed . . . things would break right. Perhaps if you copied Bill's or Mabel's line—

So you're yanked from one position to another. And end exactly—nowhere Don't do it! Stay simple. Stand steady. Be yourself . . . the best self you can possibly be. Then put all your bets on that self. And having so established yourself—

SEE STRAIGHT.

First see yourself clearly—then see your world with equal honesty. Stop kidding yourself. Making excuses to yourself. Being sorry for yourself. Blaming the other fellow. Try to see life as it really is—your life, everyone's life.

Try to see why you do things—the deep, true reason why you do things. Stop looking at surface consequences . . . . look for the secret causes . . . in yourself and the other fellow. Why is the other fellow so lucky. Why do you have such bad breaks? There's the answer—in those secret causes. Look for those causes and you'll know what you and your world are all about.

STAY SIMPLE . . . STAND STEADY . . . SEE STRAIGHT . . . those three plain rules are the secret of all real power and happiness. Live them—and the world is yours. Break them—and you'll be a washout.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Instead of going with your family to the old homestead to spend your vacation, necessitating extra work and expense for the "old folks," why don't you invite the hard-worked family in the old home to some place where they can rest without demands on their purse and failing strength.

In the past you have been selfish.

You considered your own comfort and finances in planning vacation.

Of course, dad and mother are glad to see you and have you at home.

They are willing to work harder and make greater outlays for you.

But don't let it be a one-sided affair with you and yours the recipients.

Perhaps you might have a better time if you and some of your friends should get together at some resort, dividing expenses.

But it would be a fine thing to include the old folks in your plans and find out their preferences as to where you might all spend a few days or weeks.

Then allot a certain time for each.

They will enjoy a real outing and they need a change, too.

It isn't very creditable to take it out of the older ones who are growing more feeble each year, when you could as well as not plan otherwise.

The Human Side of the News

An Attempt to Communicate With Mars—Belief Grows That the Planet Is Inhabited—Maxim's Opinion

By EDWIN C. HILL

FROM the daily run of the news there leaps now and again an idea which thrills the imagination. A group of enthusiastic Britons proposes to set up on the towering peak of Jungfrau, in the Swiss Alps, a tremendously powerful battery of electric searchlights. They propose, before the summer is done, to flash messages in Morse code to the astronomers of the planet Mars who are supposed to be peering through their telescopes toward the earth.

In the latter part of August, Mars will swing in its orbit to within a little more than 35,000,000 miles of the earth. The British scientists seek an answer to the age-old question: Is Mars inhabited?

Mars, as a subject of controversy, will never grow dull. For a hundred years astronomers have argued that thrilling question. The late Prof. Percival Lowell, founder of the Flagstaff Observatory, in Arizona, did much to popularize the view that Mars is a living world. Although many of his deductions were challenged in his lifetime, there can be no doubt that his ideas have gained strength in recent years.

Thanks to the work of such physicists as Dr. William Weber Coblentz, a good case for the existence of life on the red planet has been made out. Both oxygen and water vapor have been discovered in the Martian atmosphere. Both of these are essential to the maintenance of life. The surface temperatures of Mars compare very favorably with the surface temperature of the earth. During the Martian winter the poles of Mars are blanketed and surrounded with a vast white deposit. This melts away with the approach of summer. As the melting proceeds vast areas of Mars change in color from white to red to green.

Snow Caps Melt At Martian Poles

NOWADAYS many astronomers agree with Prof. Lowell and Dr. Coblentz that the disappearance of the vast white areas around the Martian poles is really the melting of enormous fields of snow and ice, such as envelop our own North Pole and South Pole. And so the belief has grown that vegetation thrives, dies and is reborn through the Martian seasons. The atmosphere is thin, but there may be beings, different from the lower animals, perhaps resembling human beings, who can breathe that atmosphere and flourish.

The newest convert to the theory of life on Mars is Hiram Percy Maxim. Mr. Maxim joins the ranks of those who are convinced that the famous "canals" of Mars are actually the gigantic achievements of a race far more advanced than the human race. He cites the investigation of Professor Lowell of the great circle markings on the surface of Mars. Among the many who have seen these circular lines are Schiaparelli, Perrotin, Thollon, Flammarion, Fauth, Williams, Pickering, Douglas, Lampland and Schaeberle. Mr. Maxim suggests that these lines, like the canals of Mars, are artificial and therefore the gigantic work of intelligent beings of tremendous intellectual capacity. As for the canals, Mr. Maxim believes that they are vast artificial channels which bring water down from the melting snowcaps of the planet to revive vegetation and maintain life.

Fascinating are the possibilities suggested for the future of radio communication with the planet which is our near neighbor in the great family of the solar system. For Mr. Maxim says that if the mental abilities of the Martians are as much in advance of ours as their canals would indicate, they may have brought radio to a very high level of development. And radio, he thinks, is the only possible means of exchanging the news and the time of day between the earth and Mars.

Marconi Detects Strange Signals

AS yet, however, we human beings are not very far advanced in the use of radio, and improvements will have to be made in operating the lower wave-lengths (the work which the great Italian, Marconi, is now engaged upon) and in generating and detecting electro-magnetic oscillations.

In the opinion of Hiram Percy Maxim 25 years more of experiment will probably see the radio engineers able to separate these oscillations, and we shall then be able to say whether any one of them represents a systematic and deliberate endeavor on the part of some intelligence far out in cosmic space to signal to us. It is interesting to recall that Marconi, himself, the last man to be impressed by romantic dreams, has detected in the ether radio activity resembling signals which he has not been able to account for.

Is it possible that the superbeings on Mars are already attempting to get into communication with us creatures of the earth? Certainly life and intelligence may be supposed to exist elsewhere in space. It would be the last word in fatuity to assume that the earth alone was the home of life and of thinking beings. Both exist, in Mr. Maxim's belief, in countless worlds, and always in different physical shapes. Intelligent life more highly developed in many worlds than upon our own. We are too young as yet to judge life's status in the Great Plan of a cosmos which the puny mind of man has only begun to explore.

FAD BECOMES CHAIN

By Winifred Black

Julie has had a chance to go down to the seashore for the summer. Not a hot crowded, noisy seashore, but a real seashore with the waves racing up and down the sand and laughing their heads off about it.

Sand dunes, white and yellow, and all covered with beach heliotrope, pink and yellow—that is.

Sand pipers running up and down the sand, and calling to each other every time a little frilly wave touches their toes, "deep, deep, ain't it deep?" And the great, solemn bell ding-donging away out in the breakers whenever the wind is high. Calling the mermaids to church, so some people say.

Back a little ways from the beach — the woods, dark and solemn and fragrant—like a church they are, the woods, and the little squirrels flickering up and down the branches, and blue birds and robins, and everything.

Julie really needs the sea and the sand and the woods. She needs the quiet and the peace and the deep sweet breath of the pines, for she has been ill and she has seen trouble and she ought to get away somewhere and take a new start.

She has this chance to go now, and she does wish she could take it.

But she can't! What would become of the chickens and the black cat, and the fuzzy dog if she went away and left them all forlorn?

One of the neighbors would take the black cat and another would look after Fuzzy, but how about the hens, there are three of them and a little, bossy rooster and every day there are three new laid eggs for Julie and she couldn't give them up, could she?

So she's going to stay at home all through the long summer and take care of the three chickens and the bossy rooster for they belong to her, she thinks.

I think she belongs to them.

Dear little Julie, she's such a darling, too. I do wish the rooster and the three hens were in the stew pot for somebody's good, comfortable dinner next Sunday.

Isn't it queer how our little comforts and consolations and fads sometimes step right in between us and a bit of real happiness.

Then little Julie could go and watch the sand pipers run up and down the beach and hear them say to each other in their shrill piping notes: "Deep, deep, oh ain't it deep"—when the little fringe of a great wave snatches at their funny little feet.
